Long Beach Oil Field Bonanza for All California

f legislative and court actions resulted in a division of Cong Beach's tidelands oil wealth with the state. Tremendous sums are involved in this continuing division. At our request, the Capitol News Service has just completed a review of the state's use of this windfall which resulted from the enterprise and wise administration policies of the City of Long Beach. The report follows, and on today's editorial page (B-2) will be found an interesting account of the problems encountered by CNS in getting the story.)

SACRAMENTO (CNS)-There is scarcely an area of California that has not felt the impact of dollars from rich Long Beach oil field.

Since the original "settlement" was made in 1955, a total of $181,847,493 was paid to the state from Long Beach oil revenues. The original settlement was $120 million, plus $4,986,744 in interest.

Revenues from oil royalties in the Long Beach harbor are divided by the state and the city of Long Beach, after costs of subsidence programs for Long Beach have been deducted. These subsidence projects must be approved by the State Lands Commission.

Since June, 1956, the Commission has approved a total of $116,295,289 in remedial subsidence projects and $29,106,156 in non-subsidence projects, for a total of $145,401,445. This is in addition to the $181 million which went into what is now the California Water Fund.

When the state first got the Long Beach wind-

into an "Investment Fund" created for that purpose. This fund continued for several years, with provisions for oil royalties from leases of state tidelands to be funneled into

Secret Meet Second Front Due K Tells West Decides to If U.S. Goes to War Critical Talk Over

L.a.C. Says: Who Bungled the Cuban Invasion?

What's the truth behind that ill-fated invasion of Cuba? Did President Kennedy call off plans for U. S. air cover without telling the anti-Castro forces, who counted on it? Cuban revolutionary leaders-long silent-now tell their side of the story. This is the heading of a U. S. News article quoting the anti-Castro-

The U.S. News article is from the Washington, D. C., Post, which interviewed the anti-Castroites after repeated statements had been given that they decided to go ahead after the President had decided not to give the air coverage promised them. They say flatly they were never so informed-nor were they told when and where the invasion attempt was to be

Their statement was only made to interviewers after a Saturday Evening Post article attempted to whitewash the President and his advisors by saying the responsibility was that of the Cuban Revolutionary Council and not that of the administration. Several of these leaders lost sons in the invasion which was encouraged by the President, and for which he took responsibility after its failure. They were fighting against Communists.

The whole tragic story is one of ineptness among the President's official body. It is charged that this group was careful not to let our U. N. Ambassador Stevenson know about the planned use of air coverage. They did not want him to lie, if asked about it. But according to the investigators-Stevenson heard about it and objected so strenuously that the President canceled the order for air coverage—but did not so inform the Cubans who were to attempt the in-

The air coverage was to destroy the Castro small air force and protect the invading ships from attack. It was essential that such protection be given for any hope for success. But it was not given and a few Castro planes destroyed the ships before they could land and 1,200 fighters against Castro were sacrificed.

Many people will say we should not be a party to any such invasion. They feel it would-as Mr. Stevenson feels-harm us among other Latin-American nations. But we doubt many will like the idea of our encouraging men to make such sacrifices and then fail to keep our promises to aid them. It is doubtful if any action we could have taken has harmed us as much as has the failure of the invasion our gov-

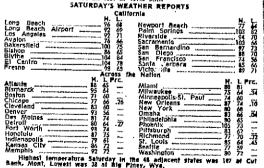

The British move in Kuwait and the French in Tunisia may be criticized. But at least they showed they had the courage to protect their interests and to take action when those interests were threatened. It is becoming evident that we, too, must be ready to show strength where our interests are threatened. It is the best assurance of maintaining our prestige and to show we will no longer be pushed around. We failed to do this in the Cuban invasion which it is apparent, we encouraged, if not planned in its entirety.

One notable addition made to the Water Fund was the receipt of $55 million in cash bonus bids from oil companies for leases of state tidelands

WITH THAT exception, the real bulk of the money in the Water Fund has come from the rich Long Beach field. Before the big water program of the governor's got off the ground in 1959, with later approval of the bond issue by the people in 1960, the Investment Fund was subject to some pressure for loans or grants. One of the biggest of these was a $5.1 million loan to the Small Craft Harbors Division for use in making loans for small craft harbor development.

Other uses of the Investment Water Fund included $1,062,000 for research by the University of California, $1 million for remedial flood damage; $15 million for flood damage claims; and $1 million for flood control works.

A DETAILED breakdown by John Hunt, accounting officer for the Department of Water Resources, showed $77,800,505 had been spent from the Water Fund by June 30, leaving a balance of $91,832,693. (Because of differences in bookkeeping methods, State Controller Alan Cranston showed a balance of $147,080,174 in the Water Fund, on June 30, as he listed some funds which the Water department apparently-considered-committed.)

A big chunk of this money, $45,467,998, was spent on Oroville dam and reservoir, key feature of the Feather River project and the state water plan. The work has been in relocation of utilities, highways, and the Western Pa cific railroad, up to this point, involving several bridges and tunnels.

Bids were called recently for construction of the first diversion tunnel at the Oroville site, signalling the actual beginning of construction of the huge dam which is intended to store surplus waters for eventual exportation to southern California.

ANOTHER $2,877,103 has been spent on the South Bay Aqueduct, to provide water for Santa Clara, San Benito and southern Alameda Counties. The North Bay Aqueduct project has received $567,812 from the Water Fund. This project is designed to ease water shortages in several counties north of the San Francisco Bay.

Another $11,250,606 has been spent on general state water facilities work.

A total of $11,746,384 from the Water Fund has been spent for purposes other than the statewide water plan. Some of the larger amounts included in this total are:

Investigation of seepage of the Sacramento River, $3,631,477; various water resources investigations, $6,048,980; repsyment guarantee to U. S. on Black Butte and New Hogan dams (state pledge required before project could be started, money to be paid if contracts are not signed to repay costs of project) $13,740,000; state share of Imperial Beach erosion control project, $24,000;

Colusa Basin study, $56,881; nuclear engineering studies, $39,312; cooperation with U. S. on sea water conversion studies, $70,332; Delta investigation, $202,622; Coachella Valley groundwater investigations, $22,990.

NINE LONG, TENSE HOURS

Hero of Hijacker Battle Relaxes

By GEORGE ROBESON

Leanard Gilman sat in a oolside chair in the patio of is home at 4401 Hazelbrook Ave., Saturday, and recalled the nine hours of tension that made him a national hero.

The nine hours aboard a hijacked airliner in El Paso, Thursday ended suddenly and violently as Gilman captured the hijackers with a single trip-hammer punch.

"I'm an officer," he ex-plained Saturday, "I felt obligated to stop them. It was my responsibility."

The decision without a doubt!

Six times before today he has taken title to a new motor car. And six times he has wondered how wisely he chose

But not today! This time the name of the car is Cadillac. And this time there's not a trace of doubt in his mind.

For the current Cadillac is, obviously and literally, a car without a compromise. Who, for instance, could behold its great beauty and doubt that it will be the cynosure of all eyes wherever it travels?

Who could take command of its wheel and doubt that it has set a standard of performance that will be bonored by years of emulation?

And who, indeed, could study the practical aspects of Cadillac ownership and doubt that this is the wisest investment of them all?

Original price . . . maintenance and upkeep...gasoline efficiency...resale value -all the accepted measurements of motor car value say "Cadillac" with unmistakable clarity.

Incidentally, this is the perfect season to listen—and the ideal time to act.

Your dealer will be happy to bring you up to date on the Cadillac story at any time-and to put you in the driver's seat for the most convincing hour you ever spent on the highway.

Sixty minutes at the wheel and you'll know it's Cadillac-without a doubt!

Liners Given

By BERT RESNIK

The telephone girl with the smile in her voice has taken it to sea.

In the taking, she has made Long Beach the only port where passengers from all over the world can get personalized phone service from aboard ship,

The result has been another feather in Long Beach's new "International City" cap.
The sea phone service doesn't get into deep water with its operation. Its shipboard performance is conducted after luxury liners dock here.

The girl with the smile in her voice gets a big assist from a telecart, a device originally designed for hospitalized servicemen.

THE TELECART, which includes a phone installa-tion and directories, originally was used—and still is—to wheel to bedridden patients who couldn't otherwise make calls.

In the shipboard opera-tion, four telecarts are rolled aboard a liner and the girls stand by to help passengers make their calls

Schmidt, downtown district manager for the Long Beach office of the General Telephone Co., said the telecart service was started as a shipboard experiment last April. The Long Beach Harbor

Department and operators of the liner Caronia had asked if additional service could be provided.

THREE DOCKSIDE phone booths and a boothmobile with two more telephones did not seem ample

They also place most of the long-distance calls for Some had to wait in front the passengers, many of whom have difficulty in transmitting their accented instructions to the operathe quantitative need, and

FIRST TO USE new "telecarts" linking the liner Caronia to all parts of the world by phone was Mrs. Herman Haberman. She called relatives in New York City after the telecarts were plugged into dockside jacks at the Port

The girls have change available for those making out-of-town or out-of-state

In one instance, through use of directory and information service, an Englishman was aided in locating a sister in Rossmoor whom he hadn't seen since the outbreak of World War II.

Schmidt reports that, judging by the comments, the original telecart shipboard trial was an unqualified success.

PROVISION OF the service was subsequently adopted for all incoming passenger liners.

WASHINGTON (A) John F. Kennedy has been six months now. showing his form for over

It's a fair time now for some stock-taking, for sumgraming and sizing up, to put things in perspective; to dook at the evidence at hand and project the future. To wit:

Is Jack Kennedy REALLY a better golfer than Dwight Eisenhower?

Not all the returns are in, for certain, But from what old-hand White House reporters have been able accumulate from authoritative sources, we are led inescapably to the conclusion; Yes, he probably is.

OF COURSE, on the one hand, there is no denying the former President's deft putting game. But in accepting this conclusion, there is also no denying something that daily grows more certain: the young President is long off the

But is this something the country can rely on over the long haui? There's many a trap shead in the uncertain future towards

In reaching their conclusion, it has been reliably reported observers considered the following:

Experience: Eisenhower was acquainted with the tools of the golfing trade before Jack Kennedy was old enough to caddy.

NATURAL ability: linkwise, most of our presidents just haven't had it from tee to green. Freddie McLeod, 1908 U.S. open champion, Columbia Country Club pro and a presi-dential golf watcher for over 50 years, recalls the founding of presidential golf William Howard Taft, broke precedent by taking up the game but rarely if ever broke 90.

The nation switched administrations in 1912, electing Woodrow Wilson, but found the Democrat was no better, Wilson was a 90 shooter too.

Warren Harding was a slight improvement and Franklin Roosevelt before his polio attack shot in the 80s. Eisenhower scored in the upper 80s as does Kennedy. But reliable sources say if the President hadn't hurt his back, wasn't working overtime on Berlin, school aid, foreign aid, Laos, etc., and if he went golfing instead of yachting at Hyannis Port he would shoot regularly in the 70s. No other President could make that statement.

DRIVING: This is the best part of Eisenhower's game. He is generally in the fairway 300 yards or better. If Kennedy didn't hook badly he'd outdrive Ike. But he does hook, Middle and long irons: Kennedy.

Approching: Eisenhower more consistent Putting: Kennedy, On the links: with both president's reporters have been occasionally allowed to watch the first drive, then are left to loll around the clubhouse, But those who have played with both men say Eisenhower is more of a student of the game. He moves slowly and deliberately. He wants a good score. Kennedy hits quickly, likes to kid around, needle his partners and is not above a little wager.

Neutrino Bomb Could End War?

By JOSEPH L. MYLER

WASHINGTON (UPI) —
If you get wind of a report that the Russians have developed a "neutrino bomb" don't let it scare you. It's just a scientific proof.

The "neutrino bomb" apparently was designed in the mind of a scientific jokester as an antidote to all the recent talk about a "neutron bomb."

The "neutron bomb," as defined by Congressmen who want the United States to resume nuclear testing, is a "small, clean H-bomb" which would produce almost no blast and heat. It would be no menace to office

BUT ITS high - energy neutrons—fast-moving subnuclear particles—presumably would knock out soldiers at battlefield ranges.

The neutron bomb is said to be a concept of the Atomic Energy Commission's weapons laboratory at Livermore, Calif. It has been argued that it could be perfected, as a useful battlefield weapon, if the United States would just resume testing.

There is a catch about the neutron bomb — unlike the H-bomb, it would have to be triggered by something besides an A-bomb. Nobody knows for sure Phone HEmlock 7-1201 Free Customer Forking At 345 Eim Avenue that a non-atomic trigger can be developed.

The "neutrino bomb" is the concept of Ralph S. Cooper, a scientist at the AEC's Los Alamos (N.M.) weapons lab, Livermore's older rival.

IF THE neutron bomb is good because it would generate little blast and heat, Cooper's spoof bomb would be far better because it would generate practically none at all. Nor would it create any radioactivity.

In fact, a neutrino bomb wouldn't do any damage at all. The neutrino is an infinitesimal particle of matter bearing no electrical charge and possessing size and mass bordering on zero. A neutrino is so tiny, in fact, that it could pass through the solid earth and several trillion miles of lead without touching anything.

COOPER'S spoof was published by the Los Alamos lab newspaper, the "News", which called it the "ultimate weapon." The paper also printed what it said was a photograph of the fireball of the neutrino bomb at 0.053 seconds after detonation.

SHOP MONDAY NIGHT TILL 9 P.M.

EVERY Wednesday eve about a dozen young fellows get together in a Garden Grove park for a bull session.

Offhand that may not sound like an item, but it is. For these men aren't there just to shoot the breezethey cavort on the greensward with a mechanical

This is an improvised contraption with horns, mounted on a bicycle wheel, which one man pushes around the field while others engage in "cape practice," bull-fighter style.
All of this must be pretty mystifying to passersby not in the know, But the amateur matadors are deadly serious about it, finding it good exercise and a way to indulge their enthusiasm for bull fighting.

THEY'VE just done it in another way, by forming a local club of bull-fight fanatics called La Pena Hermanos Huerta. The name honors two brothers Huerta who are prominent in Mexico hullfighting activities.

President of the club is Lyn Sherwood of Bellflower, who spent some time in Spain, managed a bull fighter, and did a little fighting in the ring himself.

Bob Harris, 4550 E. 15th St. in Long Beach, is vice president and was in to tell me about the new organization. He thinks there may be others interested in bullfighting here who might like to join up. Among objectives of the group is en-couragement of high standards for bullfighting in border towns like Tijuana. The clubbers will keep themselves informed on bullfight developments in Mexico, seek to improve U. S.-Mexicans relations generally, organize trips and otherwise address their efforts to bigger, better bullfighting. There are some women among the members.

FROM my conversation with Harris, I gathered there aren't many bullfight fans around here, but those who are interested are on the intensive side. He called them fanatics.

I told him that bullfighting is repulsive to me. I confessed I've never seen one and asked him how he got

He said he does sculpture and other artistic work, and became interested artistic aspects of the bull ring. He likes the dance aspects, the spectacle and the color. Some others who have had my feelings on the subject have changed their opinions when becoming better informed, he told me.

However, he doesn't expect ever to see bullfighting here. The SPCA is too strong, he said, and popular interest is not great.

So the nearest thing to a bullfight here probably is the unique practice with the mechanical bull on the field at the park on Westminster Ave. That's close enough. I'm with the SPCA on that

THE partially constructed auditorium annex in Long Beach's strand area will not have a removable

Possibly you never supposed it would. But Win Hanssen, mgr. of the auditorium, reports that he was asked about it by a number of people who had examined a model of the oval building on display at the aud. To show the interior to viewers, the top has been set to one side, and that led to the queries.

By the way, why doesn't the City Council go ahead and come to a decision on a name for this structure? It's going to be in the news a lot from here on.

This dept.'s choice is still International Oval.

THE BIRD IN Robert Andersson's hand is a wild bird, trapped for banding in the Federal Bird Banding net on the camp site. Two birds were trapped in the net, then released by Andersson: a white breasted nuthatch and a bluebird.

ON THE TRAIL, a group of Boys' Club youngsters are on the lookout for butterflies, signs of animal life, unusual varieties of plants. Boys saw two deer on this trip—that made the hike worthwhile. Specially trained counselors and camp staff supervise all activity.

Robert is one of a group of some 30 West Side Boys' Club members who have been spending 10 days at Camp Hi-Hill near Mt. Wilson.

Robert never held a wild bird in his hand before, It's something he'll be able to share with friends for many months to come, and something to remember all his life.

The nuthatch was caught briefly in the Federal Bird Band Station mist net at Camp Hi-Hill, as are numeruos other species of birds.

FOR THE SECOND summer now, the Boys Clubs of Long Beach, a Community Chest and Community Welfare Council affiliate, has leased Camp Hi-Hill during July and August. The city-owned camp in the mountains is under operation of the Long Beach Unified School District the remainder of the year.

"This is an outstanding example of a private organ; ization operating on municipal property under lease arrangement," said Maurice Bugbee, executive secretary of the Boys Clubs of Long Beach. "We have thus eliminated the need for a major drive for funds for a camp site and make it possible for many boys who would never get to summer camp to spend some time in the moun-

The program for August includes a weekend for families of boys in the Downtown and East club branches this week; North branch camp, Aug. 7 to Aug. 16; all branches, Aug. 16 to 25, and a regional junior staff training session the weekend of Aug. 25 to 27.

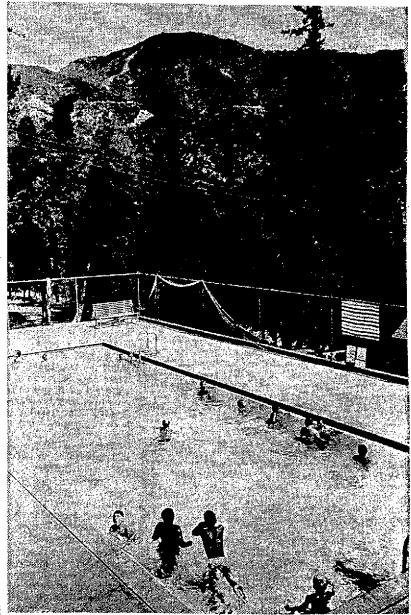

THE YOUNGSTERS don't loll around. There's a full program from 7 a.m. when they rise to 9 or 9:30 when lights go out—unless they're on an overnight hike and get to sleep on the trail.

All activities are supervised by camp officials headed by Director Mike Coppersmith, a former Boys' Club member himself, Bill Takamatsu, assistant director, and Mike Phillips, program director. In addition there are cabin counsellors, the majority of whom are former Boys' Club members trained to supervise seven to 10 boys per cabin. The counsellors are Gene Funkhouser, George Fletcher, John DeGraff, Carlos Silva, Arthur Reynolds, Jim Felt, Brad Johnson and Daryl List.

The program includes hiking, crafts, nature-lore, campfire activity, swimming instruction and recreation and

PRESIDENT KENNEDY MADE a tough decision last. week when a father-and-son team of hijackers took hostages at El Paso and tried to negotiate a deal for a plane to deliver to Castro.

Even though he knew the decision could lead to injury or death for the hostages, the President answered with a quick, blunt No.

FORTUNATELY, THE DECISION to make no deals led to the release of the hostages, the rescue of the airplane, and the capture of the hijackers.

It is easy, in retrospect, to see that the President's decision was the right one. To recognize and follow the proper course when the outcome was uncertain required perception and moral courage.

The El Paso episode tells the would-be hijacker that he cannot depend on bargaining his way out of trouble and that, in fact, he may get his jaw knocked loose from its hinge if he tries.

The El Paso Principle - refusal to submit to extortion and blackmail, refusal to play the bandit's game - could be applied to advantage to a broad range of questions in foreign affairs.

WHEN HE FINDS OUT THAT someone may hit him and hit him hard, the Communist hijacker will think twice before he makes trouble in hope of getting a "deal" at such points of centention as Berlin and

If Western powers had said "no deal" more frequently during the past 15 years, the hijacker wouldn't be as contemptuous as he is today for the restraints of

Aircraft Industry Is in L.B. to Stay

REORGANIZATION PLANS announced last week by Douglas Aircraft Co. made one point very clear:

The Long Beach plant is a permanent industrial fixture of this city and will enjoy a measure of growth to offset at least in part the decline resulting from a slowdown in military and DC8 jet orders.

The reorganization splits the Douglas company into two divisions, one for aircraft and one for missiles and space projects. This will mean the transfer having been to Long Beach in the near future of almost 2,000 production workers now employed elsewhere by Douglas. As the reorganization progresses, many workers are expected to be added here.

Long Beach obviously is going to be a major aircraft city for many years to come.

'Rocky' Wants Ike to Remain Neutral

tled down to Gettysburg the other day for a talk with former President Eisenhower about neutralism.

Rocky wanted assurance that Ike would be among the uncommitted when it comes to picking a GOP nominee to oppose President Kennedy in 1964. It's an open secret in Republican circles here that Ike has urged his ex-sidekick, Richard M. Nixon, to go after that their figure is the correct the governorship of California next year. Ike's reasoning: Nixon's chances for the nomination in 1964 will be dim unless he remains in public life. It is said that Ike counseled that Nixon could pledge to serve out a term in California and still accept an honest traft if it were to come his way at the GOP convention in 1964. That report plus others reaching the Rockefeller camp in Albany spurred Rocky into action Under the guise of paying a call to discuss civil de-fense, Rockefeller visited Ike's farm in Gettysburg and put the question to him: Are you pushing Nixon?

The former president reportedly told Rockefeller that is indeed neutral and is just trying to be helpful to everybody to insure a GOP win in 1964. But the Rockefeller camp is listening closer for rumbles out of Gettysburg.

FORMER WHITE HOUSE assistants under Eisenhower are keeping a box score on President Kennedy's work habits. They report that in the first six months of his administration, the President spent 52 days away from Washington. President Eisenhower, who was criticized by Democrats for the frequency of his vacations, was absent only 34 days during the same time of his first year in the White

EVERYBODY'S CHECKING UP on everybody these days and the result may be time clocks in the cloakrooms. Western congressmen, who resent the fact that their Eastern colleagues go home for long weekends, thus slowing up congressional business, have made a survey of roll calls in the House. They found that the In-Tuesday, Out-Thursday Club, as the easterners are called, are rather effective in staving off votes. Of the 60 House roll calls up to July 20, seven were held on three Mondays, and three were held on a Friday. The other 50 roll calls occurred only in mid-week when the Easterners are at work. The House has met on only three Fridays during the current session,

THE PEACE CORPS is learning that one place where peace must be kept is in Congress. The Corps was all set to announce an important appointment to one of its highranking jobs when a White House aid put on the brakes. Turned out the appointee hadn't been cleared with Rep. John Rooney, in whose district he resides. Rooney hit the ceiling when he was informed, but was calmed down when told the appointment would be held up for a few weeks to give the congressman time to look the man over. Rooney holds down a key appropriations subcommittee chairmanship that oversees State Department and foreign service budgets.

This seemed like an interesting story and one not too difficult to develop so we

ON THE SAME day we called the Department of Finance in Sacramento but were told the figures on revenues from Long Beach should properly come from the state lands commission, which handles such things. The lands commission is headquartered in Los Angeles, so this provided the first delay.

A telephone call to that agency brought a promise of quick action on the figures, and they arrived in Sacramento four days later.

President Chen Cheng had Nationalist de termination to fight against the admission of Red China and Outer Mongolia to the United Nations.

He left behind with President Kennedy a report and a question.

THE REPORT, a document of the highest secrecy. contains startling new evidence concerning the magnitude of the famine in Red China and the temper of her suffering, starving people.

The question? Is the time near when Mao Tse-Tung can be given a taste of his own guerrilla tactics by opening a secret front against his tyranny deep in China's heartland? Administration officials are pondering the possibility of dropping anti-Communist guerrillas into areas where the famine is most intense. They would be armed with light weapons for defense, with surplus food for offense.

In the early stages, the guerrillas would avoid headon clashes with Mao forces. They would conceal and guard the food, smuggling it to the hungry peasants to win their support.

He could contend that the Commuists cannot be trusted to distribute food. They give the lion's share to soldiers and bureaucrats, even ship food abroad for diplomatic gains while their own people go hungry.

The beachhead plan has one obvious drawback. It could trigger World War III. An answer may lie somewhere between the two pro-

Modesto, speaker of the State Assembly, is expected to accept a judgeship soon and to retire from the State Legislature. He has held the speaker's post since the Democrats regained control of the Legislature in 1958 and the bipartisan consensus is that he has done an able job.

However, when Brown leaves the Legislature his place in history will be assured not by his service as speaker but by a series of bills introduced or coauthored by him prohibiting secrecy in local government:

It was five years ago that Brown in-troduced the original anti-secrecy measure. Since that time he and other legislators have amended and expanded it. The last session of the Legislature passed Assembly Bill 663, introduced by Gordon Winton provides that the legislation shall officially bear the title it has long unofficially been accorded by officials and newsmen-the Ralph M. Brown Act.

The Brown Act provides that all meetings of state boards and commissions and all local governmental bodies shall be open to the press and the public and shall be announced in advance. The only ex-ception made is for the personnel mat--public officials may meet in secret to discuss the hiring or firing of a governmental employe.

Under an amendment introduced by Assemblyman John A. Busterud (R-San rancisco) and passed by the last session of the Legislature, the act has been extended to include the meetings of any body organized and operated by a private organization if the membership of the body is composed in part of public officers and the activities of the body are supported in whole or in part by public funds.

Locally this would apply to meetings of the board of directors and certain other committees of Memorial Hospital, Community Hospital, and similar institutions." clares that in delegating authority to properly chosen representatives, citizens do not give up their right to know what use the representatives are making of this

There are many times when an official would like to sound out his colleagues on what he considers a necessary but unpopular course of action. He would like to discuss the problem and get the benefit of his colleague's ideas without having to defend his statements in the newspapers

There are other times when a particular jurisdiction will find itself dealing with another jurisdiction which may have different objectives. One body may want to discuss its strategy without tipping its hand to the other body. This is somewhat difficult to do in an open, public meeting.

There are problems of determining sites and rights of way and acquiring property. Open, preliminary discussion of eventual property needs may serve to increase prices by the time the jurisdiction finally gets around to acquiring the needed property.

Brown admits that the anti-secrecy law may cause some problems for the public official and for public bodies. However, he denies that these problems are as big as some have claimed, and, in any event, he believes they are more than compensated by the added protection provided to the public interest and public money by protecting the public's right Eye irritation resulting occasionally-but rarelyrom the use of an eyewash called Collyrium appears to be due to individual sensitivity to the preparation.

This observation is reported to "Medicing and You" by Dr. G. E. Farrar Jr., medical director of Wyeth Laboratories, manufacturer of Collyrium.

In an earlier column we quoted an American Journal of Ophthalmology letter which speculated that occasional irritation from the eyewash may be due to using Collyrium which had set on the shelf too

Dr. Farrar says that Wyeth has found no evidence of change in composition or concentration of Collyrium ingredients when the preparation is kept for a long

A SLOW PULSE rate of only 30 beats a minute does not necessarily mean heart disease or even some other ailment. Dr. Gordon S. Myers, consultant to the AMA Journal, says such a pulse occasionally is found in healthy athletes at rest.

PRESSURE-COOKING does not affect food to the extent that there is any adverse effect on the growth of children. So says Ogden C. Johnson, Ph. D., a consultant to the AMA Journal.

There's no evidence, he says, that pressure-cooking interferes with the nutrients associated with bone development---vitamins A, C and D.

Vitamin C is the most easily damaged of the vitamins, says Dr. Johnson-vet pressure-cooking of vegetables results in a high retention of this vitamin.

Thirty-three Anaheim mington. homeowners Saturday began negotiation to secure title to their homes as the result of a decision in Orange County Superior Court Friday, All of the homes were involved in the trustee manipulation of the now defunct Mason Mortgage Co.

Judge Robert P. Kneeland issued an order releasing federally appointed trustee James H. Sauls Jr. from a court injunction. Under the injunction, Sauls couldn't foreclose upon the homes or negotiate with the home-contract holders.

modified, the way is clear for the 33 homeowners to begin negotiations with Sauls to secure clear title

The homeowners bought their property and then discovered the homes were en-cumbered with second-, thirdand fourth-trust deeds. The injunction was placed against the trusteeship to prevent the residents from losing them through foreclosures.

Dodgers, Yanks Dream 💫 of 1st $1 Million Series

The first million dollar World Series players pool could result this year if the Dodgers and the New York Yankees win their league pennants and meet for the world's championship.

And with the Dodgers scheduled to vacate the vast Los Angeles Coliseum with its 94,600-seat baseball capacity, 1961. could be the last season in which a million dollars would be the possible pot for players under present conditions.

All records for attendance, receipts, players' pool and winning and losing shares were set in 1959 when the Dodgers and Chicago White Sox met in the World

These marks were established with half the games being played in Comiskey Park where the largest attendance was 48,013 although the listed seating capacity is 46,-

Yankee Stadium has a seating capacity of 67,000 and probably would exceed that by a few thousand persons with temporary

The players' pool on the first four games of the 1959 Series was $892,365. Approximately 40,000 additional scats would be available for the first two games in Yankee Stadium as compared with Comiskey Park.

That would, with capacity crowds, increase the attendance for the first four games of a possible Dodger-Yankee Series to around 320,000 persons as compared with 280,425 for the first four games of the 1959 Series with the White Sox.

And the resulting increase in the players' pool would be close to $200,000, or a total of well above a million dollars.

It's no wonder that players on both the Dodger and Yankee clubs are rooting for each other to emerge as league champions. In the 1959 Series, a winning share for the players amounted to $11,231.18 and losing shares were worth $7,275.17.

Based on the possibility of a players

ool of more than a million dollars if the Dodgers-Yankee Series materializes, a winning share could be worth more than $13,-000 and a losing share around $8,500.

LAST YEAR WHEN THE Yankees lost the World Scries to the Pittsburgh Pirates, the winning shares were worth $8,417.94 or less than the possible losing shares in a Dodger-Yankee Series.

Aside from the financial gains that would come from a Dodger-Yankee Series, the Dodgers would like to meet the Bronx Bombers if they get into the World Series because of the opportunity for a triumphal return to New York.

And to baseball observers there existed no doubt that the Dodgers against the Yankees would fill both the Coliseum and Yankee Stadium to capacity every time they met.

So far as their pennant race is concerned, the Dodgers want to go into their new Chavez Ravine home as champions if at all possible and they are going to shoot the works to achieve that goal.

Kline No Angel to Orioles, 4-2

suffering Seraphs continued their pledge to do anything to keep Baltimore from the pennant by scoring a 4-2 victory Saturday night as Ron Kline found that if he was to return to the starting rotation in '61, then Baltimore was the best place to do it.

ACTUALLY, Rigney was in the clubhouse when Tom Morgan, who relieved Kline with one out and one on in the ninth, got the final outs. The Angels fiery boss had been given the heave-ho by first base umpire Joe Linsalata in the seventh inning for his remarks made from the dugout at plate umpire Charlie Berry after Leon Wagner had been called out on strikes.

Rams Laud 49er Rookies

REDLANDS-Two San Francisco 49er rookies monopolized most of the Ram coaches' drool Friday night as the mentors viewed the Eagle-All Star game with the press here.

The five coaches present (Don Paul was still recovering from surgery) decided that end Aaron Thomas and quarterback Bill Kilmer were the collegiate standouts. Only one other player got a nod—E. J. Holub, the beast from Texas Tech, who appropriately was nominated by a

"Bob Waterfield — "Nobody really impressed me on the All-Stars. The Eagles just shut them off at every turn. I was surprised the score (28-14) was so close, but it was no true indication of the big edge the Eagles had over the kids. If I had to pick one man that I -probably noticed more than the others it would have to be Kilmer, but then he's the quarterback and you have to notice him."

Tom Fears --"Kilmér looked real good to me. I was surprised he handled himself so well because he hasn't worked in that type of quarterback very long.

He looked like he's going to be a real top pro quarterback, either with or without Red Hickey's shotgun offense."

BOB WATERFIELD

"Nobody Impressed Me"

Hamp Pool-"Aaron Thomas impressed me. I thought he made some real pro catches against a tough defense." Jim David-"Being a good defensive coach, I give my vote to E. J. Holub. This kid moved around real good backing up the line, but I didn't think he had much opportunity. He's going to be a great one, I think: Too bad he wound up in the other league." (Holub was signed by Dallas of the AFL.)

Vic Lindskog-"Thomas gets my vote, with Kilmer a close second. Off that game, the 49er scouts should get a bonus for tabbing those two kids."

Publicist Jack Teele, the coach without portfolio, showed he was all heart by selecting Ram draftee Marlin McKeever as his top choice.

"There is no bias attached," claimed Teele, who was

WATERFIELD HAD SOME pertinent comments on the world champion Eagles, too.

"They miss Van Brocklin," declared Waterfield, never a lodge brother of the Dutchman. "Jurgensen is a good "quarterback, but he's no Van Brocklin. I don't think the Eagles will finish in the top three in the Eastern Division." The Ram coaches unanimously rooted for the Eagles to trim the college boys.

"It's a matter of pride," explained Fears, "The Eagles are pros and so are we. It's too embarrassing for all the pros if a bunch of green kids get together and whip the "We want to see our draftees look good, but we want the pro team to win every time."

WHENEVER A RAM ROOKIE distinguished himself, the coaches performed like college cheerleaders. On one play McKeever crashed like a Joe Schmidt or Les Richter. The TV room noise rattled in the rafters for many seconds and nearly shook the ice tea glasses from a few paws.

After watching the pros score twice on aerials to Tommy McDonald standing completely alone in the end zone, David the defensive man moaned:

"If those were my men, I'd cut their throats, Mc-Donald won't be that clear again even if he were playing catch with himself."

Another Ram-to-be, Pervis "Afterburner" Atkins, evoked "ohs" and "ahs" even though he was less than sensational. "He's a beautiful runner," remarked Waterfield, "real beautiful. He didn't set the world on fire against the Eagles, but he still ran with a beautiful motion.

The "Afterburner" wasn't, extinguished, but it flickered dangerously all night.

THE COACHES REALLY BLASTED the announcing i. iust like you and I.

"They've called half the plays wrong already," snorted Fears at halftime. "These guys must get $5,000 to handle this game and they can't even take the time to study the plays."

"They missed half the tackles and the ball carriers," sniffed Pool, "You'd think somebody'd tell 'em to check the jersey numbers some day."

Ole Kel should have been with us. The verbal blasts at the "other guys" this time would have pumped the Hoosier Irishman's ego higher than the balloon Brendan Behan uses for his sobriety tests.

BORDERTOWN DEBUT

Chargers, Houston Clash in San Diego

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—The San Diego Chargers make their debut in a new home town today in an exhibition clash against the American Football League champion

The game before an anticipated capacity crowd of 18,000 in Balboa Stadium is shaping up as an aerial duel between the league's top quarterbacks, Jack Kemp and Charger head coach Sid Gillman said, "we're going to have to play fine ball to beat them - but we're as ready as they are.'

Gillman is counting on the throwing of Kemp and the running of halfback Paul Lowe to spur the Chargers

"We're playing to win," Gillman said. "But we'll use rookies as we see fit.

The former Los Angeles Chargers won last year's exhibition game with Houston, split two close regular season games and lost the championship game against the Oilers 24-16.

Once Over Lightly By DAYL LEWIS

Chargers Still Face Financial Woes

HITTIN' THE HIGH SPOTS: Despite optimistic press releases by AFL commissioner Joe Foss regarding season ticket sales, the league appears doomed to another financial blood bath this year.

The loop dropped roughly $4 million in its first season a year ago and even though budgets of the eight clubs have dropped an estimated million dollars overall, the loss figures to be at least half of that suffered in '60.

JOE FOSS Remains Optimistic

It could be even worse in the event of runaway races such as expected in the Western Division, which the San Diego Chargers, late of Los Angeles, should win with little challenge from the other teams. Sid Gillman will have no excuses if he blows the championship.

The Chargers, of course, took the heaviest loss last year - $900,000. It won't be near that in San Diego, but there is growing con-cern that red ink will be used quite extensively by the bookkeepers.

. Although the Chargers will get free rent at Balboa Stadium plus the concessions, they'll have to virtually sell out the stadium for each league game to come close to breaking even. Their budget, which was planned at $750,000 for the second year, has soared to $1,200,000 because of the move to San Diego and the competitive bidding with the NFL for talent.

MEANWHILE, THE RENOVATION of the stadium, which includes double-decking to hoost the seating capacity to 35,000, is still several weeks from being completed. In fact, it may not be finished until sometime in October. A major delay would be disastrous. There will be less than 19,000 seats available for today's first exhibition game.

And as of the past week, the season ticket sale, optimistically predicted at more than 22,000 when the club was moved to San Diego, had reached only 8,500.

As of this time, it looks as if the league as a whole will lose around $2 million . . . the Chargers upwards of a quarter of a million.

NAT FLEISCHER, REGARDED AS the world's boxing authority, reveals the "inside story" of Paul Pender's loss to Terry Downes recently.

(Outdoors editor Donnell Culpepper is ill. Today's column was prepared by staff writers.)

After a passing mention that ocean fishing continues from very good to good to fair, with few returning disappointed, today seems appropriate to investigate the water fowl hunting situation.

A "moderate" decline in the waterfowl population is the prospect for the coming 12-month period, a U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service spokesman says. He estimates that moderate decline to be 15 to 20 per cent.

Cause is a prolonged drought in the Canadian and Alaskan breeding grounds where ducks for the Pacific flyway are hatched.

But there was good news, too, for waterfowl hunters. While the decrease in the duck population is a serious one, the coming fall season will see the largest geese population in the Pacific flyway in 15 years.

The government official, John Chattin, reported this to members of the eight-state Pacific Flyway Council. Spokesmen for the council indicated there will be agitation to increase the bag limits this season in spite of the negative overall reports.

One spokesman from California said he doubted the validity of Chattin's report.

An Oregon representative to the council said the waterfowl picture in his state was so bright that immediate action was needed to relieve overpopulation.

He said the mallard count has climbed from 800,000 to over 2,000,000 birds "and we'd like some way to harvest them.

All in all, the overall picture is somewhat confused.

CHATTIN reported that figures on last year's hunting season show a total waterfowl bag increase of seven per cent to about 2.6 million. All of the increase was in California. The other Western states reported a decrease in

A LONG BEACH angler saw his record wiped off the books in recent days. Ralph Chevalier's two-year record of yellowtail taken on a 10-pound test line in Schenley Sportsmen's Club International Spinfishing Assn. competition was topped.

Chevalier's catch was 21 pounds 2 ounces in 1959. The new record, confirmed last week, is 29-8. It went to Joe H. Glauber of Los Angeles. He too it near Catalina Island on June 6.

BREAKING down those "very good" to "fair" ocean fishing reports:

Anglers averaged 8.2 fish per season the past few days out of Newport Pier Sportsfishing. Barracuda catches have been "excellent" according to reports from Pierpoint. Same from Seal Beach. Pacific Landing says half-day boats have reported successful trips, taking barracuda,

THE 47 consecutive victories, an all-time record against collegiate competition, carried Oklahoma from the third game in 1953 until late '57 when Notre Dame called a halt, 7-0. The Irish had been the last previous team to defeat the Sooners, 28-21.

After losing the '48 opener to Santa Clara, Oklahoma went on a 31-game streak stopped by Kentucky in the 1951 Sugar Bowl game. The Sooners also won 14 in a row

Notre Dame finished a 39game unbeaten streak under coach Frank Leahy from 1946 until early 1950. The Irish were tied by Army and SC along the way.

Purdue proved the culprit. The Boilermakers ended that skein, 28-14, and also defeated: the Irish, 27-14, in 1954 which ended a 13-game unbeaten run. Notre Dame avoided a (Advertisement)

WHY "" IMPORTANT

REALTOR

A REALTOR pledges himself "to seek better to represent my clients by building my knowledge and competence."

Values, Financing, Termite Reports, Location, Trust Deeds, Trades, Exchanges. It requires years of study and experience to develop the "know-how" to handle even what seems like a simple deal and to give protection to both buyer and seller. A REALTOR is constantly attending meetings to learn more about the infinite details of buying and selling: A REALTOR is constantly exchanging ideas with other REALTORS. A REALTOR is constantly in touch through his Realty Board with contemplated changes and improvements in the community. These are important factors for you to consider when BUYING or SELLING:

Proposed World Exposition Entrance Zodys Department Store

PROPOSED SITE FOR a $110 Million Planet of Man International Exposition in 1966 would be on Pier J in Long Beach Harbor. The 311-acre Pier J isn't scheduled to be built until 1964 but the executives of the International Exposition of Southern California, Inc., has many plans drawn for the development, including the architect's rendering here of one of the entrances. The nonprofit organization would build the fair facilities and deed the buildings to the city for a permanent international trade center. Approval of the project site in Long Beach is pending before Congress. It was estimated that the year-long event would bring 50 million visitors to

Factory Workers Pay Gains

Earnings of factory workers in the Long Beach-Los Angeles metropolitan area climbed to an all-time high in June, in terms of both the gross weekly paycheck and its purchasing power, John F. Henning, California director of industrial relations, re-

Weekly earnings of manufacturing production workers rose by $1.46 from the record May average to a new high of $107.33 in June. The buying power of these earningsafter deducting federal and state taxes and adjusting for the rise in consumer pricestopped the previous record set in mid-1959 by a narrow margin.

BETWEEN June 1960 and lune 1961, gross earnings were up by $3.87 per week, or 3.7 per cent. Another deadline has been met—we mean Sunday, midnight—July 23—and the Seventh Annual I, P.T Cook Book is underway. One thousand and thirty-nine recipes cleared the postoffice that night to bring the total re-ceived to 5,672! The Cook Book will be published Sep-

Both women AND men responded generously, and the recipes are outstanding. This year space will be devoted to "measurements," "substitutions" and "equivalents" information determined needful from calls received by this department throughout the year.

Final judging of recipes will be August 14 by a panel of five home economists, following the selection of five recipes, from a classification of 38, by 36 leading women's and two men's organizations in Long Beach. The five final judges will be: Mmes, Aline Law Vosler, Young & Rubicam Advertising Agency, Los Angeles; Dorothy Furman, Public Relations Counselor, Los Angeles; Mabel Hoffman, Director of Home Economics Van tor of Cafeterias, Unified School District, Long Beach; and Barbara Clinton, Director Consumer Service, Western Growers Assn.

These newspapers hosted a tea several weeks ago at the Ridder home for representatives of these clubs, at which time they were instructed on their official contest duties. From the selection of winners will be two grand prize winners, and a first, second and third winner in each classification. All winners will be included in the Cook Book edition along with the entrants' names and addresses.

Our best thanks and appreciation go to the women and men who have tested, tasted and, yes, "toasted" during these hot summer days. They have cast calories to the winds and we know all our readers will agree, when they receive the special edition, that they did a grand

A representative from each of the judging clubs is pictorially presented in this section today or will be in the coming week.

Sorority Chapter Formed Architects Plan Luau

Gamma Phi Beta Alumnae are busy as the proverbial beavers with an immediate scholarship bridge on Thursday, and with long range arrangements for formation of a new chapter at Long Beach State College in September.

Mrs. Dale R. Leisy, immediate past president, is general supervisor of the colonization program which will begin with an opening tea on Saturday, Sept. 23, at the home of Mrs. Patricia Cameron, 4140 Country Club Drive. Mrs. M. F. Palmer is in charge.

EVENTS OF Gamma Phi Beta rush week will include an informal afternoon party Sept. 26 with Mrs. Richard Hoard as chairman, and a formal party Sept 28 at home of Mrs. Louis Hop-3750 Linden Ave., when UCLA chapter members will entertain.

On Friday afternoon, 29, rushing will be concluded with pledging of new members directed by Gretchen Boldman, president of USC chapter, assisted by chapter members and Long Beach alumnae. This event will be at the Soroptimist House on cam-pus, Mmes. J. Malcolm Johnson and Philip Fawcett will be chairman.

OTHER DUTIES in regard to the new chapter will be handled by Mrs. John F. McCarthy, house corpora-tion board chairman; and Mrs. G. M. Rastello, general membership chairman.
Mrs. Gerald Johnson,

Long Beach alumnae president, will be hostess to several national officers during the colonization including Mrs. Howard Wittenberg of Pasadena, grand president; Mary McCurley of Baltimore, Md., director of expansion; and Frances Waddill of Chicago, Ill., travcling secretary

With installation of the new chapter the sorority will have a total of 71 collegiate and 180 alumnae chapters throughout the U.S. and Canada. It is one of the oldest in the Panhellenic conference, having been founded 87 years ago at Syracuse University, Other California collegiate chapters are at Cal, UCLA, USC, Diego State,

Major & Minor Notes SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA IS HUNGRY FOR OPERA

By RACHEL MORTON

The other night, as I watched the Hollywood Bowl fill to near-capacity for the first time this season, when the opera "La Boheme" by Puccini was given, the thought came to me, "These are people hungry for opera and starved because of the scarcity of it." Here were thou-sands of people who had "bucked" traffic, waited patiently in long lines to buy tickets, and had paid well for the privilege of climbing high to their seats (unless, of course, they had paid more and were in boxes.)

This was the public's response to an evening of opera, sung in a foreign language and with only one famous name in the cast. From the shouts and applause at the end, one got the impression that the audience had had its money's worth. And yet, we have only one opera performance in the whole summer season of Hollywood Bowl

THE EXPLANATION might be given that opera is too costly. But the Bowl was practically full for "La Boheme," while the symphonic programs have been poorly attended,

Opera is popular in Los Angeles. Sold-out houses are the rule during the three-week visit of the San Francisco Opera season and there have been sold-out houses for the very limited season of lour performances of the Los Angeles Opera Company the past few years.

Why then do we not have a permanent opera company in Los Angeles? New York City has two opera companies, the Metropolitan and the New York City Opera Company. The city of Dallas has a flourishing opera company as have Chicago, Boston, St. Louis, Cincinnati and many others. San Francisco not only has built a beautiful opera house, but it gives a spring and fall opera season.

EVEN IN THE DESERT of New Mexico, five miles north of Santa Fe, there is a beautiful new opera house which gives a nine-week season of opera during the sum-The Opera Association pays an annual budget of $200,000 for these performances and is inordinately proud of its success. The operas are sung in English and the repertoire includes the standard works as well as novelties.

We are moving slowly toward the goal of opera in our own midst with the advent of a new opera house and music center in Los Angeles. But that won't become a reality for several years. Meanwhile, if we can't produce opera regularly to a hungry public now, how shall we produce it then? We have all the ingredients for a very successful permanent opera in Los Angeles; we have exceptional talent right here among us; we have a symphony orchestra ripe and willing for opera productions; a ready-made chorus of perfection, with its director, Roger Wagner. What then is the matter?

THE MATTER is MONEY and a lack of cultural sinterest. It takes money to run an opera company. But ingreater Los Angeles there is vast wealth among its citizenry. So it boils down to this: What is the matter with the wealthy citizenry? Why do they not form a corporation and back such an enterprise?

One could not expect support from the generous Los Angelenos who sponsor the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra. There should be a new and enthusiastic group formed of wealthy patrons of music in the Los Angeles area to create permanent opera. Then we might proudly take our place among the cultural cities of the nation.

Jini Dellaccio's sensitive photographs of people in the South Pacific — Tahiti, the Fiji Islands and Australia - are among 150 of her pictures which go on view this afternoon at the Armed Services YMCA, 520 W. Seaside Blvd. The exhibit will remain through August,

Mrs. Dellaccio has traveled extensively in the United States and in foreign countries on photographic assignments, Many times she has lived in native huts, eaten primitively prepared foods, and adopted local customs in order to establish an understanding of her subjects. The results of her efforts may be seen in portraits of Hindu children at play, a boomerang thrower, a robed Indian firewalker, people at work in Samoa

PRINCIPAL players are professional people in the musical and dramatic world. Milton Sager plays and sings the part of Zeus. His most recent appearances as a so-loist have been with the Schola Cantorum here in this city and at the Bach Festival of the First Congregational Church in Los Angeles.

Iris Lowis Eshelman plays Zeus' wife, Hera. She is contralto soloist at the First Presbyterian Church and has appeared with the Schola Cantorum and with the Long Beach Symphony in Messiah." Lucretia Vaughan takes the part of Aerona, daughter of Zeus. Mrs. Vaughan has a varied back-ground in both light opera and serious works.

Bob James has done solo work with the Schola Cantorum and other local groups. He sings the part of Jamus, the cup-bearer. A newcomer to Long Beach music circles is Marvin Kirshman, who plays the god Apollo, Kirshman had leads in "Oklaho-ma" and other musical productions at El Camino and Pepperdine colleges. Minor roles will be filled by Bob the gods, with a happy ending for a change."

OUR COVER

A rookie in the rugged game of professional football gets a few words of wisdom from a long-time pro as Dick Keelor (left on today's cover) pauses briefly in the wearing training camp grind at Redlands to talk with Les Richter, captain and smashing linebacker of the Los Angeles Rams: Keelor is getting a cherished chance to bid for a place on the stellar Rams' roster. He is remembered as 1959-1960 football captain and 1959 "athlete of the year" on the campus of Long Beach State College. He is one of 25 rookie candidates battling for only five or six berths available on the Rams squad, and it's a tough and exhausting life. For Keelor's thoughts and experiences as he undergoes make-orbreak indoctrination beneath the Redlands sun see P. 7.

LA REINA RULE

WHAT YOUR NAME MEANS

EAR MISS RULE: Please analyze KENYON.—G.D., Long Beach.

G. D.: KENYON has two sources. In England it is traced to the Celtic word "Ceinwen" meaning "splcndidly blond one." In Ireland, a similar source phrase "Ceann - Fhionn" described "white headed one." Robert Le Kenien of Lancashire was a 13th century forebear. This lineage were titled Lords Kenyon. Their coat-of-arms has a scallop-edged gold chevron between three silver crosses on a black shield, with the motto "Magnanimiter crucem sustine" meaning "Sustain the cross bravely."

DEAR MISS RULE: Have you data on ZERR and ZEHR? — B.Z., Lakewood; R.Z., Long Beach.

B.Z., R.Z.: ZERR and ZEHR go back to a German family whose ancestor was called Nazarius meaning "Nazarene or follower of Jesus Christ." Nazarius was shortened to the nickname Zar by use of its middle syllable. Zar was altered to Zarr, Zerr and Zchr in German dialect. The family coat-of-arms has two silver halberds (combined spears and battle axes) crossed on a red shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would you explain FRANCO.—L. F., Long Beach

L. F.: FRANCO, Italian in background, has two meanings, either "Son of the Free Man" or "Son of the Frenchman." The Franco coat-of-arms granted in medieval Venice has a silver stripe crossing the center of a green shield

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give the background of GREENWOOD.—R. P., Newport Beach; J. G., Long Beach.

R. P., J. G.: GREENWOOD is reminiscent of 13th century Britain. Writings of that period include, "He wakened Robin Hood in the grene wode (green wood) where he lay."

Grene-Wode depicted forest overgrown with green grass in the open spaces between the trees. The Greenwood coat-of-arms from Burgh Castle in Suffolk, and from Derby and Yorkshire has an ermine covered chevron between three silver "X" shaped crosses on a black shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: May we have data on THOMA-SON. — C. T., D. T., Long Beach; R. T., Westminster. C. T., D. T., R. T.: THOMA-SON or "Son of Thomas" is

C.T., B.T., R.T.: THOMA-SON or "Son of Thomas" is an old English name used first as a baptismal cognomen in honor of the Apostle St. Thomas whose name meant "Twin." Tax records of York-shire list Adam and John Thomasson sinc 1379. The Thomason shield from Cheshire has three silver doves with olive branches in their beaks on a diagonal, blue stripe across a silver shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would like the origin of VEDDER,

F. C., A. V., Long Beach, F. C., A. V.: VEDDER is German in background. The source was an early nickname given to a beloved member of a family who was known simply as "Vedder" meaning "relative" or "male cousin," No coat-of-arms is recorded for Vedder.

"There must be a place for me out there." So muses Dick Keelor, ex-captain and star guard at Long Beach State College, as he looks out across the Los Angeles Rams training field at Redlands University.

Keelor practices a block on Lamar Lundy, veteran of many Ram battles.

A PALM TREE may be big in Long Beach, but put it among the redwoods, and it's just another little tree.

There is a small forest of human redwoods at the University of Redlands this summer . . . species, professional football players belonging to the family of Rams.

One of them, however, feels more like a palm tree. He is Dick Keelor, former star guard, "athlete of the year" and two-year captain of the Long Beach State College football team.

"At times, on the field, I have the certainty that I must be the smallest man on the squad," says Keelor. "I try to stand tall and look big, despite the fact that I know I weigh 250 pounds,"

AT LBSC, Keelor was a BIG man. Now, the 24-yearold Redondo Beach resident, is "expending a jillion calories and working like the lo realize the slim hope of becoming one of five or six of 25 rookies who will make the squad,

For a million boys - and another million dads-here's what it's like in a day in the life of a rookie professional footballer, a la Dick Keelor:

The alarm clock goes off in Dick's room in "Rookieville," the top floor of the Rams' modern three-story campus dormitory.

Keelor: "I get up about 15 minutes earlier than most of the other players in order to study my play book and read newspapers. We don't watch television or listen to the radio here, so the news-papers are our only means of keeping up with current af-

BREAKFAST in the campus cafeteria is at 7 o'clock. Dick's normal fare is three poached eggs, two slices of toast and hot tea.

Keelor: "You shouldn't eat il too much breakfast, because you have to go on the field 'in'a short time, and complete "five minute banshenies pe-

After breakfast, Dick returns to his room to rest and study plays again.

Keelor: "A professional football team has a great number of complicated plays and formations. For a rookie to miss an assignment in practice is a cardinal sin."

At about 8:10 a.m., he heads for the training room to have his ankles taped . . . one and one-half rolls of tape to each ankle. Then he walks to the Ram locker room in the Redlands Gymnasium to put on his uniform.

Keelor: "It was a thrill to put on the Ram uniform for the first time, especially the helmet with the Ram horn insignia. It was kind of symbolic of the status you're trying to attain."

The uniform consists of jersey, shoulder pads, hip pads, pants with built-in thigh pads, shoes and hel-

Keelor: "Some of the players would like to have less padding because it weighs so much and decreases your speed. But self-preservation dictates it, especially if you're a lineman going to get hit from all sides. I really admire the defensive backs who use little padding. They are a gritty little bunch trying to tackle men twice their size. I guess they operate on the principle that a jeep going 90 miles an hour hits harder than a bus going 20."

ONCE ON the practice field, Dick runs three laps of 110 yards each, to warm up riod follows under the direction of offfensive line coach Vic Lindskog.

Keelor: "Toward the end of the exercises, all the play-ers are alert for the sound of Coach Bob Waterfield's whistie. The instant it sounds, we all sprint to the opposite goal post. The last man gets razzed, and no rookie wants to be last or is looking for a razzing. It is amazing how fast some of the bigger players are. John LoVetere (290 pounds) runs by me as if he was on a horse."

Team practice begins for Dick with pounding of a line sled, a connected plank of dummies which moves with the body contact of the charging players. Then the players individually assault the

"White Whale," a mammoth, 250-pound dummy, to strengthen their forearms and get the feel of heavy contact. Formal team drills begin normally with an offensive unit taking on a defensive unit.

Keelor: "It was really a big thing the first time I got into the huddle and looked up to see Jon Arnett and Ollie Matson or stood on the line next to Les Richter and Art Hunter. As a kid, I used to think great football players are invincible. But now I know they are just normal people doing a tremendous job.'

MORNING DRILL ends about 11:10 a.m. and the players shower, dress and go to lunch, which consists mainly of sandwiches and salads. Salt tablets - muscle cramp preventives-go with lunch.

Post-luncheon routine is similar to the morning procedure.

Keelor: "I usually sleep for 45 minutes, and try to keep off my feet when I'm awake. Every time you walk, your heart beats faster and you're burning up energy. I want to conserve every ounce of my resources for the call to the field. Some of the players play cards; listen to records and shoot the breeze. I'd rather study the plays."

Afternoon practice begins at 2:50 p.m., preceded by taping, dressing and another three-lap run. The searing Redlands heat is now a major factor, and it is amazing how well the players stand up in practice in the 100degree temperature.

Keelor: "One of the funny things about afternoon practice is the water call. When the coach blows the whistle, the players charge at a tiny

J. Paul Getty installs pay phone station for guests at his mansion

Billionaire at Home

By Eddy Gilmore
Associated Press Writer

TINDERSTANDABLY, the entrance to the home of the richest man in the wold is barred by a pair of tall steel gates.

Modestly woven into the gilt and old rose grill work atop the portal's towering black bars is the name of the great estate: "Sutton Place,"

It nestles in the leafy countryside of the gentle County of Surrey, 30 miles southwest of London,

Two years ago American oilman
J. Paul Getty (he helped develop the pool at Santa Fe Springs) bought Sut-ton Place from George Grenville Sutherland-Leveson-Gower, fifth duke of Sutherland.

The price was about $2,800,000 and the staggering sum included a 500-year-old Tudor mansion, a house in which kings and queens have dined and made merry

Unlike many of Britain's stately homes, it is not open to the public. Billionaire Getty hardly needs the small coins charged by some of Britain's hard-pressed gentry to view their historic mansions. But he's not above making his guests drop coins in a pay telephone for any calls they make.

FORTUNE MAGAZINE bás called Getty the richest man in the world. Of his wealth, which he will discuss only with painful reluctance, he says:

"If I did sell out today, I'd hope to get several billion dollars."

Get it? Billions, not just measly old millions.

"It's bad form to brag about having money," philosophizes the oilman.
"One just doesn't do it."

From the front gate -- which swings open on well-oiled tracks after a go-ahead from the manor, the road to Getty's Tudor pile is paved and it's nearly two miles long. At its end stands Sutton Place, a mansion of old brick and stone, loned down by time to a color between a soft dark red and purple.

Ring and after two or three minutes a butler, straight out of the movies, with starched collar and morning clothes, appears and leads the way through a vestibule, down a spacious corridor and into a huge room looking out through leaded windows on to the front garden.

PRETTY GIRL IN a pink dress is sitting in a deep chair, which is upholstered in a heavy material the color of magnolia leaves that have seen a

"Good afternoon," she says, agree-But she does not introduce herself. The butler disappears through a side door, his well-polished shoes sliding noiselessly over the wall-to-wall camel-colored carpeting.

"What a miserable day," the girl observes. "Rain all the time. Nothing but rain."

The room is superb with old masters adorning the pine-panelled walls and comfortable furniture abounding.

Reappearing as silently as he left, the butler sets a table for tea.

At 64, his figure is spare and straight, his well-tailored suit subdued, and slightly old fashioned.

ABOUT HIS LONG, thin face there's a sort of melancholy resolu-tion. His eyes are blue-green. The nose is long and broad at the base above thin but well-shaped lips.

His voice is soft and modulatedthe accent of a man from the American Southwest who's spent a lot of time in foreign lands.

He sips the tea but he passes up the sandwiches and cake while urging them on you.

After some chit-chat, he says: "Come, let me show you the house."

The great library, with its minstrel galley and its priceless furniture, is

The old flag-stoned floor has gone. False ceilings have been installed with bright fluorescent lighting. All the equipment is American. There are four stainless steel sinks. Stacks of wall ovens and counter cooking tops and a new deep freeze room. The ancient butler's pantry-once dark and gloomy--is a pretty blue and white.

"Now let's go outside," says the master.

His bathroom-one of 10 he's installed - has mirrored elaborate onyx fittings.

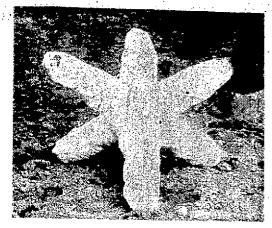

"And now," says Getty, "I must show you the telephone pay station I've installed."

It's near the butler's pantry, for the use of guests, employes and workers.

"The guests won't mind paying for their calls," he says, "and as for the deadheats, I couldn't care less."

Cholla

By Jack B. Kemmerer

HOLLA (pronounced "choyah"), a game being played on cattle and dude ranches in the West, has been called the "roughest game since the days of Cortez." This is a sweeping statement inasmuch as sport-minded athletes have cudgeled their brains for centuries to find fiercer and more claborate methods of committing mass mayhem under the name of sport. Cholla, patterned somewhat like polo, is a contest that rates high on the list.

Cholla requires steady nerves, great courage, expert horsemanship and the ability to think and act with split-second speed.

Little equipment is needed to play it—except it is wise to have a paid-up accident insurance policy. The game is played in chukkers lasting seven minutes each with six stout-hearted horsemen on the field — three on each side. Other than the players' lariats, their mounts and four makeshift goalposts the only other equipment necessary is the cholla itself.

The cholla is a device looking like a sixlegged iron contraption standing two feet high and heavily padded with leather or canvas. It must not weigh in excess of 15 pounds and looks like an oversized version of the jacks used in children's games.

SOME PERSONS dispute the exact origin of the game and many claim it came with Cortez and his Spanish conquistadores when they invaded the New World. According to these experts, Cortez wasn't trying to entertain the crowds but wanted some spectacular means of impressing the native populace with the courage and skill of his horsemen.

In more recent years, several westerners have claimed credit for inventing cholla but Paul Coze, cowboy-writer-ethnologist of Phoenix, is generally credited with being the first to introduce the version now being played.

Coze's hobby had long been fancy roping, which he learned—strangely enough—in Alexandria. Egypt. When asked how he thought of playing cholla his answer was a question in return. "What does one do if one gets tired of roping a stake or old saddle? What does one do if there are no calves or goats or if one is too polite to rope a dog, or too ambitious to rope a chicken?"

In 1938, Coze was staying at the Camelback Inn in Phoenix. One windy day he was riding idly through the desert when a piece of "jumping cactus"—known as cholla—broke loose and "spooked" his horse as it went sailing by. In a matter of seconds Coze instinctively threw his lariat and roped the piece of elusive cactus. While he didn't realize it immedately, this was the beginning of the game of "Cholla."

SHORTLY AFTER his roping experience with the jumping cactus, Coze began to think of the possibilities of a game when a man's skill at both roping and riding would be utilized. He bought a large rubber ball, tried to tie ropes around it so it would still roll but it wouldn't work, as the lariat loop would not take hold.

It was then that it dawned on him—why not make a "cholla" and use that—without the sticky sharp spines, of course. The idea appealed strongly and he even decided that "cholla" would make a good name for the new game.

Coze discussed the novel idea with many of the guests of the Camelback Inn. From these discussions the rudiments of the game began to appear. This would be polo, only with a rope instead of a mallet. The cholla would be rolling along with the ropers fighting over its possession.

Among the guests at that time was Bob Zuppke, famed football coach from Chicago. Zuppke suggested that the game be played something like football with touchdowns, time outs, penalties and regular periods.

FROM THE beginning the game caught on

quickly through the western part of the United States with the major activities being in Arizona, New Mexico and California. By the time World War II started there were 16 organized teams in the field ranging from Texas to Oregon.

It was only natural that a game of this type would catch the eye of the more rugged type of Hollywood western film stars. They quickly organized a team, figuring that their prowess in the saddle would wow their fans. After a bit of practice they challenged a team from one of the Arizona ranches, inviting the veteran players to come out to Hollywood and get the drubbing of their lives.

But, alas for the celluloid heroes, somebody switched the script on them! Every one of the glamour gauchos quit cold after the initial chukker in the very first game with the seasoned visitors and went limping off the field in search of liniment, splints, and sympathy.

When studio moguls heard of the game they

After dinner, the players relax while waiting for the 8 o'clock squad meeting.

Keelor: "I try to rest and study the plays some more. Some of the players play ping pong, and a few practice their golf shots on the lawn. A few are good singers, and have fun harmonizing."

AT THE SQUAD meeting, Coach Waterfield and his staff show slides of plays and formations on a large screen in the dormitory lounge. Questions are asked, and tests given. The meeting normally lasts until 9:15.

Keelor: "After the meeting, I always call my wife at home. She's teaching school at Redondo Beach this summer. She asks me first if I'm hurt, and then how am I doing. We've been married for three years, so being separated isn't too bad. My roommate, Bruce Olderman, has been married for only four weeks, and it's tough on him."

The players get ready for bed at about 10:30 p.m. Curfew is at 11, and trainer George Mencfee conducts a bed-check.

Keelor: "Falling asleep is hard at times. It's warm, and you are thinking about the day's activities, and worrying about your status. A standing joke among the rookies is that there will come a knock on your door in the middle of the night to inform you that you've been cut from the squad . . or you'll wake up in the morning to find your name has been removed from the doorplate. The way I feel is that one can only do the best he's capable of, letting the chips fall where they may."

SOUTHLAND HOMES

Mountain Cabin That Stays Home

When Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Peluso are not "roughing it" in their back-yard "mountain cabin," they have this comfortable living room and music room for "city" living.

Which Mr, and Mrs. Jerry Peluso, 3301 Golden Ave., incorporated in their home. They enjoy vacationing in a mountain cabin and, since they do not relish the thought of driving distances involved in such a trip, they built a cabin near a large pine tree in their own back yard.

The home itself is modest and interesting. Innovations throughout, created and executed by Mrs. Peluso, add function and attractiveness to every room. The neat exterior with the white picket fence enclosing the small front yard makes observers think in terms of "Home Sweet Home."

The front door opens directly into the living room. To the right rear, where once a door opened into a bedroom, the entire walt has been removed to add space and create what is now the music room. The dining room is directly to the left of the living room.

A FEW treasured antiques, mostly family heirlooms that came from Italy, have been blended with newer pieces in the furnishings. Also, old pieces that had no particular claim to distinction have been remodeled to fit in with the Victorian decor. In the living room, for example, an old, but good couch has been redesigned with Victorian curves in the back pillows. It blends with the two gold upholstered Victorian chairs that flank it. Upholstering in the couch is now brown silk.

The coffee table in front of the couch is marble topped. Crisp white lace curtain panels cover the windows. At this point it is fitting to mention one of Mrs. Peluso's ingenious devices: A window at one side of the wall behind the couch unbalanced the appearance of the room. Mrs. Peluso installed a false window in the area, complete with curtains and shade, so thus the real window has a "twin" on the other side.

THE MUSIC ROOM has plenty of room for a grand piano. They have managed to obtain a hi-fi tone from their old radio in a clever manner. The radio was too new to be considered an antique and too old to be attractive in the room. An unused closet in the music room (formerly a bedroom) houses the radio, and the front of the closet is draped. The music coming from behind the drapes has a fine tone, not unlike a hi-fi unit.

Four feet were added to the kitchen, forming a long narrow dinette area. A glass top table was redesigned to fit the area which is pleasant and inviting with windows in back of the table. The washing machine that had to be in the kitchen is serving a double purpose. Mrs. Peluso made a plastic tile top over a heavy wood base which fits over the top of the machine, thus making it a handy work area. A false cupboard covers the plumbing in back of the machine.

One bedroom has a canopy bed with a nylon ruffie. In the other bedroom Mrs. Peluso took the head and foot rails from an old brass bed and made headboards for the twin beds in the room.

THE BACK YARD is large enough to accommodate the large tree. Only eight years old, the tree is already about 60 feet high. The cabin that faces the tree is appropriately called Bent Pine. The living room part of the cabin is in a single unit that could, if the occasion arose, be moved onto a truck and transported to another spot. The Pelusos enjoy their yard so much that it is doubtful that they will ever move the cabin.

White pickets inclose this interesting home and yard. An old stove, painted white, iron chairs add to charm.

Authenticity is lent to this "mountain cabin" by the 60-foot pine tree that branches protectively over it.

The cabin is compact and equipped with an attractive ordinated with an attractive provincial print couch, chest of drawers, TV set, bookshelves, closet and knickknacks for decorative purposes. The porch (or patio) in front has outside furniture for barbecues.

A separate entrance at one side leads to the kitchen and bath. This area was created from a part of the garage, and is complete to the smallest detail. There is a kitchen table and chairs, sink and stove (all cabin size), cupboards, port-able shower and bathroom equipment.

With this permanent vacation spot a few feet from their door the Pelusos have no problem of boarding dogs, combatting traffic or jousting for accommodations in the busy resort season. In addition to this feature, the cabin also provides for occasional overnight guests.

Glimpse within the cabin: Furnishings include a couch, TV, chest of drawers and (not shown) closet, shelving.

Silver Chest Forebear

By Helen L. Gillum

household does not consider her home well furnished unless she owns a handsome silver chest in which to store the family flatware. Years ago, however, a sideboard cabinet called a "knife box" was the proper piece of equipment in every well-appointed home. Usually found in pairs, these clegant items with their slotted interiors held knives and other silverware, such as forks, spoons, and carving implements. Because of their unique design, they were made only by the most skilled cabinetmakers, and were, of course, very costly.

The knife box pictured with this article belongs to Mrs. Wilma Hastings of 3511 E. Ist St., who purchased it several years ago at an antique show Although the box bears no date or mark it is in the style of Adam and goes back to about 1790. Soon after Mrs. Hastings purchased the box, she noticed a yellowed, tightly-folded bit of paper wedged deep within one of the recesses. After several attempts with tweezers and nail-file, she managed to recover the crumpled scrap. On it was written the words, "Pedmore Hall, Worcestershire, England."

ORIGINALLY, these curious boxes were designed in pairs to stand upon pedestals, one at each end of the side table. One was used for ice-water, while the other held hot water in which the butler washed the silver for re-use in the next course. Later, perhaps when silver became more plentiful, both boxes were used to hold knives, forks, and spoons.

Famous designers of the times, such as Adam, Hepple-white, and Shearer employed their genius to produce beautiful boxes of various sizes and shapes. The classical, urnshaped hoxes made popular by Adam were particularly favored. Many were elaborately carved or inlaid and fitted with silver handles,

ARCHITECT'S Sketchbook

Inexpensive materials go into these modern hanging lamps.

TODAY'S PROBLEM — What's an inexpensive way to get dramatic lighting?

CHAMP NEWSBITT, New York City architect, answers:

Lighting is one of the most important elements in decorating a room, yet often it is ignored in redecoration. Most people simply decorate around the light fixtures present in a room, not realizing how big a difference new shapes and modern "area lighting" can make.

Shown in the photograph are three different dramatic hanging lamps, any one of which the average person could make quickly and inexpensively. Materials for an entire unit, less the light cord which will vary in length, come to about $1.35.

THE LAMPS may be used singly or in combination, with one or more styles in each group. Materials required are a stiff plastic coated paper, an ordinary hanging light socket, some hardware cloth, a short piece of copper wire and a bit of fishing leader. Following the directions on the plan, it's easy to get a professional-looking result.

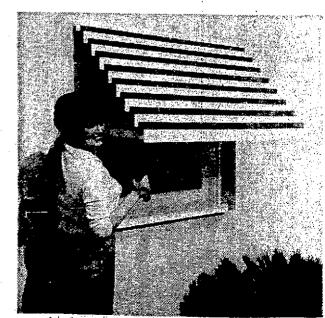

To order, specify Hanging Lamp Plan S-15 and send name and address and 50 cents to Building Editor, Independent, Press-Telegram, 6th & Pine, Long Beach 12, Calif.

WORLD WAR II naturally disrupted the game, but it came back strongly after the war. One of the top cholla champions and high-point men of the game was an Italian-American baker, Tony Zanetti, of Victorville.

The original rules of the game were extremely sketchy and almost non-existent. With this setup it was only natural that it became a very rough sport and even Coze broke his leg during one game be-ing played in the rain.

Today, however, ther rules have been expanded and much of the rough play eliminated. The game is played with three players on each side and a rectangular field with 200 feet between the goal posts is standard. The referee is mounted and gives signals by whistle. He can stop the game at any time for an infraction of the rules.

The game is started by placing the cholla in the center between the two goals, with the two teams at each end of the field. When the whistle blows the first roper tries to rope the cholla and to drag it through the goal, Once through the goal, the roper turns and comes back through the goal, down to the other end and back through repeating until he has scored three goals. He receives one point for the first goal, two points for second, and three points for third making a total of six points if he scores all three goals.

IN THE MEANTIME, his opponents are trying to rope the cholla and pull it back in the opposite direction to begin their series of three goals—also his teammates are trying to ride the opponents off the cholia in order to give him an open shot at the goals.

The cholla is placed in the center after each series of goals is scored, if the cholla gets loose before a goal is scored, the game goes on as a free-for-all.

It is in these free-for-all maneuvers that the rough-and-tumble elements of the game take place. Almost anything short of outright murder is allowed by the rules. Spills and broken hones seem to have little effect on California claret and fruit juices are combined in punchbowl that centers cheese-cracker snack array.

FOOD

Punch for Summer

By Mildred K. Flanary

ALIFORNIA has given the traditional summer wine bowl, a custom that dates back many generations, a touch of the Golden West. It's claret mixed with fruit juices-both California produced.

But what if you don't have a punchbowl? If you're not one of the lucky few to inherit great-grandma's silver, you can improvise a very gay punchbowl with the help of gaily-colored aluminum foil gift wrap. As shown in the picture, you simply take an ordinary kitchen bowl—per-haps a mixing bowl — and measure its circumference, cut a strip of foil long enough to go around the bowl twicethen pleat it to fit the bowl, as shown. Put a band of double-faced cellophane tape around the outside edge of the bowl. Press the pleated piece around this tape. Cut another strip about six inches wide. This is pleated and forms the circle around the base of the bowl. Tie on a piece of con-

An interesting thing about claret is its name. The original name was vin clairet which means, simply, clear wine. Straight from the bottle with a springtime meal or snack, claret is a mild-flavored, thirst-quenching drink with enormous popular appeal.

FOR THE PUNCHBOWL, start with a bottle of California claret. Add three cups of orange juice, fresh or frozen, a third of a cup of lemon juice, a half cup sugar and a quart bottle of ginger ale. Add some ice. Garnish with lemon slices. Use kitchen cups, paper cups if you're in the patio or on the porch, or short, slurdy glass tumblers. You'll get about 25 servings from this recipe so plan accordingly.

This punch is suitable for a buffet luncheon or dinner, at cocktail time with snacks or tea cakes, and as a charming centerpiece for a summertime celebration.

SOUTHLAND TRAVELER

A Toast to Santa on the Pacific

By Fred Taylor Kraft

THERE'S always a best time to travel to specific places, and probably the best time to cruise in the Pacific is this fall

We're thinking about five holiday cruises aboard three Iuxurious American President Lines ships which combines... the gaiety of holidays at sea, travel in the fascinating far places of the Orient at a particularly inviting time of the year, plus--and this must not be overlooked--a 25 per cent reduction in fares!

First ship to sail on the junkets is the all-first class President Hoover which lifts anchor at San Francisco Nov. 4 and returns to the Golden Gate Dec. 16. This, it should be noted, provides time for Christmas shopping in the Orient and gets-you back foryour own Yule festivities.

On the other hand, the President Cleveland sails from Los Angeles Harbor Nov. 15, observing Thanks-giving and Christmas at sea. Annual APL Christmas and New Year's cruises will be on the President Wilson, sailing Dec. 10 from Los Angeles, and aboard the President Hoover, leaving San Francis-co Dec. 21. A Dec. 30 President Cleveland cruise starts off with a rousing New Year's Eve party.

ON THESE cruises the three handsome liners will cali at Honolulu; Yokohama and Kobe, Japan; Manila, P.I., and Hong Kong.

It is interesting to know that Japan will be intriguing with its white topped Mt. Fuji, sumo wrestling season, and the exotic Christmas ritual at Oseibe, an exchange of gifts and good will.

Hong Kong's great port will be toured, her famous restaurants and night life savored, and there will be swimming and sun bathing on her beaches. The Philippines will wear her most lovely verdant green dress, with the summer rains over ols, visits from Santa, and long - to - be - remembered holiday parties.

APL'S LUXURY liner President Roosevelt is now being completely rebuilt and glamorized at a cost of $9 million, and will be back in service early next year.

Comfortably spaced through five docks over a 610-foot hull will be completely airconditioned accommodations and public rooms, all first class. The 186 staterooms and suites are spread over the Sun Promenade, Main, "A" Sun, Promenade, Main, "A" and "B" Decks. The dining room and galley are being completely renovated and the most modern facilities installed.

The rebuilding, now more than half completed, is going on at Puget Sound Bridge and Dredging Co., Scattle.

COME SEPTEMBER, popular Scandinavian Airlines System, will introduce DC-8 jet service to the Far East via Karachi, Calcutta, Bangkok and Manila, cutting travel time between Europe and Southeast Asia nearly in half. In addition to providing the tourist with fabled oddities seen nowhere else, the Far East has become one of the great shopping areas of the world. Save your rupees for

"We're going to Europe... does my 18-year-old son need a summer formal for a cabinclass ship crossing?"

NO, NOT a summer formal. I fake it with a linen sport coat and dark slacks. Add a bow tie and he'll be as comfortable and well dressed as if he had a $300 tuxedo.

N SHARP contrast to much of the Pollyanna type of travel literatures is a very different booklet called "In Mexico, It's the Custom, Senor,' published by the North American Committee for Mexico, a non-profit organization of U.S. businessmen and residents in Mexico

Frank and informative, it shows what sincerely inter-ested individuals in foreign countries can do by way of fostering more intelligent, rewarding tourism without resorting to telling visitors only what they want to hear.

Much of what the committee has to say applies to the rest of Latin America also. For example:

"Mexicans think of people as individuals first . . . primarily as a man and only secondarily as a waiter, a cab driver or hotel clerk....Mexicans find it hard to grasp the North American habit of thinking of people in terms of their function first.

"Once you understand this basic outlook . . .you'll find that the behavior of the people, their ways and customs and social conventions all form part of a clearly-defined, consistent cultural pattern, easy to grasp, enjoyable to live with."

Some other pointed hints:

TAXIS-You don't whistle for one, just wave or hiss softly. And be prepared for the drivers' code, "Let it be a short ride and a merry one."

SERVICE - Mexicans neither expect nor want to be served with speed. It's the custom to make more of a ceremony of meals than North Americans do.

TIPS - "Mexicans expect tips for many services that we would take for granted, for the people who depend mainly on tips for their subsistence make up a much larger part of the population. . When in doubt, tip."

SHOPPING-"Save at least 40 per cent of your spendable cash for the hinterlands. Prices often are lower in smaller communities."

Big Bear Route

Recreation facilities in the Big Bear Lake area has greater accessibility with the opening recently of State Hwy. 38, the Automobile Club of Southern California reports.

The old highway from Redlands to Barton Flats, not heretofore designated with a state highway number, and the new portion from Barton Flats to Big Bear City are posted as Hwy. 38.

Big Bear is accessible now over Rim of the World Drive (State Hwy. 18) past the Crestline and Arrowhead areas; City Creek Rd. (Hwy. 30) from Patton through Running Springs; or from Apple Valley and Lucerne Valley over Hwy. 18.

to 3 p. m. Of late, especially in the cities, a valiant attempt has been made to keep working hours from 9 to 5. But in the small towns the modern ways remain thoroughy ignored

BUSINESS -- "Friendliness and an unpretentious manner are always in fashion, but extreme casualness . . . belongs at home, not in the office." However, "chit-chat is not irrelevant, and one who omits it in his haste to get down to business is considered brusque, if not downright rude."

LADIES -- It's not a good idea to go places unescorted except in the heart of Mexico City during the day. At night it's definitely unwise. And ladies are not expected to be seen in bars. Nor should they wear slacks except in the most informal circumstances.

PICTURES - Ask before taking shots of government buildings, churches and military installations. The same goes for individuals, who don't like to be considered quaint sights any more than you would back home.

BANDITS - Despite the movies, there aren't any more highwaymen than there are at home.

DRIVING-Highway checkpoints, we are told, are not a sign of tyranny but a check against abuses by over-thcborder commuters. We are also warned to prepare for uncooperative pedestrian traffic in the hinterlands, and to be detained in the event of an accident

Don't Pin a Halo on Lost Partner

By Vera Williams

ARE YOU a P.W.P.—Parent Without Partner?

Are you a parent who has lost a partner through death or divorce?

Don't stay home and mope. Circulate . . . Make yourself as attractive as you can . Entertain, even if it's a pot-luck dinner . . . Seek the company of adults . . . Don't shut your mind to the prospect of another marriage,

You may not agree with this advice. Jim and Janet Egleson who were PWP's before they married each other, don't expect you to agree with anything they say as a matter of fact they often don't agree with each other. But they collaborated on "PARENTS WITHOUT PARTNERS, a Guide for Divorced, Widowed or Separated Parents" (Dutton, $4.50) as realistic as a brick wall,

Rule 1: Don't pin a halo on dead partner, Remember there were rough times as well as good ones. Rule 2: Don't moan about a divorce. There might not have been a divorce if you had tried harder to make your marriage work. Rule 3: Don't give up everything for your children. They don't want you to, and won't appreciate it if you do.

There is down-to earth advice on separation agreements, visitation rights, property division, child support.

Egleson is one of the founders of PWP, Inc. which start-ed five years ago in New York as a forum to discuss the problems of divided and one-parent families. It grown to a national organization with 40 chapters.

IN AFFLUENT societies, families debate about whether they can afford color television or a second car. In backward societies, families debate about whether they can afford a second daily meal, "THE BACKWARD SO-CIETY" by Raymond Frost (St. Martin, $5) tells the story of two-thirds of the world's population, living in Latin America, Africa and Asia, and accounting for only a small part of the world's production, trade and wealth. It contrasts sharply with the other third of the world's popula-tion, living in North America, Europe, Russia and Japan which produces and enjoys the greater part of the world's riches. Apart from humanitarian reasons, affluent people should help down-on-theirluck people because a large number of poor and unstable nations constitute an imminent danger to world peace, warns the author.

U.S. AND WORLD Publications, Inc. in cooperation with the International Advisory Council has issued an illustrated question - and - answer book about the United States, "THE U.S.A. ANSWERS—A Guide to Understanding,"

edited by Kenneth E. Beer (cloth, $5; paper, $2.50.) The guidebook provides answers to 1,800 questions most frequently asked about the United States by people abroad. The questions and answers were developed from the research of 50 government and independent fact-finding agencies for use at the American Exhibition in Moscow in 1959. The material also will he distributed at the Italia '61 Centennial Exhibition in Turin this summer.

GERMAINE TILLION, whose "Algeria: The Realities" won her recognition as an authority on the Algerian conflict, has written "FRANCE AND ALGERIA: Complementary Enemies' (Knopf, $3.) The new book includes two interviews with Algerian rebel leader Saadi Yacef, in which the author's recollections of her experiences as a member of the French Resistance during World War II provide a striking counterpoint to her attitudes toward terrorism, assas-sination and torture, "France and Aigeria" casts light on recent history as well as on contemporary social and economic concerns and the future of today's emerging "inde-pendent" nations.

A MEDICAL practice ranging from battlefields to luxury hotels is described by Dr.

E. Martinez Alonzo in "MEM-OIRS OF A MEDICO" (Doubleday, $4.50.) Dr. Alonso, who grew up in Spain and Scotland, was educated in England. then returned to Spain and accepted a surgical post at the invitation of Queen Ena. Outbreak of civil war plunged him into a frontline surgical unit. In World War II he was medical advisor to the British and American embassies and he organized an escape route from France to Portugal-which he ultimately had to use. He now is hotel doctor at the Castellano Hilton in Madrid, treating tourists tummyaches.

WHAT'S THE MATTER with a 6-year-old boy picking out a bride for his father, and prodding him on to marriage? Nothing believes Mark Toby, New York television and radio writer, who makes his de-but as a novelist in "THE but as a novelist in "THE COURTSHIP OF EDDIE'S FATHER" (Geis, $3.50.) It's an amazing courtship, involving quite a few off-beat characters, chuckles, laughs and a sympathetic tear or two.

"THE CUSTARD BOYS" by John Rae (Farrar, Straus, Cudahy, $3.95) is a sensitive novel about a Jewish-Austrian refugee lad of 14 who is evacnated to a Norfolk village and there falls in with boys who play war games and live by a harsh military code. The

Mary and Peter, sister and brother from Barbados, only survivors of an airplane crash in the Australian meet a bush boy holding a wallaby he has just killed in "WALKABOUT," James Yance Marshall's new novel. already a minor classic in England. (Doubleday, $2.50.)

NATHANIEL BENCHLEY

The son of Robert Benchley is author of a new novel "THE OFF-ISLANDERS" (McGraw - Hill, $4.50), the story of a Russian "invasion" of an island off the coast of New England. It has drama and high humor.

WILL TOURISTS stay at a resort where there is no recreation, but an abundance of good food? Elsie Materson says they will and her Blueberry Hill Farm at Brandon, Vt. advertises "Nothing What-ever To Do" and "Lucullan Food." You may already know Elsie through her previous books "Nothing Whatever To Do" and "Blueberry Hill Cookbook." Now she has a new one, "KEEP OFF MY TOES!" (Little, Brown, $4.50) in which she describes an involvement in the local oneroom school system, and tells anecdotes about visitors and employes at Blueberry Hill. Robert Frost is one of the euests

THE 16th ANNUAL collection of "THE BEST DETECTIVE STORIES OF THE YEAR" edited by Brett Halliday (Dutton, $3.95) lives up to the anthology's excellent reputation, Especially recom-mended: Henry Slesar's "Wel-come to Our Bank"; Bryce Walton's "Suit of Armor: Size 36"; Richard M. Gordon's "Apres Moi, La Bombe."

A LIVELY BOOK, fresh, modest, thoughtful and sensitive" says Robert Oppenheimer of "ATOMS AND MEN" by Louis Leprince-Ringuet (University of Chicago Press, $3). The author, an atomic energy commissioner in France, internationally known atomic physicist, writes about the usefulness of science, its process and the intellectual and material conditions it needs to thrive.

IN RECENT YEARS there has been a surge of new interest in the poetry of modern Greece. Edmund Keeley and Philip Sherrard selected and translated a representative collection: "SIX POETS OF MODERN GREECE" (Knopf. $5) Included are works of Constantine Cavafy, Anghelos Sikelianos, George Seferis, D. I. Antonion: Odysseus, Elytis and Nikos Gatsos. Jacket design is by Rudolph Auzicka.

Proper posing, attention to simple technique anyone can follow produced this appealing puppy portrait, is easy to take, too. Here are a few tips on how to pose your dog and how to make the picture.

FIRST, most dogs have certain individual traits and attributes which set them apart—even from others of the same breed—and which make your dog truly yours. You can emphasize such traits and attributes in the way you pose the dog, and with simple props.

The intelligent alertness of a collie can be photographed best if a prop is used which stimulates his alertness — a wind-up toy, for example,

The completely mournful basset expression becomes even more mournful if something—a chewed-up newspaper, an overturned plant—is included to account for his worry.

These have been "portrait" suggestions. Another method of capturing your real dog on film is to make action snapshots.

DOGS IN ACTION—A retriever at work, a boxer clearing a hedge, a cocker going straight up after a bouncing ball — make good rejecture subjects.

THE PUPPY portrait that accompanies this article illustrates several good points of story-telling pet snapshots. First, puppies are small, so these cockers were placed in small baskets to emphasize their size; second, care was taken to focus the camera correctly-note that in this close-up of about three feet the basket handles are out of focus, putting the picture emphasis on the pups' faces; and third, the camera angle is level with the puppiespicture taken at a downward angle would fail to capture the bemused expressions_ healthy and contented is not too difficult. The large bird with the brilliantly colorful plumage is naturally hardy with a record of longevity. It is said that some live as long as the average human, although 30 years is considered average. Also, the parrot adapts itself to a confined life with more ease than most other birds. This, plus the fact that it will, in its shrilly way, imitate the human voice, perform in true grandstand style, and is affectionately attached to its owner, has given rise to the idea that it is an intelligent creature. The parrot, in truth, is not very highly placed scientifically, being physically developed on a lower scale than the small songbirds that coliven our gardens and meadows.

Light feeding is best for the parrot, and a balanced diet should be given even though the bird holds out for sunflower seeds only. These seeds are a necessary source of nourishment, but very hard boiled eggs, fruit, greens, and, of course, cuttlebone, are needed.

LEARN the appearance of the normal droppings of your particular parrot, their consistency, color, and amount. If any deviation away from the normal appearance, you should be alarmed. And don't do too much doctoring yourself, especially if the bird's pulse nor can you, as a novice, take its temperature. And the bird cannot tell you how it feels.

If the parrot becomes bored or restless and starts plucking its own feathers, keep its beak husy. In fact, this pet needs to exercise its bill a great deal, since the bill as well as the feet are used for climbing and swinging about. Provide logs and blocks of soft or partially decayed hardwood on which the bird can whittle.

The weather is warm now and rooms cool off rather slowly at night. But as soon as fall comes, be on guard against open windows where the parrot sleeps.

OF INTEREST to dog owners is "The Herbal Book for the Dog," by Juliette de Bairacli-Levy, (Duell, Sloan and Pearce, N. Y. ($4.50), a valuable treatise on natural rearing, feeding, and treatment of diseases and senility of the dog. Its 202 pages are crammed with original findings of the author, an internationally known herbalist, who has achieved fame with five generations of Afghan hounds who have never known a disease. This is a standard work, already published in England, Switzerland, Germany, Holland, and France.

Long-Blooming and Everlasting

THERE'S a bed of Statice perezii, with clusters of minute purplish - lavender florets spotted with white blooming perennial plants, in the San Diego area that is worthy of comment.

The plants grow in front of a hedge between the driveway and neighbor's boundary line. The home owner says they are very satisfactory, require no care except watering, and not too much of that. Plants reseed themselves. If gardener carries on a continuous operation of removing unsightly worn out plants, lets new seedlings fill in and keeps seedlings thinned out, he'll have constant color except for about one month in late August and early September.

The blossoms may be used as everlasting flowers in dry arrangements too.

Roberta Wheeler, adult garden class teacher for the Pomona Board of Education, says about the plant: "Statice perezii is an old fashion type plant, quite common on the

"I planted a pony pack of small statice plants on the sunny south side among pink petunias. They bloomed some during the summer, but all winter they were beautiful.

"For winter color I planted

"The statice, three feet tall back of the jeweled colored pansies, was a lovely sight. Now the pansies are gone and I have petunias, but each statice plant, 18 inches diameter, is still blooming.

"The soil is average and good. I fertilize the statice once a month as the whole flower bed is fed, scatter snail bait a couple of times, and pick off dead leaves and spent flowers. Other than that I just enjoy these everlasting flowers very much."

WATERING STILL is the foremost August gardening problem. One often keeps plants too wet, thereby defeating the primary purpose of water plants and lawns properly. Watering too frequently, or keeping soil constantly moist may build up an alkali condition in soil. Fortunately, plants stand excess watering condition for some time

When they can't take any more water, alkali-crusted roots become clogged up. Leaves turn brown along the edges, some plants such as gardenia foliage become stunted in size and look anemic. Ground covers such as ivy leaf geraniums and ivies, develop brown spots along edges of leaves.

To correct this problem, first know your soil, whether it is coarse and porous, medium heavy or heavy. "Heavy" soil means it is the finest kind almost like dust. yet clings together as if glued when wet. Whichever soil you have, water deeply. Check to see where moisture content of soil is before you water. An organic mulch material spread over the soil, lawn, dichondra or ground cover keeps soil moist, cool, and saves on frequency of watering,

To correct alkali condition of soil, or possible alkali water, or combination of both, apply a soil conditioner that acts like a natural rain. A chemically formulated liquid rain material loosens alkali that builds up around roots, rinses the alkali deeper into the soil, allows better air

Dorothy Digs

Watch carefully for spider and mite infestation, especially on plants having large, thin leaves such as dahlias; such foliage is easy for red spider to attack and break down. The red castor bean, used so much in plantings because of the color, is especially susceptible and it is hard to see the red spider on this plant because of similarity of color of plant and insects. A spray containing Kelthane will destroy both spiders and mites without doing any harm to the beneficial predators or friendly enemies which help to fight spider and mite in our gardens.

SOUTHLAND DINING IN THE LONG BEACH

-Caricature by BOB CROW Lots of Smiles

ON'T YOU believe that rumor that Chinese faces are always inscrutable and unsmiling, veiling mysterious thoughts.

Step into the kitchen at Crow's Restaurant, 503 W. Willow St., at almost any hour of the day and you'li see expressions which explode that rumor sky high. The Chinese chefs there are so happy in their work, they smile, laugh and grin like people anywhere.

There's nothing mysterious about their thoughts either. They're happy because they have the privilege of working with first-class ingredients and top quality equipment which produce Cantonese food that is fresh and de-licious. You'll find smiles on the customers at Crow's too -because they're enjoying the privilege of eating that good food.

OWNER (and councilman) Bob Crow serves Sunday dinners from 2 p.m. on, featuring a Chinese dinner for $2,20 which includes light-bodied egg flower soup, fried shrimps, barbecued ribs, pork mushroom chow mein, pork foo yong, pork-fried rice, Chinese noodles, fortune cookies and tea. If additional persons order, sweet and sour pork is added. Crow's Mandarin dinner, for $3, includes all the foregoing plus chicken mushroom almond, chop suey and a Chinese egg roll. The restaurant also features a number of a la carte appetizers, such as won ton (Chinese raviolis) and barbecued chicken, and such a la carte dinner delights as lobster Cantonese, pineapple chicken and cashew nut chicken.

Fine American dinners are also a feature at Crow's and these include soup du jour, salad with choice of dressing, entree, hot baked potato, sourdough bread, pumper-nickel and beverage. Among the entrees are a variety of char-broiled steaks, from $3; eastern scallops, $1.95; chicken, halibut steak, ham steak with glazed pineapple, jumbo shrimps and lobster, Gnidren's dinners are from $1.35. —TEDD THOMEY $1,35.

COMEDIENNE: The housewife who went into show biz

AMBITION: Three sure ways to make it work for you PAGE 6

PHYLLIS DILLER: She walked from the kitchen onto the stage

No more! "Hire" Pillsbury instead... New Family-Size Mashed are the saving-est!

If you mash potatoes the hard way, all you save is ½¢ a serving—for doing 20 minutes' work! If there are four in your gang, that means you're trading 20 minutes of "hard labor" for 2¢... or six cents an hour! Notworth the trouble! (Even in the biggest families the difference in cost is negligible.)

We bet for 2¢ you'd rather quit all that scrubbing, peeling, cutting and mashing! We'll put in our 2¢ worth and suggest you try new family-size Pillsbury Mashed Potatoes. All the more worthwhile because of Pillsbury's amazing potato discovery which gives them the fluff and flavor of home-mashed!

Honest-To-Goodness Mashed Potatoes from Pillsbury

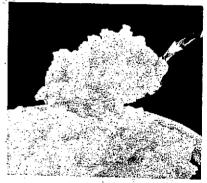

... also try: HASH BROWNS • SCALLOPED • HOME FRY • AU GRATIN CHEESE

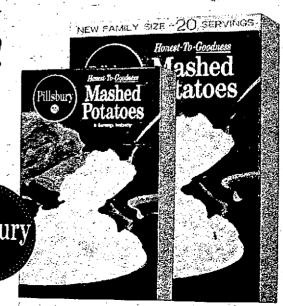

New, Handy Package Serves 1 or 20!

Smartest way to buy potatoes yet! Convenient pour spout helps you measure exactly for a single baby serving or a potato-lovin' crowd. And Pillsbury Potatoes, like apples, are one of nature's best foods!

"Flakes" make Pillsbury's most like home-mashed

Not a powder. Not a granule. But flakes of real potato. Pillsbury discovered that the faster potatoes are turned into "instant," the fresher the flavor will be. So Pillsbury flakes them . . . which is the fastest way of all.

"... Keep this great wonder of nature as it now is ... I hope you will not have a building of any kind, nor a summer cottage, a hotel or anything else to mar the wonderful grandeur, the sublimity, the great loneliness and beauty of the (Grand) Canyon."

THEODORE ROOSEVELT

Will the Grand Canyon be spoiled?

POR NEARLY 60 years the stirring words above by our great conservationist President have guided development of America's most awesome spectacle—the Grand Canyon. And each year more than 1½ million Americans make a pilgrimage to this national park to thrill to its "wonderful grandeur."

But today the canyon's beauty is in grave jeopardy. Unless action is taken, "the sublimity, the great loneliness" may be lost forever. For smack in the middle of the inspiring view, where it can scarcely be missed from any vantage point, a mining firm is planning an 18-story hotel, as shown in the architects' drawing.

"Spectacular" and "unique" are two adjectives employed by the builders' press agents to describe the project. Spilling down mile-deep canyon walls, gleaming white against the color-streaked rock strata, the hotel would have 600 rooms, each with picture window overlooking the "big ditch" of the Colorado. At the base of the building guests would frolic in an oval pool.

set years ago when the National Park Service-approved El Tovar hotel was built at Grand Canyon Village. But park-lovers believe the new proposal must be squelehed now. "If the inholders are really going to start this monstrous hotel proposal, then conservationists must press for prompt condemnation of their properties," says Authony Wayne Smith of the National Parks Association, an influential private organization of friends and supporters of the parks.

"Incredible," says Devereux Butcher, editor of the widely-read National Wildlands News. "It is difficult to believe that any responsible person or group having at heart the best interests of our country... would do this."

Even those who commended the hotel said the site was wrong. National Park Service and Department of Interior officials pleaded surprise at the announcement. Unofficial sources said the Government had been negotiating with Western for years about its Orphan mine, which clogs the park with heavy-duty trucks. Under a recent compromise, the mining firm would be allowed to mine a small area of park by promising to donate all property to the park later. This agreement has been held up pending Congressional approval. Some interpret Western's announcement as a bluff to force the government's hand.

But park officials say the canyon will never be safe as long as the 372 acres of "inholdings" exist. More than 490,000 acres of the 25½ million within park boundaries are still in private hands. To buy them up, Director Conrad Wirth estimates, would cost $45 million. This year, the park service got $6 million for purchases.

"The public must demand that these properties be taken over for the benefit of all before it is too late. Grand Canyon is irreplaceable," says one park-lover. Theodore Roosevelt, father of the park system, would agree. He wrote: "In the Grand Canyon, Arizona has a natural wonder which... is absolutely imparalleled throughout the rest of the world."

'KILLER' DILLER

The housewife who became a comedienne

by LLOYD SHEARER

A PPROXIMATELY 15,000,000 married women in this country work outside their homes—most of them because they have to. Their husbands do not earn enough to provide their families with necessities, luxuries, or educational advantages.

These wives work as secretaries, sales clerks, factory hands. To bring in the extra money they become anything from cab-drivers to card-dealers, murticians to meter-readers.

One housewife has even become a successful, bigtime coincidienne. Her name is Phyllis Diller. She comes from Lima, Ohio. She's 43 and the mother of five children, ranging from 11 to 20.

Phyllis Diller earns $4,000 a week. Not bad for a skinny, pipe-stemmed housewife who six years ago was knocking herself silly trying to raise a family of seven in Alameda, California, on an allowance of $50 a week.

A sharp, rubber-faced zany with a bleached mop of straight, cap-cut hair, the Killer Diller, as she's known in show business circles, has accomplished the following in the past few years: she has appeared 30 times on the Jack Paar TV show; she has played practically every top nite-spot in the nation; she has entertained on the Ed Sullivan and Today video shows: she has spent a season in summer stock starring in Dark at the Top of the Stairs; she has played the role of Texas Guinan in the soon-to-be-released film, Splendor in the Grass; and she's just finished a record album, Phyllis Diller Langhs.

Hollywood wants her. Broadway wants her. Television wants her. The reason Killer Diller is in such high-demand is that a stand-up comedienne in today's world is a rarity.

A Rare Breed

A stand-up comedienne is a female who stands in front of an audience and tells jokes at which the audience laughs. But laughs.

In all of show business there is less than a handful of such mirth-provoking females. Lucille Ball, for example, is a slapstick comedienne, a breed more available than the stand-up type.

Moreover, comedicane Diller is in a class by herself; she writes her own material.

"All top-flight comics," she explains, "have a basic premise on which they build their humor and characterization. Jack Benny supposedly is tight and cheap. Milton Berle is brassy and brash. I operate on the premise that I used to be quite lovely until I went to a supermarket and got my face caught in an automatic door. In my comedy I make cracks about young, pretty girls, and I'm always advising other housewives on life and love."

out comedienne doing her act. Phyllis turned to comedy only at her husband's suggestion, after years of marriage.

"I have a red-hot tip for women-drivers," Phyllis will tell a night club audience. "When you've got to call home after an accident, and your husband answers the phone, never start the conversation with the words: 'Guess what?' because he always will... I've called home so many times that my husband can tell just by the way I say hello what make and model I've hit.

"Last time I decided to fool him. 'flello, darling,' I said. And he said, 'Who is it?' ... I said, 'It's me, and I've had a little accident at Post and Geary Streets.' He said, 'But Post and Geary don't cross.' ... I said, 'They do now.'

"One day I came home and had a little lipstick on the car-fender. My husband insisted on knowing how it got there. I said it was nothing—one woman was so thrilled I'd missed her, she bent down and kissed the car."

Wild and Weird

Phyllis Diller owns a weird and fantastic imagination. Many of her jokes are known in the business as wild, far off the beaten humor track.

She likes, for example, to discuss an imaginary female friend who loves conversation piece jewelry.

Explains Phyllis: "She has a pair of the largest earrings I've ever seen, bronzed baby shoes—and the twins are still in them."

Of another hostess friend, she says, "This one serves hors d'oeuvres with a bow and arrow—and is she a lousy shot. And oh, how she dresses! What a sexy dress she had on the other night. If it had been cut any lower, she would've been barefoot."

Where and how does housewife Diller come up with these jokes? Whatever made her go into comedy in the first place?

Says husband Sherwood Diller, who tours the country with Phyllis: "It was my idea. She was always so darn funny around the house, always so ready to make jokes and entertain the company. I figured she might as well get paid for it."

"The truth," adds Phyllis, "is that I've always been a frustrated ham, and we needed money. Sherry and I had live growing mouths to feed in addition to our own, and I just had to do something."

Phyllis believes she inherited her gab-gift from her father, Perry Driver, an insurance salesman who ran a farm outside Lima, Ohio, and spent most of his working hours selling insurance to fellow-farmers.

"I used to ride around with him," Phyllis recalls, "and listen to his spiel, and my! he was good. Sounded exactly what he was, a middle class, sincere, respectable, church-going man. He was 55 when I was born. He had a lot of wisdom, and he was frugat. When he died he left me $25,000, but I never knew until then that he had the money."

The Diller roots are strictly midwestern. Phyllis grew up in Lima, starred in school dramatics, wrote on the school paper, once wanted to become a pianist. At Bluffton College she studied teaching, eventually met Sherwood Diller, scion of a wealthy Bluffton family.

. Life with Mother

"When the nesting instinct ripened," Phyllis says, "we eloped to Covington, Kentucky, and got married. We moved into my mother-in-law's house, and brother! it wasn't easy. I'm an open, honest, outspoken, get-it-off-your-chest dame. My husband's family was Victorian-conservative, very secretive."

During World War II, the Dillers were living in California where Sherwood went to work at the Alameda naval base. His pregnant wife and two children lived with him in a housing project.

"It was awful," Phyllis recalls distastefully. "There were cockroaches all over the place. Our neighbors were dirty, ill-bred hill-billies. One of them for no reason at all took a rock, jammed it into my son Peter's mouth, knocked out all his teeth. Sherry lost his job, went from one thing to another. We had practically no money. In desperation I got a job as a kindergarten teacher, but lasted only a day and a half. There was no one to take care of the kids, so I quit.

"Then my father died, and my mother came out to live with us. She had the inheritance, and she said, It's all yours, the whole $25,000, only I want you to divorce Sherry, get away from him, and you and the children start fresh."

"I wouldn't hear of it. Sherry and I, like all husbands and wives, have known some bad times, but I wasn't going to divorce him. In the end she bought us a house for $11,000, and finally we had some place in which to live—no job, you understand, but a big house."

After her mother died, Phyllis got the rest of the inheritance, but "being a real dumb broad, I got tied up with a crooked real estate operator who took us to the cleaners."

The next few were up and down years for the Diller family. Father undertook half a dozen different jobs, for a short period was the leading refrigerator salesman at Sears Roebuck. Mother gave birth to two more children, conducted the choir at the Alameda Presbyterian Church.

One summer when the furnace, washing machine, and car broke down, and the bills mounted, Phyllis decided to get a stopgap job. She wrote a shopping column and sold space for the San Leandro News Observer, then added a bi-weekly social column.

"I discovered," she said, "that writing gave me a big charge, so I got a better job as a copywriter at Kahn's Department Store in Oakland. I really dug it. I went from there to radio station KROW, then to KSFO in San Francisco, writing commercials. Slowly I found myself on the fringes of show business.

"By this time I was making $100 a week and could afford someone steady to look after the children. It was Sherry who suggested that I make the jump into-comedy. 'You're a very funny dame,' he kept telling me. 'Just study yourself in the mirror.'

"I'll say this about Sherry. He's given me 100 per cent support and cooperation in my career. A lot of husbands are jealous and resentful when their wiives hit it—not Sherry, he's a perfect gentleman. He loves me so much he's willing to haul 22 pieces of my luggage on the trains while I fly around from booking to booking. That's what I call real love."

Laughs and Loot

Phyllis Diller made her first nightclub appearance in 1955 at the Purple Onion in San Francisco. She auditioned, she says, "just for laughs and the hope that it would lead to a little loot." She aroused such an instantaneous rapport with audiences that she played the club for 89 weeks.

When the Purple Onion opened a branch in Hollywood, Phyllis was sent south where she "bombed."

"They just didn't go for me in Los Angeles," she sadly confessed, "so back to San Francisco where I got a restoration treatment for my morale. After that it was strictly Learnsville for me in Eureka, Calif., a bunch of tank towns, then Dallas, Chicago, New York. In some places, I was great. In others, they wouldn't even let me play for the dog-catchers.

"It's not easy for a housewife to adapt herself to show business on the road, but I've done my best. I've had to park the kids with Sherry's mother and sister, but I see them as frequently as I can.

"We've made some loot these past few years, and I'm not complaining, but after taxes and expenses, there's not too much left. I still don't own a home where I can park all my kids."

What Phyllis would ideally like is a home basefrom which she could operate instead of the constant travel and two-to-three weeks nightclub stands.

"I need steady exposure," she explained. "That's the greatest thing about TV. Millions of people get to know you. After that, it's a little easier in this racket. At the moment, they say I'm a comer. Some critics have typed me as a poor man's Auntic Mame or the American Gracie Fields. I think I'm just me---a crazylooking dame with a touch of sophistication, a word about everything, and a compulsion to perform."

If she had a chance, would Phyllis Diller chuck it all, relinquish the limelight and loot for iter old job as housewife and mother?

"To be absolutely honest with you," she admits, "I'd chuck it all if I had enough money so that I could live with my kids while they're growing up.

"Still, I dig the excitement in this business. It gives me a lift, a feeling that you're vital and alive. It's hard to get this feeling in a kitchen over a hot stove."

Lest other housewives think show business is an easy gambit, she says, "please tell 'em that coming up with new routines, being funny night after night is no laughing matter. It's frequently a brain-busting, heartbreaking job."

AMBITION can run you ragged.

Here's how to make it work for you

President, American Association of Marriage Counselors

or long ago, a young crew-cut engineer came home from work and collapsed white-faced in a chair. "I made it, honey," he whispered to his wife, and promptly fainted. At 28, he had won the promotion he had dreamed of for years, head of a department with a clear road ahead to the Executive Suite.

Within four months, the young man was gulping tranquilizers to deaden his growing fears of failure. One day, while affoat in a drug-induced sea of calm, he made a grave error on contract specifications and realized it too late. The mistake cost his firm $100,000.

Stricken with horror, seeing his career ended before it had begun, he left the office, got drunk and drove with hurtling speed towards a hunting cabin he had bought in the woods. Next morning, state police found his car and his body, both smashed against a boulder,

This man was destroyed by ambition.

But the president of his firm is a 42-year-old scientist who was just as ambitious. Yet this man is not only extremely successful but has a loving wife and four proud children.

Why did ambition carry one man to the peak and wreck another?

What I am about to say may shatter cherished notions. Most people believe, absolutely and unshakably, that ambition is like good health—nobody can have too much. They are tragically unaware that this dynamic human force can bring us success—but it can also wreck our lives. That it can help us raise wonderful children—but also turn them into delinquents. That it can attract a large circle of friends—but also force us into a life of loneliness.

What, then, is the secret of ambition? How can you make it work for you instead of against you?

The key lies in proper timing.

Be ambitious, of course — but move forward at the pace that is right for you. Rising too quickly in the world gives you the psychological "bends." This can be just as potentially disastrous as that serious condition deep-sea divers can get by coming to the surface too rapidly.

A Six-Point Checkup

You can tell right now if you are moving forward too fast-for your own good. Make this emotional checkup:

- 1. Do you feel you need a drink at the luuch hour to get you through the rest of your business day?
- 2. When you close up shop at day's end, do you feel yourself appreciably "tighter" than you were in the morning?
- 3. Do you blow up a good deal more than you used to at your wife and kids?
- 4. Have your personal medical bills risen appreciably since you began moving upward in your career?

- 5. Is it taking you quite a bit longer to make up your mind about things than a few years ago?
- 6. Have you dropped or tapered off sharply on hobbies you loved because you "have no time for them"?

The more "yes" answers you have given, the more important it is to put a checkrein on your ambition and lower your sights. Climbing more slowly is less apt to make you emotionally breathless.

Now how about wives and mothers? Women are more deeply involved than ever in a man's ambitions, and overlyambitious wives frequently cause a man's failure.

These "Ambitious Alices" constantly prod their husbands to "assert" themselves in business, fight for promotion, demand a raise. The men are shamed into speedups, often with disastrous results. One woman nagged her social-worker husband to open a motel because she felt it offered brighter prospects. One day he left home and never returned. Such wives believe they are only helping-actually, they are basically selfish, concerned mainly with their own ambitions for a bigger house, a better car, higher status.

Ambitious Alices often extend their lofty aspirations to their children. You can spot these poor youngsters in every community. They are the ones who are pushed to be "popular," urged to compete for the top grades and the highest honors.

Ambition unreined feeds on itself. I know a lawyer who is busy, rich and popular. He knows all the "best" people and he and his wife make charming hosts and guests. Nobody knows that for the past five years they haven't spoken a word to each other when alone. Or that his three grown children despise him.

He achieved his ambition of being the town's No. 1 attorney but lost his family in the process. As he grew more important, his social obligations increased. To fulfill these, he had to work harder. Each successive step meant less time at home, deteriorating communication with his family and a more total pre-occupation with work. At length he was insisting that his wife, in delicate health, entertain lavishly and unstintingly. The realization that his ambition meant more to him than his wife's health killed her love and alienated his already distant children.

Practical Guideposts

How, then, can you make this great power an ally instead of an enemy? For practical purposes I offer these three guideposts for handling ambition:

Give up dreams that cannot come true. We all have hopes and aspirations. But many are never realized. If you dreamed of becoming the greatest writer in America and have not, be happy with what you have achieved. If you have not dazzled the world as a ballerina, don't spend a moment in bitterness over what "might have been" if you had "only got the breaks." Come to terms with reality and enjoy what's here

Plan your climb in easy stages. Set reasonable goals for yourself as you go forward. Bite off only what you can chew. In this way, the risks of failure are kept at a minimum.

When the time comes, move quickly and decisively.

When the job ahead becomes vacant, when the time for plant expansion is right, and when you are ready - act swiftly. The knowledge that you are equipped with emotional shock absorbers and the know-how to handle the increased load will give you priceless self-confidence.

An outdoor supper-for the kids

by BETH MERRIMAN Parade food editor

T's FUN FOR EVERYONE—especially young-sters who want to eat outdoors not too far from home-to have a supper wrapped in a gay bandana knapsack tied to a sturdy pole. Within the knapsack is a large plastic-coated paper plate heaped with cold fried chicken, butter-chive sandwiches, crisp radish roses, a juicy peach and molasses chocolate bars, all covered with transparent plastic wrap. Each person can carry a small vacuum bottle filled with a favorite beverage in addition to the knapsack. Destination: a big shady tree on the lawn, a nearby brook or a neighbor's wading pool.

Best-Ever Fried Chicken

11/4 cups flour

2 teaspoons salt

2 teaspoons paprika

I teaspoon thyme or sage

⅓s teaspoon pepper 2 broiler-fryer chickens, cut in serving pieces

Combine flour and seasonings. Rinse chicken in cold running water, but do not dry; immediately roll pieces in seasoned flour. Heat salad oil, 1/2" deep in skillet, until drop of water added to oil sizzles. Place chicken, skin side down, in skillet. Put larger, meatier pieces in first. Cook uncovered 15 to 25 minutes on each side, turning only once. Drain well on absorbent paper. Makes eight servings.

FROM PARADE'S TEST KITCHEN

Molasses-Chocolate Bars

1 egg, beaten ½ cup sugar

1/2 cup light molasses

1/4 cup melted shortening 1/2 teaspoon vanilla

I cup sifted enriched flour

1/2 teaspoon salt 1/4 teaspoon baking soda .

3/3 cup chopped walnuts

I 6-oz. package (I cup) semi-sweet chocolate pieces

Combine egg, sugar, molasses, shortening and vanilla. Sift in flour, salt and soda. Add nuts and semi-sweet chocolate pieces. Spread in greased and lightly floured 9" square pan. Bake in moderate oven (350°) 45 minutes. Cut into bars I" x 3". Makes 11/2 dozen.

Try these ideas for home or yourself

by PETER DRYDEN

New idea in fans: This one—only 5½" high, wide and deep—has jet-type blades that spread air so evenly there is no direct draft. It cools without blowing hair or papers. Use it year round—on desk or card table to take away smoke; thaw frozen food; defrost refrigerator; dry hair, floors, paints; air closets. Weighs 1½ lbs., tilts 90°. $12.50. McLarty, Dept. PP, 2600 Dickman Rd., Battle Creek, Mich.

Flexible dishwasher: Rectangular in shape, a new automatic dishwasher fits almost anywhere—recessed in or hung from a wall on or under a kitchen counter, or as a floating room divider. A built-in steam generator produces distilled water, eliminating minerals, and water spotting. It comes in three models to accommodate six, 10 and 15. For details: Temco Industrial, Dept. PP, Box 6191, Dallas 22, Texas.

Picnic aid: With space for toting the entire family's meal to beach or picnic area, a new carry-all instantly becomes a four-place dining table when you get there. Closed, it's 15½ x 15½ x 11½". Open, it's 14½" high x 32" across, has four tubular steel fold-away legs. $14.50. Wallace Associates, Dept. PP, P. O. Box 407, Bloomfield, N. J.

Wet, dry and extensible: Now comes a combination wet mop and dry duster with a telescopic handle so you can reach high walls and ceilings and tops of large windows. When wet, the 10" square polyeurethane foam head acts as a sponge. Used dry—it becomes soft again after wetting—it gathers and holds dust, cobwebs, etc. like a magnet. A 3½'-long handle extends to 7' in one model, 9½' in another. $6.49 and $7.98. Crest Co., Dept. PP, 26 Avenue B, Newark, N.J.

New for your car: Here's a handy item—a plastic mitt with a seal-tight closure and two shammy cloths inside. Cloths serve usual car-washing purposes—and the mitt keeps your hand dry and warm both when you wash the car and clear it of ice and snow in winter. Mitt also stores the shammies wet and ready for emergency use on the road, in cleaning sticky fingers, wiping up spilled drinks, cleaning windshield. $1. Mailbox, Dept. PP, Box 3587, Washington 7, D. C.

Paddle boat: Here's fun for kids (below)—a side-wheeler for pool or open water that splashes along at up to 3½ mph when paddle wheels are turned. It's made of unsinkable plastic foam, weighs 3 lbs., and bucket seat submerged below hull provides stability. About $15.95 in stores. A.T. S. Enterprises, Dept. # The city that was SAVED BY A FLOOD or 19 YEARS, citizens of this west coast seaport city lived in the shadow of a frightening menace. Slowly but with gathering momentum, their harbor district was slipping into the Pacific Ocean!

The strange chain of events that almost doomed the thriving community and necessitated the virtual rebirth of an entire sprawling section of the city began in early 1942, when an obscure surveyor calculating reference points from which to construct a liuge drydock at the wartime-bustling Naval Shipyard couldn't get consistent readings.

"The earth is moving," he reported to his foreman conscientionsly.

"You're a crackpot," his superior retorted. And when the hapless surveyor persisted in his "wild camouflages for incompetence," he was fired and forgotten.

It wasn't until years later that the worried citizens realized that the nameless surveyor had been right. And by that time, Long Beach was literally on the brink of disaster. A hitherto unknown villain they came to know as "subsidence" was causing the harbor district to sink down at an alarming rate.

Disaster Looms

Buildings cracked and shifted on their concrete foundations; bridges settled at dangerously lopsided levels; rail and power lines were being constantly disrupted; hundreds of oil wells oozed into uselessness.

By 1945, one section of the harbor had settled four feet. By August, 1957, a 16 square mile area had sunk from 2 to 27 feet and engineers calculated that the rate of sinkage was as high as 21/2 feet per year.

Long Beachers fought back against the mysterious creeping destruction, frustrated and terrified because they didn't actually know what they were fighting. Dikes were built; ground levels were raised; broken pipes were repaired; curbs and streets were rebuilt; public facilities were restored.

Despite all efforts, it seemed subsidence must win the battle. It seemed that Long Beach was in danger of becoming another Atlantis, the legendary island that sank beneath the sea.

The Villain: Oil

Just as Long Beach was faced with the economically crippling loss of the $170,000,000 Naval Shipyard, petroleum experts agreed that they had found the cause of the subsidence. "Oil production in the harbor petroleum fields is causing a loss of underground pressure," they said.

They suggested injecting salt water into the oil fields in a way that would not interfere with lucrative oil production, Targest in the state. There was no provision in California law for such a massive flooding of producing oil fields and engineers weren't certain that such drastic action could stop the sinkage anyway.

Yet the citizens fought the necessary laws through the State Legislature in 1958 and stood by anxiously while the massive water injection program started.

Gradually, to the relief of everyone, the sinkage abated and finally all but stopped. During the past three years, more than 400 million barrels of water have been pressure-injected into the oil fields.

The citizens of Long Beach have turned the tables on subsidence. And they used the very water that threatened to engulf them to do it.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Jack Herbert, comedian, M.C., and after-dinner speaker, now in his late forties, made his entrance into the entertainment business in his teens as a sleight-of-hand artist. He gradually interspersed his magic routine with quips and gags and soon discovered that people would rather be amused than amazed. His flexibility as a comedian has made him a sought-after favorite in one-night stands as well as hotels, theaters and night clubs.

of legislative and court actions resulted in a division of Long Beach's tidelands oil wealth with the state. Tremendous sums are involved in this continuing division. At our request, the Capitol News Service has just completed a review of the state's use of this windfall which resulted from the enterprise and wise administration policies of the City of Long Beach. The report follows, and on today's editorial page (B-2) will be found an interesting account of the problems encountered by CNS in getting the story.)

SACRAMENTO (CNS)-There is scarcely an area of California that has not felt the impact of dollars from rich Long Beach oil field.

Since the original "settlement" was made in 1955, a total of $181,847,493 was paid to the state from Long Beach oil revenues. The original settlement was $120 million, plus $4,986,744 in interest.

Revenues from oil royalties in the Long Beach harbor are divided by the state and the city of Long Beach, after costs of subsidence programs for Long Beach have been deducted. These subsidence projects must be approved by the State Lands Commission.

Since June, 1956, the Commission has approved a total of $116,295,289 in remedial subsidence projects and $29,106,156 in non-subsidence projects, for a total of $145,401,445. This is in addition to the $181 million which went into what is now the California Water Fund.

When the state first got the Long Beach wind-

into an "Investment Fund" created for that purpose. This fund continued for several years, with provisions for oil royalties from leases of state tidelands to be funneled into

Secret Meet Second Front Due K Tells West Decides to If U.S. Goes to War Critical Talk Over

CHICAGO (UPI)—U.S. military planners are considering plans for a second front outside Europe if Soviet Russia tries to grab Berlin, the Chicago Sun-Times reported Saturday night.

In a story by Thomas B. Ross of the Sun-Times' Washington, D.C., bureau, the newspaper said the plan was still in the discussion stage and no formal blueprints

However, the story said, both the Middle East and Far East were under consideration as possible theaters of Army leaders were skeptical of the plan, fearing ground forces were already spread too thin to fight on two fronts, but civilian leaders in the Pentagon discount the Army pessimism, the dispatch said.

The second front plan stems from a belief that the Soviets will undertake diversionary moves before making a try at Berlin. A U.S. diversion outside Europe would allow this country to beat them to the punch, the story said.

L.a.C. Says: Who Bungled the Cuban Invasion?

What's the truth behind that ill-fated invasion of Cuba? Did President Kennedy call off plans for U. S. air cover without telling the anti-Castro forces, who counted on it? Cuban revolutionary leaders-long silent-now tell their side of the story. This is the heading of a U. S. News article quoting the anti-Castro

The U. S. News article is from the Washington, D. C., Post, which interviewed the anti-Castroites after repeated statements had been given that thev decided to go ahead after the President had decided not to give the air coverage promised them. They say flatly they were never so informed-nor were they told when and where the invasion attempt was to be

Their statement was only made to interviewers after a Saturday Evening Post article attempted to whitewash the President and his advisors by saying the responsibility was that of the Cuban Revolutionary Council and not that of the administration. Several of these leaders lost sons in the invasion which was encouraged by the President, and for which he took responsibility after its failure. They were fighting against Communists.

The whole tragic story is one of ineptness among the President's official body. It is charged that this group was careful not to let our U. N. Ambassador Stevenson know about the planned use of air coverage. They did not want him to lie, if asked about it. But according to the investigators-Stevenson heard about it and objected so strenuously that the President canceled the order for air coverage—but did not so inform the Cubans who were to attempt the in-

The air coverage was to destroy the Castro small air force and protect the invading ships from attack. It was essential that such protection be given for any hope for success. But it was not given and a few Castro planes destroyed the ships before they could land and 1,200 fighters against Castro were sacrificed. *

Many people will say we should not be a party to any such invasion. They feel it would-as Mr. Stevenson feels-harm us among other Latin-American nations. But we doubt many will like the idea of our encouraging men to make such sacrifices and then fail to keep our promises to aid them. It is doubtful if any action we could have taken has harmed us as much as has the failure of the invasion our government encouarged.

The British move in Kuwait and the French in Tunisia may be criticized. But at least they showed they had the courage to protect their interests and to take action when those interests were threatened. It is becoming evident that we, too, must be ready to show strength where our interests are threatened. It is the best assurance of maintaining our prestige and to show we will no longer be pushed around. We failed to do this in the Cuban invasion which it is apparent, we encouraged, if not planned in its entirety. ---L.A.C.

never will be abandoned. The unheralded huddle of he Eastern alliance's top men however, left room for maneuver in settling with the Western powers the destiny of divided Germany.

TASS OUOTED the com munique as saying:

"The meeting participants expressed readiness to .contribute by every means to the attainment of a peaceful set tlement with the two German states, coordinated with the Western powers."

Khrushchev for months has een threatening to sign a separate treaty with East Germany by the end of the year. This has led President Kennedy to step up U. S military preparedness and to send Secretary of State Dean Rusk to Paris for consultation with other Western foreign operates now on a formula, receiving certain money from tideland oil royalties, with some of these royalties going for other natural resources agencies.

One notable addition made to the Water Fund was the receipt of $55 million in cash bonus bids from oil companies for leases of state tidelands.

WITH THAT exception, the real bulk of the money in the Water Fund has come from the rich Long Beach field. Before the hig water program of the governor's got off the ground in 1959, with later approval of the bond issue by the people in 1960, the Investment Fund was subject to some pressure for loans or grants. One of the biggest of these was a $5.1 million loan to the Small Craft Harbors Division for use in making loans for small craft harbor development. Other uses of the Investment Water Fund included $1,062,000 for research by the University of California, $1 million for remedial flood damage; $15 million for flood damage claims; and $1 million for flood control works.

A DETAILED breakdown by John Hunt, accounting officer for the Department of Water Resources, showed $77,800,505 had been spent from the Water Fund by June 30. leaving a balance of $91,832,693. (Because of differences in bookkeeping methods, State Controller Alan Cranston showed a balance of $147,080,174 in the Water Fund, on June 30, as he listed some funds which the Water department apparently considered committed.)

A big chunk of this money, $45,467,998, was spent on Oroville dam and reservoir, key feature of the Feather River project and the state water plan. The work has been in relocation of utilities, highways, and the Western Pa cific railroad, up to this point, involving several bridges and tunnels.

Bids were called recently for construction of the first diversion tunnel at the Oroville site, signalling the actual beginning of construction of the huge dam which is intended to store surplus waters for eventual exportation to southern California.

ANOTHER $2,877,103 has been spent on the South Bay Aqueduct, to provide water for Santa Clara, San Benito and southern Alameda Counties. The North Bay Aquaduct project has received $567,812 from the Water Fund. This project is designed to ease water shortages in several counties north of the San Francisco Bay.

Another $11,250,606 has been spent on general state water facilities work.

A total of $11,746,384 from the Water Fund has been spent for purposes other than the statewide water plan. Some of the larger amounts included in this total are

Investigation of seepage of the Sacramento River, $3.631.477; various water resources investigations, $6,-048,980; repayment guarantee to U. # The decision without a doubt!

Six times before today he has taken title to a new motor car. And six times he has wondered how wisely he chose.

But not today! This time the name of the car is Cadillac. And this time there's not a trace of doubt in his mind.

For the current Cadillac is, obviously and literally, a car without a compromise. Who, for instance, could behold its great beauty and doubt that it will be the cynosure of all eyes wherever it travels?

Who could take command of its wheel and doubt that it has set a standard of performance that will be honored by years of emulation?

And who, indeed, could study the practical aspects of Cadillac ownership and doubt that this is the wisest investment of them all?

Original price . . . maintenance and upkeep...gasoline efficiency...resale value -all the accepted measurements of motor car value say "Cadillac" with unmistakable clarity.

Incidentally, this is the perfect season to listen-and the ideal time to act.

Your dealer will be happy to bring you up to date on the Cadillac story at any time-and to put you in the driver's seat for the most convincing hour you ever

for Third Time

DAYTON, Ohio (A)-Robin Ault of Cranford, N.J., has won the U.S. junior chess championship a third straight

But Ault, 19, had to skin through on a tie-breaker point system after finishing in a three-way deadlock on actual points awarded for victories

The tie came about when Bernard Zuckerman, 18, of Brooklyn, N.Y., and Ault, each with 61/2 points going into Saturday's matches, played to a stalemate. That gave each 7 points of a possible 9, and Peter Gould, 19, of Providence, R.I., who started the day a half point behind, won to bring his total

LOS ANGELES (CNS)-A 2-year-old boy died from suffocation and his 11/2-year-old cousin is in critical condition after they closed themselves in a neighbor's car Saturday and could not get air.

Daniel Kevin Lorick was dead on arrival at Central Receiving Hospital, Paula Johnson was listed as critical at the hospital.

They were found by the girl's mother in the car, both anconscious.

More than 100,000 of your neighbors save at COAST FEDERAL

Yes, more than 100,000 savers-most of them your fellow Californiansenjoy the great sense of security that comes from saving at Coast Federal. The largest amount of savings under one roof, in any savings and loan association in the United States, is at the Coast Federal Savings office on the ground floor at 9th and Hill in Los Angeles.

Coast Federal's great financial strength serves a vital two-fold purpose -it provides savers with safety and high earnings, helping them to achieve financial security, and it provides thousands of California families with convenient home financing, helping them to achieve debt-free home ownership.

In the shipboard operation, four telecarts are rolled aboard a liner and the girls stand by to help passengers make their calls.
Al Schmidt, downtown

district manager for the Long Beach office of the General Telephone Co., said the telecart service was started as a shipboard experiment last April.

The Long Beach Harbor Department and operators of the liner Caronia had asked if additional service could be provided.

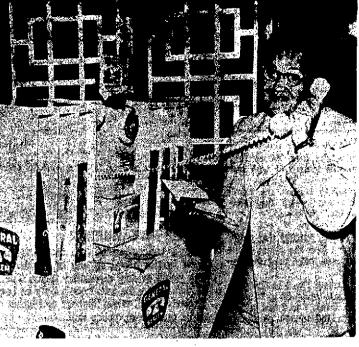

THREE DOCKSIDE phone booths and a boothmobile with two more telephones did not seem ample to handle passengers' needs. # ীt's Time to Look at Golf Skills

By DILLON GRAHAM

WASHINGTON (AP) -John F. Kennedy has been showing his form for over wix months now.

" It's a fair time new for some stock-taking, for summing and sizing up, to put things in perspective, to look at the evidence at hand and project the future. To wit:

Is Jack Kennedy REALLY a better golfer than Dwight Eisenhower?

Not all the returns are In, for certain. But from what old-hand White House reporters have been able to accumulate from author-Itative sources, we are led inescapably to the conclusion; Yes, he probably is.

JOF COURSE, on the one hand, there is no denying the former President's deft putting game. But in accepting this conclusion, there is also no denying something that daily grows more certain: the young President is long off the But is this something the country can rely on over the long haul? There's many a trap ahead in the uncertain future towards 1964

In reaching their conclusion, it has been reliably reported observers considered the following:

Experience: Eisenhower was acquainted with the tools of the golfing trade before Jack Kennedy was old enough to caddy.

NATURAL ability: link wise, most of our presidents just haven't had it from tee to green. Freddie McLeod, 1908 U.S. open champion, Columbia Country Club pro and a presidential golf watcher for over 50 years, recalls the founding of presidential golf William Howard Taft, broke precedent by taking up the game but rarely if ever broke 90,

The nation switched administrations in 1912, electing Woodrow Wilson, but found the Democrat was no better. Wilson was a 90 shooter too.

Warren Harding was a slight improvement and Franklin Roosevelt before his polio attack shot in the 80s. Eisenhower scored in the upper 80s as does Kennedy. But . . . reliable sources say if the President hadn't hurt his back, wasn't working overtime on Berlin, school aid, foreign aid, Laos, etc., and if he went golfing instead of yachting at Hyannis Port he would shoot regularly in the 70s, No other President could make that state-

Neutrino Bomb Could End War?

By JOSEPH L. MYLER

If you get wind of a report that the Russians have developed a "neutrino bomb" don't let it scare you-it's just a scientific

The "neutrino bomb" apparently was designed in the mind of a scientific jokester as an antidote to all the recent talk about a "neutron bomb."

The "neutron bomb," as defined by Congressmen who want the United States to resume nuclear testing. is a "small, clean H-bomb" which would produce almost no blast and heat. It would be no menace to

BUT ITS high - energy neutrons-fast-moving subnuclear particles-presumably would knock out soldiers at battlefield ranges.

The neutron bomb is said to be a concept of the Atomic Energy Commis sion's weapons laboratory at Livermore, Calif. It has been argued that it could be perfected, as a useful battlefield weapon, if the United States would just resume testing.

There is a catch about the neutron bomb - unlike the H-bomb, it would have to be friggered by something besides an A-bomb. Nobody knows for sure that a non-atomic trigger can be developed.

INSURED SAYINGS

LONG BEACH

IF THE neutron bomb is good because it would generate little blast and heat, Cooper's spoof bomb would be far better because it would generate practically none at all. Nor would it create any radioactivity.

In fact, a neutrino bomb wouldn't do any damage at all. The neutrino is an infinitesimal particle of matter bearing no electrical charge and possessing size and mass bordering on zero. A neutrino is so tiny. in fact, that it could pass through the solid earth and several trillion miles of lead without touching anything.

COOPER'S spoof was published by the Los Alamos lab newspaper, the "News", which called it the 'ultimate weapon." The paper also printed what it said was a photograph of the fireball of the neutrino bomb at 0.053 seconds after detonation.

Convenient Autoport Parking or Any Park and Shop Lot

SHOP MONDAY NIGHT TILL 9 P.M.

EVERY Wednesday eve about a dozen young fellows get together in a Garden Grove park for a bull session.

Offhand that may not sound like an item, but it is. For these men aren't there just to shoot the breezethey cavort on the greensward with a mechanical

This is an improvised contraption with horns, mounted on a bicycle wheel, which one man pushes around the field while others engage in "cape practice," bull-fighter style.

All of this must be pretty mystifying to passersby not in the know. But the amateur matadors are deadly serious about it, finding it good exercise and a way to indulge their enthusiasm for bull fighting.

THEY'VE just done it in another way, by forming local club of bull-fight fanatics called La Pena Hermanos Huerta. The name honors two brothers Huerta who are prominent in Mexico bullfighting activities.

President of the club is Lyn Sherwood of Bellflower, who spent some time in Spain, managed a bull fighter, and did a little fighting in the ring himself.

Bob Harris, 4550 E. 15th St. in Long Beach, is vice president and was in to tell me about the new organization. He thinks there may be others interested in bullfighting here who might like to join up. Among objectives of the group is en-couragement of high standards for bullfighting in border towns like Tijuana. The clubbers will keep themselves informed on bullfight developments in Mexico, seek to improve U. S.-Mexicans relations generally, organize trips and otherwise address their efforts to bigger, better bullfighting. There are some women among the members.

ROM my conversation with Harris, I gathered there aren't many bullfight fans around here, but those who are interested are on the intensive side. He called them fanatics.

I told him that bullfighting is repulsive to me. I confessed I've never seen one and asked him how he got interested.

He said he does sculpture and other artistic work, and became interested in the artistic aspects of the bull ring. He likes the dance aspects, the spectacle and the color. Some others who have had my feelings on the subject have changed their opinions when becoming better informed, he told me.

However, he doesn't expect ever to see bullfighting here. The SPCA is too strong, he said, and popular interest is not great.

So the nearest thing to a bullfight here probably is the unique practice with the mechanical bull on the field at the park on Westminster Ave. That's close enough. I'm with the SPCA on that

THE partially constructed auditorium annex in Long Beach's strand area will not have a removable

Possibly you never supnosed it would. But Win Hanssen, mgr. of the auditorium, reports that he was asked about it by a number of people who had examined a model of the oval building on display at the aud.

To show the interior to viewers, the top has been set to one side, and that led to the queries.

By the way, why doesn't the City Council go ahead and come to a decision on a name for this structure? It's going to be in the news a lot from here on.

This dept's choice is still International Oval.

Robert is one of a group of some 30 West Side Boys Club members who have been spending 10 days at Camp Hi-Hill near Mt. Wilson.

Robert never held a wild bird in his hand before. It's something he'll be able to share with friends for many months to come, and something to remember all his life.

The nuthatch was caught briefly in the Federal Bird Band Station mist net at Camp Hi-Hill, as are numeruos other species of hirds.

FOR THE SECOND summer now, the Boys Clubs of Long Beach, a Community Chest and Community Welfare Council affiliate, has leased Camp Hi-Hill during July and August. The city-owned camp in the mountains is under operation of the Long Beach Unified School District the remainder of the year.

"This is an outstanding example of a private organization operating on municipal property under lease arrangement," said Maurice Bugbee, executive secretary of the Boys Clubs of Long Beach. "We have thus eliminated the need for a major drive for funds for a camp site and make it possible for many boys who would never get to summer camp to spend some time in the moun-

Cost is $3 a day. Many of the boys pay their own way; some get camperships.

The program for August includes a weekend for families of boys in the Downtown and East club branches this week; North branch camp, Aug. 7 to Aug. 16; all branches, Aug. 16 to 25, and a regional junior staff training session the weekend of Aug. 25 to 27.

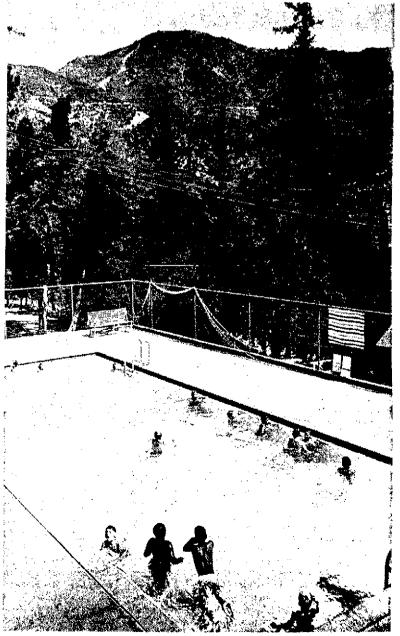

THE YOUNGSTERS don't loll around. There's a full program from 7 a.m. when they rise to 9 or 9:30 when lights go out-unless they're on an overnight hike and get to sleep on the trail.

All activities are supervised by camp officials headed by Director Mike Coppersmith, a former Boys' Club member himself; Bill Takamatsu, assistant director, and Mike Phillips, program director. In addition there are cabin counsellors, the majority of whom are former Boys' Club members trained to supervise seven to 10 boys per cabin. The counsellors are Gene Funkhouser, George Fletcher, John DeGraff, Carlos Silva, Arthur Reynolds, Jim Felt, Brad Johnson and Daryl List.

The program includes hiking, crafts, nature-lore, campfire activity, swimming instruction and recreation and

These group experiences include the give and take of camp life, group singing after lunch and around the camp fire, the swapping of lore of wild life.

Besides learning about birds, wild life and poison oak, there's hardly a boy who has been to Hi-Hill who will ever be taken in by a snipe-hunt, who doesn't know that Watch for Falling Rocks is really a notice to be on the lookout for an Indian who is lost somewhere in the mountains, and that a mugwump is a rare specie of bird sitting on a wire; mug on one side, wump on the other.

PRESIDENT KENNEDY MADE a tough decision last week when a father-and-son team of hijackers took hostages at El Paso and tried to negotiate a deal for a plane to deliver to Castro.

Even though he knew the decision could lead to injury or death for the hostages, the President answered with a quick, blunt No.

No deals.

FORTUNATELY, THE DECISION to make no deals led to the release of the hostages, the rescue of the airplane, and the capture of the hijackers.

It is easy, in retrospect, to see that the President's decision was the right one. To recognize and follow the proper course when the outcome was uncertain required perception and moral courage.

The El Paso episode tells the would-be hijacker that he cannot depend on bargaining his way out of frouble and that, in fact, he may get his jaw knocked loose from its hinge if he tries.

The El Paso Principle - refusal to submit to extortion and blackmail, refusal to play the bandit's game - could be applied to advantage to a broad range of questions in foreign affairs.

WHEN HE FINDS OUT THAT someone may hit him and hit him hard, the Communist hijacker will think twice before he makes trouble in hope of getting a "deal" at such points of centention as Berlin and

If Western powers had said "no deal" more frequently during the past 15 years, the hijacker wouldn't AFFAIRS OF STATE be as contemptuous as he is today for the restraints of

Aircraft Industry Is in L.B. to Stay

REORGANIZATION PLANS announced last week by

Douglas Aircraft Co. made one point very clear: The Long Beach plant is a permanent industrial fixture of this city and will enjoy a measure of growth to offset at least in part the decline resulting from a slowdown in military and DC8 jet orders.

The reorganization splits the Douglas company into two divisions, one for aircraft and one for missiles and space projects. This will mean the transfer to Long Beach in the near future of almost 2,000 production workers now employed elsewhere by Douglas. As the reorganization progresses, many workers are expected to be added here.

Long Beach obviously is going to be a major aircraft city for many years to come.

'Rocky' Wants Ike to Remain Neutral

By WALTER T. RIDDER, ROBERT E. LEE AND WILLIAM BROOM

WASHINGTON-New York's Gov. Nelson Rockefeller hustled down to Gettysburg the other day for a talk with former President Eisenhower about neutralism.

Rocky wanted assurance that Ike would be among the planation of why their figure uncommitted when it comes to picking a GOP nominee to oppose President Kennedy in 1964.

It's an open secret in Republican circles here that Ike given. has urged his ex-sidekick, Richard M. Nixon, to go after that their figure is the correct the governorship of California next year. Ike's reasoning: one and Nixon's chances for the nomination in 1964 will be dim unless he remains in public life.

It is said that lke counseled that Nixon could pledge to serve out a term in California and still accept an honest draft if it were to come his way at the GOP convention in 1964. That report plus others reaching the Rockefeller camp in Albany spurred Rocky into action.

Under the guise of paying a call to discuss civil defense, Rockefeller visited Ike's farm in Gettysburg and put the question to him: Are you pushing Nixon?

The former president reportedly told Rockefeller that he is indeed neutral and is just trying to be helpful to everybody to insure a GOP win in 1964. But the Rockefeller camp is listening closer for rumbles out of Gettysburg.

FORMER WHITE HOUSE assistants under Eisenhower are keeping a hox score on President Kennedy's work habits. They report that in the first six months of his administration, the President spent 52 days away from Washington. President Eisenhower, who was criticized by Democrats for the frequency of his vacations, was absent only 34 days during the same time of his first year in the White

EVERYBODY'S CHECKING UP on everybody these days and the result may be time clocks in the cloakrooms. Western congressmen, who resent the fact that their Eastern colleagues go home for long weekends, thus slowing up congressional business, have made a survey of roll calls in the House. They found that the In-Tuesday. Out-Thursday Club, as the easterners are called, are rather effective in staving off votes. Of the 60 House roll calls up to July 20, seven were held on three Mondays, and three were held on a Friday. The other 50 roll calls occurred only in mid-week when the Easterners are at work. The House has met on only three Fridays during the current session,

It's a good example of the JACK ANDERSON studied over-caution which is exercised by the intermediate level of bureaucrat, especially when it comes to dealing with monetary figures. This stems from three basic fears of government-type accountants:

1. The figure they release may not agree with that from another agency. 2. Their exdisagrees with that from another agency may not be fully 3. Their explanation cy's, and why, may not be given.

This all started July 21 when the Capitol News Service received a request from the Long Beach Independent, Press-Telegram for a rundown on how much the state coffers had been enriched by Long Beach harbor oil, and where the money had gone. This seemed like an interesting story and one not too difficult to develop so we

There are many times when an official would like to sound out his colleagues on what he considers a necessary but unpopular course of action. He would like to discuss the problem and get the benefit of his colleague's ideas without having to defend his statements in the newspapers.

There are other times when a narricular jurisdiction will find itself dealing with another jurisdiction which may have different objectives. One body may want to discuss its strategy without tipping its hand to the other body. This is somewhat difficult to do in an open, public meeting,

There are problems of determining sites and rights-of-way and acquiring property. Open, preliminary discussion of eventual property needs may serve to increase prices by the time the jurisdiction finally gets around to acquiring the needed property.

Brown admits that the anti-secrecy law may cause some problems for the public official and for public bodies. However, he denies that these problems are as big as some have claimed, and, in any event, he believes they are more than compensated by the added protection provided to the public interest and public money by protecting the public's right

Eyewash Works Fine for Most

(Prepared in collaboration with George X. Trimble, M.D., medical education director, Memorial Hospital of Long Beach.)

By BEN ZINSER

Eye irritation resulting occasionally-but rarelyfrom the use of an eyewash called Collyrium appears to be due to individual sensitivity to the preparation. This observation is reported to "Medicine and You" by Dr. G. E. Farrar Jr., medical director of Wyeth Laboratories manufacturer of Collyrium

In an earlier column we quoted an American Journal of Ophthalmology letter which speculated that occasional irritation from the eyewash may be due to using Collyrium which had set on the shelf too

Dr. Farrar says that Wyeth has found no evidence of change in composition or concentration of Collyrium ingredients when the preparation is kept for a long

He says that in the past 7½ years Wyeth has received about one report of "irritation, stinging or burning" for every 125,000 bottles of Collyrium pro-

This rare incidence, he notes, "is compatible with a sensitivity response . . . following the use of other drugs.

Such a response is known as keratitis medicamentosa-comeal inflammation caused by medication. The majority of individuals who use Collyrium are not adversely affected by the product, which is used extensively. A SLOW PULSE rate of only 30 beats a minute does not necessarily mean heart disease or even some other ailment. Dr. Gordon S. Myers, consultant to the AMA Journal, says such a pulse occasionally is found in healthy athletes at rest.

PRESSURE-COOKING does not affect food to the extent that there is any adverse effect on the growth of children. So says Ogden C. Johnson, Ph. D., a consultant to the AMA Journal.

There's no evidence, he says, that pressure-cooking interferes with the nutrients associated with bone development-vitamins A, C and D.

Vitamin C is the most easily damaged of the vitamins, says Dr. Johnson---yet pressure-cooking of vegetables results in a high retention of this vitamin.

COW'S MILK HAS been commonly implicated in infant eczema, but new research shows that it apparently has little influence on skin rash.

The finding is that of Dr. Stanley S. Freedman of Rhode Island Hospital, Providence, R. I.

After studying 50 infants with severe eczema, he reports in the American Journal of Diseases of Children that:

"Mothers . . . are very likely to attribute . . . flareups to milk sensitivity factors, when octually the changes may be due to the nature of the disease or to other factors."

"In this selected series," he continues, "cow's milk seemed to exert very little influence upon the course of the eczema.'

Thirty-three Anaheim mington. homeowners Saturday began negotiation to secure title to their homes as the result of a decision in Orange County Superior Court Friday, All of the homes were involved in the trustee manipulation of the now defunct Mason Mortgage Co.

Judge Robert P. Kneeland issued an order releasing federally appointed trustee James H. Sauls Jr. from a court injunction. Under the injunction, Sauls couldn't foreclose upon the homes or negotiate with the home-con tract holders.

Now, with the injunction modified, the way is clear for the 33 homeowners to begin negotiations with Sauls to secure clear title.

The homeowners bought their property and then dis covered the homes were en cumbered with second-, thirdand fourth-trust deeds. The injunction was placed against the trusteeship to prevent the residents from losing them through foreclosures.

Dodgers, Yanks Dream 🛜 of 1st $1 Million Series

The first million dollar World Series players pool could result this year if the Dodgers and the New York Yankees win their league pennants and meet for the world's championship.

And with the Dodgers scheduled to vacate the vast Los Angeles Coliseum with its 94,600-seat baseball capacity, 1961 could be the last season in which a million dollars would be the possible pot for players under present conditions.

All records for attendance, receipts, players' pool and winning and losing shares were set in 1959 when the Dodgers and Chicago White Sox met in the World

These marks were established with half the games being played in Comiskey Park where the largest attendance was 48,013 although the listed seating capacity is 46,-

Yankee Stadium has a seating capacity of 67,000 and probably would exceed that by a few thousand persons with temporary

The players' pool on the first four games of the 1959 Series was $892,365. Approximately 40,000 additional seats would be available for the first two games in Yankee Stadium as compared with Comiskey Park.

That would, with capacity crowds, increase the attendance for the first four games of a possible Dodger-Yankee Series to around 320,000 persons as compared with 280,425 for the first four games of

And the resulting increase in the players' pool would be close to $200,000, or a total of well above a million dollars.

It's no wonder that players on both the Dodger and Yankee clubs are rooting for each other to emerge as league champions. In the 1959 Series, a winning share for the players amounted to $11,231.18 and losing shares were worth $7,275.17.

Based on the possibility of a players pool of more than a million dollars if the Dodgers-Yankee Series materializes, a winning share could be worth more than $13. 000 and a losing share around $8,500.

LAST YEAR WHEN THE Yankees lost the World Series to the Pittsburgh Pirates, the winning shares were worth $8,417.94, or less than the possible losing shares in a Dodger-Yankee Series.

Aside from the financial gains that would come from a Dodger-Yankee Series, the Dodgers would like to meet the Bronx Bombers if they get into the World Series because of the opportunity for a triumphal return to New York.

And to baseball observers there existed no doubt that the Dodgers against the Yankees would fill both the Coliseum and Yankee Stadium to capacity every time they met.

So far as their pennant race is concerned, the Dodgers want to go into their new Chavez Ravine home as champions if at all possible and they are going to shoot the works to achieve that goal,

Rams Laud 49er Rookies

REDLANDS-Two San Francisco 49er rookies monopolized most of the Ram coaches' drool Friday night as the mentors viewed the Eagle-All Star game with the press here.

The five coaches present (Don Paul was still recovering from surgery) decided that end Aaron Thomas and quarterback Bill Kilmer were the collegiate standouts. Only one other player got a nod-E. J. Holub, the beast from Texas Tech, who appropriately was nominated by a defensive coach!

Here's what the Ram staff thought of the All-Stars:

Bob Waterfield -- "Nobody really impressed me on the All-Stars. The Eagles just shut them off at every turn. I was surprised the score (28-14) was so close, but it was no true indication of the big edge the Eagles had over the kids. If I had to pick one man that I probably noticed more than the others it would have to be Kilmer, but then he's the quarterback and you have to notice him." Tom Fears - "Kilmer looked real good to me. I was surprised he handled himself so well because he hasn't worked in that type of quarterback very long.

BOB WATERFIELD

"Nobody Impressed Me"

Hamp Pool-"Aaron Thomas impressed me. I thought he made some real pro catches against a tough defense."

Jim David-"Being a good defensive coach, I give my vete to E. J. Holub. This kid moved around real good backing up the line, but I didn't think he had much opportunity. He's going to be a great one, I think. Too bad he wound up in the other league." (Holub was signed by Dallas of the AFL.)

Vic Lindskog-"Thomas gets my vote, with Kilmer a close second. Off that game, the 49er scouts should get a bonus for tabbing those two kids."

Publicist Jack Teele, the coach without portfolio, showed he was all heart by selecting Ram draftee Marlin McKeever as his top choice. There is no bias attached," claimed Teele, who was believed by no one.

WATERFIELD HAD SOME pertinent comments on the world champion Eagles, too.

"They miss Van Brocklin," declared Waterfield, never a lodge brother of the Dutchman. "Jurgensen is a good quarterback, but he's no Van Brocklin, I don't think the Eagles will finish in the top three in the Eastern Division."

The Ram coaches unanimously rooted for the Eagles to trim the college boys.

"It's a matter of pride," explained Fears, "The Eagles are pros and so are we. It's top embarrassing for all the pros if a hunch of green kids get together and whip the

"We want to see our draftees look good, but we want the pro team to win every time."

WHENEVER A RAM ROOKIE distinguished himself, the coaches performed like college cheerleaders. On one play McKeever crashed like a Joe Schmidt or Les Richter. The TV room noise rattled in the rafters for many seconds and nearly shook the ice tea glasses from a few paws.

After watching the pros score twice on aerials to Tommy McDonald standing completely alone in the end zone, David the defensive man mouned:

"If those were my men, I'd cut their throats, Mc-Donald won't be that clear again even if he were playing

Another Ram-to-be, Pervis "Afterburner" Atkins, evoked "ohs" and "ahs" even though he was less than

"He's a beautiful runner," remarked Waterfield "real beautiful. He didn't set the world on fire against the Eagles, but he still ran with a beautiful motion. The "Afterburner" wasn't extinguished, but it flickered dangerously all night,

THE COACHES REALLY BLASTED the announcing ... just like you and l.

'They've called half the plays wrong aircady." snorted Fears at halftime. "These guys must get $5,000 to handle this game and they can't even take the time to study the plays."

"They missed half the tackies and the ball carriers," sniffed Pool. "You'd think somebody'd tell 'em to check the Jersey numbers some day." Ole Kel should have been with us. The verbal blasts at the "other guys" this time would have pumped the Hoosier Irishman's ego higher than the balloon Brendan Behan uses for his sobriety tests,

Chargers Still Face Financial Woes

HITTIN' THE HIGH SPOTS: Despite optimistic press releases by AFL commissioner Joe Foss regarding season ticket sales, the league appears doomed to another financial blood bath this year.

The loop dropped roughly $4 million in its first season a year ago and even though budgets of the eight clubs have dropped an estimated million dollars overall, the loss figures to be at least half of that suffered in '60.

JOE FOSS Remains Optimistic

It could be even worse in the event of runaway races such as expected in the Western Division. which the San Diego Chargers, late of Los Angeles, should win with little challenge from the other teams. Sid Gillman will have no excuses if he blows the championship.

The Chargers, of course, took the heaviest loss last vear - $900,000, It won't be near that in San Diego, but there is growing concern that red ink will be used quite extensively by the bookkeepers.
Although the Chargers will get free rent at Balboa Stadium plus the concessions, they'll have to virtually sell out the stadium for each league game to come close to breaking even.

Their budget, which was planned at $750,000 for the second year, has soared to $1,200,000 because of the move to San Diego and the competitive bidding with the NFL

MEANWHILE, THE RENOVATION of the stadium, which includes double-decking to boost the seating capacity to 35,000, is still several weeks from being completed. In fact, it may not be finished until sometime in October. A major delay would be disastrous. There will be less than 19,000 seats available for today's first exhibition game.

And as of the past week, the season ticket sale, optimistically predicted at more than 22,000 when the club was moved to San Diege, had reached only 8,500.

As of this time, it looks as if the league as a whole will lose around $2 million . . . the Chargers upwards of a quarter of a million.

CLEVELAND FALLS IN U.S. JR. TOURNEY

ITHACA, N. Y.-"Just say I played badly," said Roger Cleveland of Lakewood, Calif., Saturday after dropping his fourth-round match in the U.S. Golf Assn. junior champion-ships. C. S. McDowell of Virginia Beach, Va., won the match, 3 and 2.

By the 10th hole, Roger had cut McDowell's early 3-hole margin to one. But on the 13th, a long par 4, his second shot found a trap and it took him two to get out,

"That's the one that

After a passing mention that ocean fishing continues from very good to good to fair, with few returning disappointed, today seems appropriate to investigate the water fowl hunting situation.

A "moderate" decline in the waterfowl population is the prospect for the coming 12-month period, a U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service spokesman says. He estimates that moderate decline to be 15 to 20 per cent.

Cause is a prolonged drought in the Canadian and Alaskan breeding grounds where ducks for the Pacific

But there was good news, too, for waterfowl hunters. While the decrease in the duck population is a serious one, the coming fall season will see the largest geese population in the Pacific flyway in 15 years.

The government official, John Chattin, reported this to members of the eight-state Pacific Flyway Council. Spokesmen for the council indicated there will be agitation to increase the bag limits this season in spite of the negative overall reports.

One spokesman from California said he doubted the validity of Chattin's report.

An Oregon representative to the council said the waterfowl picture in his state was so bright that immediate action was needed to relieve overpopulation.

He said the mallard count has climbed from 800,000 to over 2,000,000 hirds "and we'd like some way to har-

All in all, the overall picture is somewhat confused.

CHATTIN reported that figures on last year's hunting season show a total waterfowl bag increase of seven per cent to about 2.6 million. All of the increase was in California. The other Western states reported a decrease in

A LONG BEACH angler saw his record wiped off the books in recent days. Ralph Chevalier's two-year record of yellowtail taken on a 10-pound test line in Schenley Sportsmen's Club International Spinfishing Assn. competition was topped.

Chevalier's catch was 21 pounds 2 ounces in 1959. The new record, confirmed last week, is 29-8. It went to Joe H. Glauber of Los Angeles. He too it near Catalina Island on June 6.

BREAKING down those "very good" to "fair" ocean fishing reports:

Anglers averaged 8.2 fish per season the past few days out of Newport Pier Sportsfishing. Barracuda catches have been "excellent" according to reports from Pierpoint. Same from Seal Beach. Pacific Landing says half-day boats have reported successful trips, taking barracuda, bonito and bass from a small town (Smithton, Pa.)," she said. "They know you in a certain way and don't like to see you change.'

THE ROLE, however, also opened the eyes of producers suiding filmtown's resurgence of musicals-pictures that require solid stories tures that require solid stories and acting rather than the old-style simple song-andold-style simple song-anddance films.

The result: the blonde Miss Jones is the star of "The Music Man" and has been approached to do "Camelot."

As further proof that she has "arrived," the actress has hought the lavish home of onetime star Merle Oberon 🖈 for $250,000.

"HONESTLY," Miss Jones said in the rear terrace of her at this point in my careerhaving just won the Oscar-I think I need another part

The "all-American girl" tag almost killed Miss Jones' big publicity to do "Okla-homa" and "Carousel." The pictures were something less

REALTOR

A REALTOR pledges himself "to seek better to represent my clients by building my knowledge and competence."

Values, Financing, Termite Reports, Location, Trust Deeds, Trades, Exchanges. It requires years of study and experience to develop the "know-how" to handle even what seems like a simple deal and to give protection to both buyer and seller. A REALTOR is constantly attending meetings to learn more about the infinite details of buying and seiting. A REALTOR is constantly exchanging ideas with other REALTORS. A REALTOR is constantly in touch through his Realty Board with contemplated changes and improvements in the community. These are important factors for you to consider when BUYING or SELLING.

When You Think About Real Estate ... Remember ...

Your Best Friend Is a REALTOR!

Proposed World Exposition Entrance Zodys Department Store

PROPOSED SITE FOR a $110 Million Planet of Man International Exposition in 1966 would be on Pier J in Long Beach Harbor. The 311-acre Pier J isn't scheduled to be built until 1964 but the executives of the International Exposition of Southern California, Inc., has many plans drawn for the development, including the architect's rendering here of one of the entrances. The nonprofit organization would build the fair facilities and deed the buildings to the city for a permanent international trade center. Approval of the project site in Long Beach is pending before Congress. It was estimated that the year-long event would bring 50 million visitors to

Realty Board's Annual Essay Contest Is Open

Gene Nebeker, president of,"The Home Is the Heart and the Long Beach Board of Hope of the Nation" is open Realtors announces that the to all students in the 9th, 1961 essay contest entitled 10th, 11th, and 12th grades.

The Long Beach board is sponsoring the contest and the purpose is to stimulate a deeper appreciation of the importance of home ownership to the national security of the country. There are many other ways for young people to spend their earnings besides making the more conservative investment of a home. The many advantages of home ownership to the individual and the nation will be discovered anew by the students when they sit down to write an essay on this subject, said Nebeker.

Rules of the contest are: The essay must not exceed 300 words. It must be submitted in original form and with three typed copies attached, giving the name of the entrant, age, name of school, grade, and shall be postmarked on or before Friday, at the Tuesday morning Aug. 25, The winning essay will be sent in to the California Real Estate Association and entered in a statewide contest, to be judged at the state convention to be held in Los Angeles, Oct. 1-5. The winner of the statewide contest and his or her parents will be sent to the state convention at the expense of CREA.

Golden West Estates is establishing a new trend in providing custom changes to suit the buyers. Here is one of the models which has proven highly popular. It is a double patio plan.

Aim: Pick City's Top Cooks

By MILDRED K. FLANARY

Another deadline has been met-we mean Sunday, midnight-July 23-and the Seventh Annual I, P-T Cook Book is underway. One thousand and thirty-nine recipes cleared the postoffice that night to bring the total received to 5,672! The Cook Book will be published Sep-

Both women AND men responded generously, and the recipes are outstanding. This year space will be devoted to "measurements," "substitutions" and "equivalents" —information determined needful from calls received by this department throughout the year.

Final judging of recipes will be August 14 by a panel of five home economists, following the selection of five recipes, from a classification of 38, by 36 leading women's and two men's organizations in Long Beach. The five final judges will be: Mmes, Aline Law Vosler, Young & Rubicam Advertising Agency, Los Angeles; Dorothy Furman, Public Relations Counselor, Los Angeles; Mabel Hoffman, Director of Home Economics Van tor of Cafeterias, Unified School District, Long Beach; and Barbara Clinton, Director Consumer Service, Western Growers Assn.

These newspapers hosted a tea several weeks ago at the Ridder home for representatives of these clubs, at which time they were instructed on their official contest duties. From the selection of winners will be two grand prize winners, and a first, second and third winner in each classification. All winners will be included in the Cook Book edition along with the entrants' names and

Major & Minor Notes SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA IS HUNGRY FOR OPERA

By RACHEL MORTON

The other night as I watched the Hollywood Rowl fill to near-capacity for the first time this season, when the opera "La Boheme" by Puccini was given, the thought came to me, "These are people hungry for opera and starved because of the scarcity of it." Here were thou-sands of people who had "bucked" traffic, waited patiently in long lines to buy tickets, and had paid well for the privilege of climbing high to their seats (unless, of course, they had paid more and were in boxes.)

This was the public's response to an evening of opera, sung in a foreign language and with only one famous name in the cast. From the shouts and applause at the end, one got the impression that the audience had had its money's worth. And yet, we have only one opera performance in the whole summer season of Hollywood Bowl

THE EXPLANATION might be given that opera is too costly. But the Bowl was practically full for "La Boheme, while the symphonic programs have been poorly attended,

Opera is popular in Los Angeles. Sold-out houses are Opera is popular in Los Angeles. Sold-out houses are the rule during the three-week visit of the San Francisco Opera season and there have been sold-out houses for the very limited season of four performances of the Los Angeles Opera Company the past few years.

Why then do we not have a permanent opera company in Los Angeles? New York City has two opera companies, the Metropolitan and the New York City Opera Company. The city of Dallas has a flourishing opera company as have Chicago, Boston, St. Louis, Cincinnati and many others. San Francisco not only has built a beautiful opera house. but it gives a spring and fall opera season.

EVEN IN THE DESERT of New Mexico, five miles north of Santa Fe, there is a beautiful new opera house which gives a nine-week season of opera during the summer. The Opera Association pays an annual budget of $200,000 for these performances and is inordinately proud of its success. The operas are sung in English and the repertoire includes the standard works as well as novelties.

We are moving slowly toward the goal of opera in our own midst with the advent of a new opera house and music center in Los Angeles. But that won't become a reality for several years. Meanwhile, if we can't produce opera regularly to a hungry public now, how shall we produce it then? We have all the ingredients for a very successful permanent opera in Los Angeles; we have exceptempo of modern youthful 'tastes and abilities, Backtional talent right here among us; we have a symphony orchestra ripe and willing for opera productions; a ready made chorus of perfection, with its director, Roger Wagner. sistants bring the number of What then is the matter?

THE MATTER is MONEY and a lack of cultural interest. It takes money to run an opera company. But in greater Los Angeles there is vast wealth among its citizenry. So it boils down to this: What is the matter with the wealthy citizenry? Why do they not form a corporation and back such an enterprise?

One could not expect support from the generous Los Angelenos who sponsor the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra. There should be a new and enthusiastic group formed of wealthy patrons of music in the Los Angeles area to create permanent opera. Then we might proudly take our place among the cultural cities of the nation.

Sources of the collection are individual gifts, gifts from foundations, civic or business groups, and gifts from artists themselves. Mingled among some really fine works by distinguished artists are those of more interest historically than artistically.

THE MUSEUM has never had an acquisition fund of its own, and a lack of money for insurance and security, as well as inadequate storage facilities, has prevented the museiun from receiving at least two outstanding major collec-

WITH SO many works worthy of consideration, it seems unfair to call attention to only a few, but we were charmed by the black Etruscan ceramic cups of 600 B.C. (donated by Judge and Mrs, Morton L. Barker); "Peggy," an oil of a lady in a hat by Anthony Ricci (donated by Robert Blake); an abstract by Betting Brendel (Friends of the Museum); works by Dan Lutz (Dr. Ludwig Uri); "Nest of the Crab," welded

At Huntington

A small exhibit at Huntington Library and Art Gal-lery, San Marino, honors the 150th anniversary of the birth of William Makepeace Thackery. On display are several of the 20 original monthly installments of Vanity Fair," two numbers of "Pendennis" and a page of that novel's manuscript, and an original drawing by Thackery for one of its illustrations.

A second small exhibit honors David Hume, philosopher and historian, born 250 years ago in Edinburgh.

Long Beach dogs check new dog food claims

LONG BEACH, Calif. - Local dogs turned out in force recently when General Mills h

2 out of 3 dogs switched to New Surechamp Meal Ticket

in General Mills' Kennel Tests

1.00 GUARANTEE OFFERED

One of America's leading food producers, General Mills, has created a new dog food called Surechamp Meal Ticket with such an appealing and different taste that:

- 2 out of 3 dogs tested switched to it from their regular dry dog food in scientific kennel tests.
- In a series of public feeding tests 2 out of 3 dogs also chose new Surechamp Meal Ticket over their owner's choice of five leading packaged dog foods.
- General Mills guarantees dogs will enjoy the new food and backs the guarantee with the offer of a $1.00 coupon, good toward the purchase of any dry dog food.

Meal Ticket is a greatly improved formulation of Surechamp, a food long popular among West C.ast dogs.

Tests prove theories

The feeding tests, General Mills spokesmen say, gave scientific proof to widely held theories that dogs, like people, welcome exciting new flavor in their diets, Discoveries about the importance of a combination of ingredients, cooking, shape and texture in the enhancement of dog food flavor produced the taste triumph.

Unique new shape

The product's unique new roll shape is of great importance, General Mills officials say, Kennel tests show dogs are especially fond of this new form.

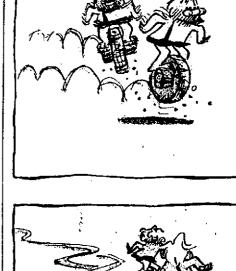

And, certain ingredients not only enhance flavor but add vitamins and proteins to an already completely balanced canine meal.

"EATIN' GOOD" GUARANTEE Following are details of the product's guarantee, believed to be the most daring in the history of the dog food industry.

New-guaranteed eatin' good. Your dog will eat and enjoy Surechamp Meal Ticket. If he doesn't, send the certificate of guarantee from any package of New Surechamp Meal Ticket and a letter describing your deg's reaction to: General Mills, Inc., Box 37, Minneapolis 60, Minn. ### OUR COVER

membered as 1959-1960 football captain and 1959 "athlete of the year" on the campus of Long Beach State College. He is one of 25 rookie candidates battling for only five or six berths available on the Rams squad, and it's a tough and exhausting life. For Keelor's thoughts and experiences as he undergoes make-orbreak indoctrination beneath the Redlands sun see P. 7.

EAR MISS RULE: Please analyze KENYON,---G.D., Long Beach,

G. D.: KENYON has two sources. In England it is traced to the Celtic word "Ceinwen" meaning "splendidly blond one." In Ireland, similar source phrase "Ceann - Fhionn" described "white headed one." Robert Le Kenien of Lancashire was a 13th century forebear. This lineage were titled Lords Kenyon. Their coat-of-arms has a scallop-edged gold chevron between three silver crosses on a black shield, with the motto "Magnanimiter crucem sustine" meaning "Sustain the стояя bravely."

DEAR MISS RULE: Have you data on ZERR and ZEHR? — B.Z., Lakewood; R.Z., Long Beach.

B.Z., R.Z.: ZERR and ZEHR go back to a German family whose ancestor was called Nazarius meaning "Nazarene or follower of Jesus Christ," Nazarius was shortened to the nickname Zar by use of its middle syllable. Zar was altered to Zarr, Zerr and Zehr in German dialect, The family coat-of-arms has two silver halberds (combined spears and battle axes) crossed on a red shield.

New Look in Roadside Safety

By Robert Hazelleaf

POR A LONG time, Phillip A. Younes winced whenever he saw a stalled auto along the roadside, particularly at night, a sitting duck for oncoming vehicles.

The Anaheim insurance man and his partner, Charles Krocker, a photo supplies dealer who also lives in Anabeim, have come up with an idea that may soon dispense with inadequate reflectors, dangerous flares and makeshift emergency lights.

"There must be a place for me out there." So muses Dick Keelor, ex-captain and star guard at Long Beach State College, as he looks out across the Los Angeles Rams training field at Redlands University.

Keelor practices a block on Lamar Lundy, veteran of many Ram battles.

A PALM TREE may be big in Long Beach, but put it among the redwoods, and it's just another little tree.

There is a small forest of human redwoods at the University of Redlands this summer . . . species, professional football players belonging to the family of Rams.

the family of Rams.

One of them, however, feels more like a palm tree. He is Dick Keelor, former star guard, "athlete of the year" and two-year captain of the Long Beach State College football team.

"At times, on the field, I have the certainty that I must be the smallest man on the squad," says Keelor. "I try to stand tall and look big, despite the fact that I know I weigh 250 pounds."

AT LBSC, Keelor was a BIG man. Now, the 24-year-old Redondo Beach resident, is "expending a jillion calories and working like the devil" to realize the slim hope of becoming one of five or six of 25 rookies who will make the squad.

For a million boys — and another million dads—here's what it's like in a day in the life of a rookie professional footballer, a la Dick Keelor:

The alarm clock goes off in Dick's room in "Rookieville," the top floor of the Rams' modern three-story campus dormitory.

Keelor: "I get up about 15 minutes earlier than most of the other players in order to study my play book and read the newspapers. We don't watch television or listen to the radio here, so the newspapers are our only means of keeping up with current affairs."

BREAKFAST in the campus cafeteria is at 7 o'clock. Dick's normal fare is three poached eggs, two slices of toast and hot tea.

Keelor: "You shouldn't eat too much breakfast because... You have to go on the field in a short time, and complete

The rookies run in the Redlands sun . . . and, Brother, it's rugged!

After breakfast, Dick returns to his room to rest and study plays again.

Keelor: "A professional football team has a great number of complicated plays and formations. For a rookie to miss an assignment in practice is a cardinal sin."

At about 8:10 a.m., he heads for the training room to have his ankles taped... one and one-half rolls of tape to each ankle. Then he walks to the Ram locker room in the Redlands Gymnasium to put on his uniform.

The uniform consists of jersey, shoulder pads, hip pads, pants with built-in thigh pads, shoes and helmet.

Keelor: "Some of the players would like to have less padding because it weighs so much and decreases your speed. But self-preservation dictates it, especially if you're a lineman going to get hit from all sides. I really admire the defensive backs who use little padding. They are a gritty little bunch trying to tackle men twice their size. I guess they operate on the principle that a jeep going 90 miles an hour hits harder than a bus going 20."

ONCE ON the practice field, Dick runs three laps of 110 yards each, to warm up, and, loosen his muscles. A five minute calisthenics period follows under the direction of offlensive line coach Vic Lindskog. Keelor: "Toward the end of the exercises, all the players are alert for the sound of Coach Bob Waterfield's whistle. The instant it sounds, we all sprint to the opposite goal post. The last man gets razzed, and no rookie wants to be last or is looking for a razzing. It is amazing how fast some of the bigger players are. John Lovetere (290 pounds) runs by me as if he was on a horse."

Team practice begins for Dick with pounding of a line sled, a connected plank of dummies which moves with the body contact of the charging players. Then the players individually assault the

"White Whale," a mammoth, 250-p o u n d d u m m y, to strengthen their forearms and get the feel of heavy contact. Formal team drills begin normally with an offensive unit taking on a defensive unit.

Keelor: "It was really a big thing the first time I got into the huddle and looked up to see Jon Arnett and Ollie Matson or stood on the line next to Les Richter and Art Hunter. As a kid, I used to think great football players are invincible. But now I know they are just normal people doing a tremendous job."

MORNING DRILL ends about 11:10 a.m. and the players shower, dress and go to lunch, which consists mainly of sandwiches and salads.

Salt tablets — muscle cramp preventives—go with lunch.

Post-luncheon routine is similar to the morning procedure.

Keelor: "I usually sleep for 45 minutes, and try to keep off my feet when I'm awake. Every time you walk, your heart beats faster and you're burning up energy. I want to conserve every ounce of my resources for the call to the field. Some of the players play cards, listen to records and shoot the breeze. I'd rather study the plays."

Afternoon practice hegins at 2:50 p.m., preceded by taping, dressing and another three-lap run. The searing Redlands heat is now a major factor, and it is amazing how well the players stand up in practice in the 100-degree temperature.

Keelor: "One of the funny things about afternoon practice is the water call. When the coach blows the whistle, the players charge at a tiny

"Sack time." and Keelor, like all of the rookies fighting for places on the squad, gets what rest he can in between rugged practice sessions in the summer swelter.

J. Paul Getty installs pay phone station for guests at his mansion

Billionaire at Home

By Eddy Gilmore

TNDERSTANDABLY, the entrance to the home of the richest man in the wold is barred by a pair of tall steel gates.

Modestly woven into the gilt and old rose grill work atop the portal's towering black bars is the name of the great estate;

"Sutton Place,"

It nestles in the leafy countryside of the gentle County of Surrey, 30 miles southwest of London.

Two years ago American oilman J. Paul Getty (he helped develop the pool at Santa Fe Springs) bought Sutton Place from George Grenville Sutherland-Leveson-Gower, fifth duke of Sutherland.

The price was about $2,800,000 and the staggering sum included a 500-year-old Tudor mansion, a house in which kings and queens have dined and made merry.

Unlike many of Britain's stately homes, it is not open to the public. Billionaire Getty hardly needs the small coins charged by some of Britain's hard-pressed gentry to view their historic mansions. But he's not above making his guests drop coins in a pay telephone for any calls they make.

FORTUNE MAGAZINE has called Getty the richest man in the world. Of his wealth, which he will discuss only with painful reluctance, he says:

"If I did sell out today, I'd hope to get several billion dollars."

"It's bad form to brag about having money," philosophizes the oilman. "One just doesn't do it."

From the front gate — which swings open on well-oiled tracks after a go-ahead from the manor, the road to Getty's Tudor pile is paved and it's nearly two miles long. At its end stands Sutton Place, a mansion of oid brick and stone, toned down by time to a color between a soft dark

Ring and after two or three minutes a butler, straight out of the movies, with starched collar and morning clothes, appears and leads the way through a vestibule, down a spacious corridor and into a huge room looking out through leaded windows on to the front garden.

PRETTY GIRL IN a pink dress is sitting in a deep chair, which is upholstered in a heavy material the color of magnolia leaves that have seen a hard summer.

"Good afternoon," she says, agreeably. But she does not introduce herself. The butler disappears through a side door, his well-polished shoes sliding noiselessly over the wall-towall camel-colored carpeting.

The room is superb with old masters adorning the pine-panelled walls and comfortable furniture abounding.

Then, from the side door, Getty enters.

At 64, his figure is spare and straight, his well-tailored suit subdued, and stightly old fashioned.

ABOUT HIS LONG, thin face there's a sort of melancholy resolution. His eyes are blue-green. The nose is long and broad at the base above thin but well-shaped lips.

His voice is soft and modulated the accent of a man from the American Southwest who's spent a lot of time in foreign lands.

He sips the ten but he passes up the sandwiches and cake while urging them on you.

After some chit-chat, he says: "Come, let me show you the house."

The great library, with its minstrel galley and its priceless furniture, is first.

He gives you plenty of time to examine every object, but volunteers no observations. With every reason in the world to be house-proud, he isn't.

Leading the way, he shows you in turn the great hall, the long gallery, its magnificent paintings and tapestries and treasures in the form of furniture.

THE ROOM IS ABOUT 50 yards long and down its length runs what must be one of the longest tables in the world.

It can seat 150—with plenty of elbow room. Six places were set in lonesome splendor.

Getty led the way to his kitchens where he has worked his biggest transformation since moving.

The old flag-stoned floor has gone. False ceilings have been installed with bright fluorescent lighting. All the equipment is American. There are four stainless steel sinks. Stacks of wall ovens and counter cooking tops and a new deep freeze room. The ancient butler's pantry—once dark and gloomy—is a pretty blue and white.

"Now let's go outside," says the master.

"Heated," he says, rather solemnly

His bathroom—one of 10 he's installed — has mirrored walls and elaborate onyx fittings.

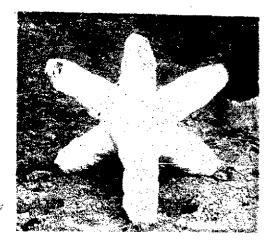

"And now," says Gelty, "I must show you the telephone pay station I've installed."

It's near the butler's pantry, for the use of guests, employes and workers.

"The guests won't mind paying for their calls," he says, "and as for the deadbeats, I couldn't care less."

Cholla

By Jack B. Kemmerer

■ 'HOLLA (pronounced "choyah"), a game being played on cattle and dude ranches in the West, has been called the "roughest game since the days of Cortez." This is a sweeping statement inasmuch as sport-minded athletes have cudgeled their brains for centuries to find fiercer and more elaborate methods of committing mass mayhem under the name of sport. Cholla, patterned somewhat like polo, is a contest that rates high on the list.

Cholla requires steady nerves, great courage, expert horsemanship and the ability to think and act with split-second speed.

Little equipment is needed to play it—except it is wise to have a paid up accident insurance policy. The game is played in chukkers lasting seven minutes each with six stout-hearted horsemen on the field — three on each side. Other than the players' lariats, their mounts and four makeshift gnalposts the only other equipment necessary is the cholla itself.

The cholla is a device looking like a sixlegged iron contraption standing two feet high and heavily padded with leather or canvas. It must not weigh in excess of 15 pounds and books like an oversized version of the jacks used in children's games.

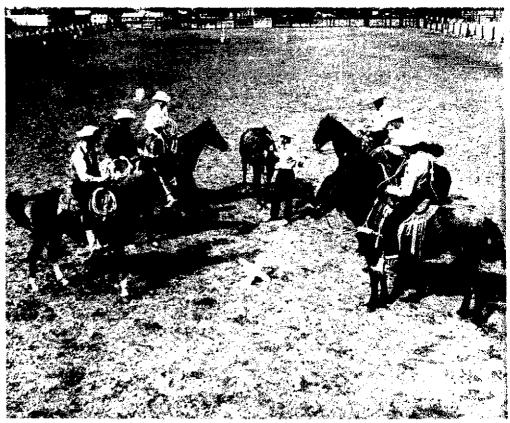

SOME PERSONS dispute the exact origin of the game and many claim it came with Cortez and his Spanish conquistadores when they invaded the New World. According to these experts, Cortez wasn't trying to entertain the crowds but wanted some spectacular means of impressing the native populace with the courage and skill of his horse-

In more recent years, several westerners have claimed credit for inventing cholla but Paul Coze, cowboy-writer-ethnologist of Phoenix, is generally credited with being the first to introduce the version now being played.

Coze's hobby had long been fancy roping, which he learned—strangely enough—in Alexandria, Egypt. When asked how he thought of playing cholla his answer was a question in return. "What does one do if one gets tired of roping a stake or old saddie? What does one do if there are no calves or goats or if one is too polite to rope a dog, or too ambitious to rope a chicken?"

In 1938, Coze was staying at the Comelback lim in Phoenix. One windy day he was riding idly through the desert when a piece of "jumping cactus"—known as cholla—broke loose and "spooked" his horse as it went sailing by. In a matter of seconds Coze instinctively threw his lariat and roped the piece of elusive cactus. While he didn't realize it immedately, this was the beginning of the game of "Cholla."

SHORTLY AFTER his roping experience with the jumping cactus. Coze began to think of the possibilities of a game when a man's skill at both roping and riding would be utilized. He bought a large rubber ball, tried to tie ropes around it so it would still roll but it wouldn't work, as the lariat loop would not take hold.

It was then that it dawned on him—why not make a "cholla" and use that—without the sticky sharp spines, of course. The idea appealed strongly and he even decided that "cholla" would make a good name for the new game.

Coze discussed the novel idea with many of the guests of the Camelback Inn. From these discussions the rudiments of the game began to appear. This would be polo, only with a rope instead of a mallet. The cholla would be rolling along with the ropers fighting over its possession.

Among the guests at that time was Bob Zuppke, famed football coach from Chicago. Zuppke suggested that the game be played something like football with touchdowns, time outs, penalties and regular periods.

FROM THE beginning the game caught on

quickly through the western part of the United States with the major activities being in Arizona, New Mexico and California. By the time World War II started there were 16 organized teams in the field ranging from Texas to Oregon.

It was only natural that a game of this type would catch the eye of the more rugged type of Hollywood western film stars. They quickly organized a team, figuring that their prowess in the saddle would wow their fans. After a bit of practice they challenged a team from one of the Arizona ranches, inviting the veteran players to come out to Hollywood and get the drubbing of their lives

But, alas for the celluloid heroes, somebody switched the script on them! Every one of the glamour gauchos quit cold after the initial chukker in the very first game with the seasoned visitors and went limping off the field in search of liniment, splints, and sympathy.

When studio moguls heard of the game they

After dinner, the players relax while waiting for the 8 o'clock squad meeting.

Keelor: "I try to rest and study the plays some more. Some of the players play ping pong, and a few practice their golf shots on the lawn. A few are good singers, and have fun harmonizing."

AT THE SQUAD meeting, Coach Waterfield and his staff show slides of plays and formations on a large screen in the dormitory lounge. Questions are asked, and tests given. The meeting normally lasts until 9:15.

Keelor: "After the meeting, I always call my wife at home. She's teaching school at Redondo Beach this summer. She asks me first if I'm hurt, and then how am I doing. We've been married for three years, so being separated isn't too bad. My roommate, Bruce Olderman, has been married for only four weeks, and it's tough on him."

The players get ready for bed at about 10:30 p.m. Cur-few is at 11, and trainer George Menefee conducts a bed-check.

Keelor: "Falling asleep is hard at times. It's warm, and you are thinking about the day's activities, and worrying about your status. standing joke among the rookies is that there will come a knock on your door in the middle of the night to inform you that you've been cut from the squad . . . or you'll wake up in the morning to find your name has been removed from the doorplate. NIQUE, indeed, is the idea which Mr, and Mrs. Jerry Peluso, 3301 Golden Ave., incorporated in their home. They enjoy vacationing in a mountain cabin and, since they do not relish the thought of driving distances involved in such a trip, they built a cabin near a large pine tree in their own back yard,

The home itself is modest and interesting. Innovations throughout, created and executed by Mrs. Peluso, add function and attractiveness to every room. The neat exterior with the white picket fence enclosing the small front yard makes observers think in Home." "Home Sweet

A FEW treasured antiques, mostly family heirlooms that came from Italy, have been blended with newer pieces in the furnishings. Also, old pieces that had no particular claim to distinction have been remodeled to fit in with the Victorian decor. In the living room, for example, an old, but good couch has been redesigned with Victorian curves in the back pillows. It blends with the two gold upholstered Victorian chairs that flank it. Upholstering in the couch is now brown silk.

THE MUSIC ROOM has plenty of room for a grand piano. They have managed to obtain a hì-fi tone from their old radio in a clever manner. The radio was too new to be considered an antique and too old to be attractive in the room. An unused closet in the music room (formerly a bedroom) houses the radio and the front of the closet is draped. The music coming from behind the drapes has a fine tone, not unlike a hi-fi side leads to the kitchen and bath. This area was created from a part of the garage, and is complete to the smallest detail. There is a kitchen table and chairs, sink and stove (all cabin size), cupboards, portable shower and bathroom equipment.

The cabin is compact and equipped with an attractive provincial print couch, chest of drawers, TV set, bookshelves, closet and knicknacks for decorative purposes. The porch (or patio) in front has outside furniture for barbecues.

With this permanent vacation spot a few feet from their door, the Pelusos have no problem of boarding dogs, combatting traffic or jousting for accommodations in the busy resort season. In addition to this feature, the cabin also provides for occasional overnight guests.

Silver Chest Forebear

By Helen L. Gillum

ODAY'S mistress of the household does not consider her home well furnished unless she owns a handsome silver chest in which to store the family flatware. Years ago, however, a sideboard cabinet called a "knife box" was the proper piece of equipment in every well-appointed home. Usually found in pairs, these elegant items with their slotted interiors held knives and other silverware, such as forks, spoons, and carving implements. Because of their unique design, they were made only by the most skilled cabinetmakers, and were, of course, very costly.

The knife box pictured with this article belongs to Mrs. Wilma Hastings of 3511 E. 1st St., who purchased it several years ago at an antique show. Although the box bears no date or mark it is in the style of Adam and goes back to about 1790. Soon after Mrs. Hastings pur-chased the box, she noticed a yellowed, tightly-folded bit of paper wedged deep within one of the recesses. After several attempts with and nail-file, she tweezers managed to recover the crumpled scrap. On it was written the words, "Pedmore Hall, Worcestershire, England,"

Once an elegant item in the home, knife boxes are now of interest to collectors.

ORIGINALLY, these curious boxes were designed in pairs to stand upon pedestals, one at each end of the side table. One was used for ice-water, while the other held hot water in which the butler washed the silver for re-use in the next course. Later, perhaps when silver became more plentiful, both boxes were used to hold knives, forks, and spoons.

Famous designers of the times, such as Adam, Hepplewhite, and Shearer employed their genius to produce beautiful boxes of various sizes and shapes. The classical, urn-shaped boxes made popular by Adam were particularly favored. Many were elabor-ately carved or inlaid and fitted with silver handles,

ARCHITECT'S Sketchbook

Inexpensive materials go into these modern hanging lamps.

TODAY'S PROBLEM — What's an inexpensive way to get dromatic lighting?

CHAMP NEWSBITT, New York City architect, answers:

Lighting is one of the most important elements in decorating a room, yet often it is ignored in redecoration. Most people s imply decorate around the light fixtures present in a room, not realizing how big a difference new shapes and modern "area lighting" can make.

Shown in the photograph are three different dramatic hanging lamps, any one of which the average person could make quickly and inexpensively. Materials for an entire unit, less the light cord which will vary in length, come to about $1.35.

THE LAMPS may be used singly or in combination, with one or more styles in each group.

Materials required are a stiff plastic-coated paper, an ordinary hanging light socket, some hardware cloth, a short piece of copper wire and a bit of fishing leader. Following the directions on the plan, it's easy to get a prefessional looking result.

To order, specify Hanging Lump Plan S-15 and send name and address and 56 cents to Building Editor, Independent, Press-Telegram, 6th & Pine, Long Beach 12, Culi).

Make Colorful-But-Cool Awnings

with vertical slats not only shades the window in warm weather but permits warm air to rise through the slats. Gay colors add to appearance of home. Using a full-sized pattern any do-it-yourselfer can make these awnings inexpensively. Only simple tools are used. Material lists, directions and illustrations come with each pattern.

The weekend carpenter can take on this project; in fact, one awning can be made each evening. Patterns show how to make awnings to fit any size windows and how to install them.

To obtain the full-sized, ventilated awning Pattern No. 259, send name and address and 50 cents to Steve Ellingson, Long Beach Independent, Press-Telegram Pattern Dept., PO Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif.

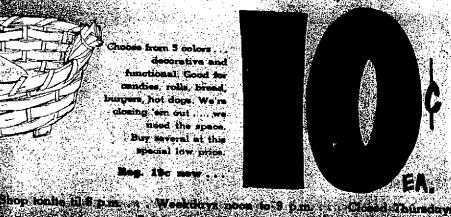

Ventilated awning is shown by NBC-TV's Diene Bootle.

WORLD WAR II naturally disrupted the game, but it came back strongly after the war. One of the top cholla champions and high-point men of the game was an Italian-American baker, Tony Zanetti, of Victorville.

The original rules of the game were extremely sketchy and almost non-existent. With this setup it was only natural that it became a very rough sport and even Coze broke his leg during one game be-ing played in the rain.

Today, however, the rules have been expanded much of the rough play eliminated. The game is played with three players on each side and a rectangular field with 200 feet between the goal posts is standard. The referce is mounted and gives signals by whistle. He can stop the game at any time for an infraction of the rules.

The game is started by placing the cholla in the center between the two goals. with the two teams at each end of the field. When the whistle blows the first roper tries to rope the cholla and to drag it through the goal. Once through the goal, the roper turns and comes back through the goal, down to the other end and back through -repeating until he has scored three goals. He receives one point for the first goal, two points for second, and three points for third—making a total of six points if he scores all three goals.

IN THE MEANTIME, his opponents are trying to rope the cholla and pull it back in the opposite direction to be-gin their series of three goals -also his teammates are trying to ride the opponents off the cholla in order to give him an open shot at the goals.

The cholla is placed in the center after each series of

FOOD

Punch for Summer

By Mildred K. Flangry

ALIFORNIA has given the traditional summer wine bowl, a custom that dates back many generations, a touch of the Golden West. It's claret mixed with fruit juices-both California produced.

But what if you don't have a punchbowl? If you're not one of the lucky few to inherit great-grandma's silver, you can improvise a very gay punchbowl with the help of gaily-colored aluminum foil gift wrap. As shown in the picture, you simply take an ordinary kitchen bowl—perhaps a mixing bowl — and measure its circumference, cut a strip of foil long enough to go around the bowl twicethen pleat it to fit the bowl, as shown. Put a band of double-faced cellophane tape around the outside edge of the bowl. Press the pleated piece around this tape. Cut another strip about six inches wide. This is pleated and forms the circle around the base of the bowl. Tie on a piece of contrasting ribbon and decorate with garden flowers.

An interesting thing about claret is its name. The original name was vin clairet which means, simply, clear wine. Straight from the bottle with a springtime meal or snack, claret is a mild-flavored, thirst-quenching drink with enormous popular appeal.

FOR THE PUNCHBOWL, start with a bottle of Califor-nia claret. Add three cups of orange juice, fresh or frozen, a third of a cup of lemon juice, a half cup sugar and a quart bottle of ginger ale. Add some ice. Garnish with lemon slices. Use kitchen cups, paper cups if you're in the patio or on the porch, or short, sturdy glass tumblers. You'll get about 25 servings from this recipe so plan accordingly.

This punch is suitable for a buffet luncheon or dinner, at cocktail time with snacks or tea cakes, and as a charming centerpiece for a summertime celebration.

SOUTHLAND TRAVELER THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERT

A Toast to Santa on the Pacific

By Fred Taylor Kraft

THERE'S always a best time to travel to specific places, and probably the best time to cruise in the Pacific is this fall

We're thinking about five holiday cruises aboard three luxurious American President Lines ships which combines the gaiety of holidays at sea, travel in the fascinating far places of the Orient at a particularly inviting time of the year, plus-and this must not be overlooked-a 25 per cent reduction in fares!

First ship to sail on the junkets is the all-first class President Hoover which lifts anchor at San Francisco Nov. 4 and returns to the Golden Gate Dec. 16. This, it should be noted, provides time for Christmas shopping in the Orient and gets you back for your own Yule festivities.

On the other hand, the President Cleveland sails from Los Angeles Harbor Nov. 15, observing Thanksgiving and Christmas at sea. Annual APL Christmas and New Year's cruises will be on the President Wilson, sailing Dec. 10 from Los Angeles, and aboard the President Hoover, leaving San Francis-co Dec. 21. A Dec. 30 President Cleveland cruise starts off with a rousing New Year's Eve party,

ON THESE cruises the three handsome liners will call at Honolulu; Yokohama and Kobe, Japan; Manila, P.I., and Hong Kong.

It is interesting to know that Japan will be intriguing with its white topped Mt. Fuji, sumo wrestling season, and the exotic Christmas ritual at Oseibe, an exchange of gifts and good will.

Hong Kong's great port will be toured, her famous restaurants and night life savored, and there will be swimming and sun bathing on her beaches. The Philippines will wear her most lovely verdant green dress, with the summer rains over:

Aside from the usual life aboard ship—swimming, deck sports, dancing and movies there will be Christmas car-(Advertisement)

"We're going to Europe... does my 18-year-old son need a summer formal for a cabinclass ship crossing?"

NO, NOT a summer formal. I fake it with a linen sport coat and dark slacks. Add a bow tie and he'll be as comfortable and well dressed as if he had a $300 tuxedo.

N SHARP contrast to much of the Pollyanna type of travel literatures is a very different booklet called "In Mexico, It's the Custom, Senor," published by the North American Committee for Mexico, a non-profit organization of U.S. businessmen and residents in Mexico

Frank and informative, it shows what sincerely interested individuals in foreign countries can do by way of fostering more intelligent, rewarding tourism without resorting to telling visitors only what they want to hear.

Much of what the committee has to say applies to the rest of Latin America also. For example:

"Mexicans think of people as individuals first . . . primarily as a man and only secondarily as a waiter, a cab driver or hotel clerk. . . Mexicans find it hard to grasp the North American habit of thinking of people in terms of their function first,

"Once you understand this basic outlook . . .you'll find that the behavior of the people, their ways and customs and social conventions all form part of a clearly-defined, consistent cultural pattern, easy to grasp, enjoyable to live with."

Some other pointed hints:

TAXIS-You don't whistle for one, just wave or hiss softly. And be prepared for the drivers' code, "Let it be a short ride and a merry one."

SERVICE - Mexicans nelther expect nor want to be served with speed. It's the custom to make more of a ceremony of meals than North Americans do.

TIPS - "Mexicans expect tips for many services that would take for granted, for the people who depend mainly on tips for their subsistence make up a much larger part of the population.
... When in doubt, tip."

SHOPPING—"Save at least 40 per cent of your spendable cash for the hinterlands. Prices often are lower in smaller communities."

Big Bear Route

Recreation facilities in the Big Bear Lake area has greater accessibility with the opening recently of State Hwy. 38, the Automobile Club of Southern California reports.

The old highway from Redlands to Barton Flats, not heretofore designated with a state highway number, and the new portion from Barton Flats to Big Bear City are posted as Hwy. 38,

Big Bear is accessible now over Rim of the World Drive (State Hwy, 18) past the Crestline and Arrowhead areas; City Creek Rd. (Hwy, 30) from Patton through Running Springs; or from Apple Valley and Lucerne Valley ever Hwy. 18,

to 3 p. m. Of late, especially in the cities, a valiant attempt has been made to keep working hours from 9 to 5. But in the small towns the modern ways remain thorougly ig-

BUSINESS - "Friendliness and an unpretentious manner are always in fashion, but extreme casualness . . . belongs at home, not in the office." However, "chit-chat is not irrelevant, and one who omits it in his haste to get down to business is considered brusque, if not downright rude.1

LADIES - It's not a good idea to go places unescorted except in the heart of Mexico City during the day. At night it's definitely unwise. And ladies are not expected to be seen in bars. Nor should they wear slacks except in the most informal circumstances,

PICTURES - Ask before taking shots of government buildings, churches and military installations. The same goes for individuals, who don't like to be considered quaint sights any more than you would back home,

BANDITS - Despite the movies, there aren't any more highwaymen than there are at home.

DRIVING-Highway checkpoints, we are told, are not a sign of tyranny but a check against abuses by over-theborder commuters. We are also warned to prepare for uncooperative pedestrian traffic in the hinterlands, and to be detained in the event of an

Don't Pin a Halo on Lost Partner

By Vera Williams

, pendent, Press-Telegram Blook Editor

A RE YOU a P.W.P.—Parent Without Partner?

Are you a parent who has lost a partner through death or divorce?

Don't stay home and mope. Circulate . . . Make your-self as attractive as you can Entertain, even if it's a pot-luck dinner . . . Seek the company of adults . shut your mind to the prospect of another marriage.

You may not agree with this advice. Jim and Janet Egleson who were P.W.P.'s before they married each other, don't expect you to agree with anything they say as a matter of fact they often don't agree with each other. But they collaborated on "PARENTS WITHOUT PARTNERS, a Guide for Divorced, Widowed or Separated Parents" (Dutton, $4.50) as realistic as a brick wall.

Rule 1: Don't pin a halo on dead partner, Remember there were rough times as well as good ones. Rule 2: Don't moan about a divorce. There might not have been a divorce if you had tried harder to make your marriage work, Rule 3: Don't give up everything for your children. They don't want you to, and won't appreciate it if you do.

There is down-to-earth advice on separation agreements, visitation rights, property division, child support. Egleson is one of the founders of PWP, Inc. which stacted five years ago in New York as a forum to discuss the problems of divided and one-parent families. It has grown to a national organiza-tion with 40 chapters.

AFFLUENT societies, families debate about whether they can afford color television or a second car. In backward societies, families debate about whether they can afford a second daily meal. "THE BACKWARD SO-CIETY" by Raymond Frost (St. Martin, $5) tells the story of two-thirds of the world's population, living in Latin America, Africa and Asia, and accounting for only a small part of the world's production, trade and wealth. It contrasts sharply with the other third of the world's population, living in North America, Europe, Russia and Japan which produces and enjoys the greater part of the world's riches. Apart from humanitarian reasons, affluent people should help down-on-theirluck people because a large number of poor and unstable nations constitute an imminent danger to world peace. warns the author.

U.S. AND WORLD Publications, Inc. in cooperation with the International Advisory Council has issued an illustrated question - and - answer book about the United States, "THE U.S.A. ANSWERS—A Guide to Understanding,"

edited by Kenneth E. Beer (cloth, $5; paper, $2.50.) The guidebook provides answers to 1,800 questions most frequently asked about the United States by people abroad. The questions and answers were developed from the research of 50 government and independent fact-finding agencies for use at the American Exhibition in Moscow in 1959. The material also will be distributed at the Italia '61 Centennial Exhibition in Turin this summer.

GERMAINE TILLION, whose "Algeria: The Realiwon her recognition as an authority on the Algerian conflict, has written "FRANCE AND ALGERIA: Complementary Enemies" has (Knopf, $3.) The new book includes two interviews with Algerian rebel leader Saadi Yacef, in which the author's recollections of her experiences as a member of the French Resistance during World War II provide a striking counterpoint to her attitudes toward terrorism, assas-sination and torture. "France and Algeria" casts light on recent history as well as on contemporary social and economic concerns and the future of today's emerging "inde-pendent" nations.

A MEDICAL practice ranging from battlefields to luxury hotels is described by Dr. E, Martinez Alonzo in "MEM-OIRS OF A MEDICO" (Doubleday, $4.50.) Dr. Alonso, who grew up in Spain and Scotland, was educated in then returned to England. Spain and accepted a surgical post at the invitation of Queen Ena, Outbreak of civil war plunged him into a frontline surgical unit. In World War II he was medical advisor to the British and American embassies and he organized an escape route from France to Portugal-which he ultimately had to use. He now is hotel doctor at the Castellano Hilton in Madrid, treating tourists tummyaches.

WHAT'S THE MATTER with a 6-year-old boy picking out a bride for his father, and prodding him on to marriage? Nothing, believes Mark Toby, New York television and radio writer, who makes his debut as a novelist in "THE COURTSHIP OF EDDIE'S FATHER" (Geis, $3.50.) It's an amazing courtship, involv-ing quite a few off-beat characters, chuckles, laughs and a sympathetic tear or two.

"THE CUSTARD BOYS" by John Rae (Farrar, Straus, Cudahy, $3.95) is a sensitive novel about a Jewish-Austrian refugee lad of 14 who is evacuated to a Norfolk village and there falls in with hoys who play war games and live by a harsh military code. The

NATHANIEL BENCHLEY

The son of Robert Benchley is author of a new novel "THE OFF-ISLANDERS" (McGraw-Hill, $4.50), the story of a Russian "invasion" of an island off the coast of New England. It has drama and high humor.

youngster runs away, thus is branded a "cowardly custard."

WILL TOURISTS stay at a resort where there is no recreation, but an abundance of good food? Elsie Materson says they will and her Blueberry Hill Farm at Brandon, Vt. advertises "Nothing What-ever To Do" and "Lucullan Food." You may already know Elsie through her previous books "Nothing Whatever To Do" and "Blueberry Hill Cookbook." Now she has a new one, "KEEP OFF MY TOES!" (Little, Brown, $4.50) in which she describes an involvement in the local oneroom school system, and tells anecdotes about visitors and employes at Blueberry Hill, Robert Frost is one of the guests.

THE 16th ANNUAL collection of "THE BEST DETECTIVE STORIES OF THE YEAR" edited by Brett Halliday (Dutton, $3.95) lives up to the anthology's excellent reputation. Especially recommended: Henry Slesar's "Welcome to Our Bank"; Bryce Walton's "Suit of Armor; Size 36"; Richard M. Gordon's "Apres Moi, La Bombe."

A LIVELY BOOK, fresh, modest, thoughtful and sensitive" says Robert Oppenheimer of "ATOMS AND MEN" by Louis Leprince-Ringuet (University of Chicago Press, $3). The author, an atomic energy commissioner in France, internationally known a to mic physicist, writes about the usefulness of science, its process and the intellectual and material conditions it needs to thrive.

IN RECENT YEARS there has been a surge of new interest in the poetry of modern Greece. Edmund Keeley and Philip Sherrard selected and translated a representative collection: "SIX POETS OF MODERN GREECE" (Knopf. $5) Included are works of Constantine Cavafy, Anghelos Sikelianos, George Seferis, D. I. Antoniou, Odysseus Flytis and Nikos Gatsos. Jacket design is by Rudolph Ruzicka.

By The Shutterbug

This is equally true of animal pictures—a natural snapshot of a dog being a dog will be much better, much more interesting than the canine equivalent of a "say cheese" pose.

And a story-telling picture

is easy to take, too. Here are a few tips on how to pose your dog and how to make the picture.

FIRST, most dogs have certain individual traits and attributes which set them apart—even from others of the same breed—and which make your dog truly yours. You can emphasize such traits and attributes in the way you pose the dog, and with simple props.

The intelligent alertness of a collie can be photographed best if a prop is used which stimulates his alertness — a wind-up toy, for example,

The completely mournful basset expression becomes even more mournful if something—a chewed-up newspaper, an overturned plant—is included to account for his worry.

These have been "portrait" suggestions. Another method of capturing your real dog on film is to make action snapshots.

THE PUPPY portrait that accompanies this article illustrates several good points of story-telling pet snapshots. First, puppies are small, so these cockers were placed in small baskets to emphasize their size; second, care was taken to focus the camera correctly-note that in this close-up of about three feet the basket handles are out of focus, putting the picture emphasis on the pups' faces; and third, the camera angle is level with the puppiespicture taken at a downward angle would fail to capture the bemused expressions.

Keep these simple picturestory suggestions in mind the next time you get your camera and your dog together. Put your tail wagger in a tale telling situation you will enjoy the pictures more and so will your friends.

EEPING poll-parrot healthy and contented is not too difficult. The large bird with the brilliantly colorful plumage is naturally hardy with a record of longevity. It is said that some live as long the average human, although 30 years is considered average. Also, the parrot adapts itself to a confined life with more ease than most other birds. This, plus the fact that it will, in its shrilly way, imitate the human voice. perform in true grandstand style, and is affectionately attached to its owner, has given rise to the idea that it is an intelligent creature. The parrot, in truth, is not very highly placed scientifically, being physically developed on a lower scale than the small songbirds that enliven our gardens and meadows.

Light feeding is best for the parrot, and a balanced diet should be given even though the bird holds out for sun-flower seeds only. These seeds are a necessary source of nourishment, but very hard

boiled eggs, fruit, greens, and, of course, cuttlebone, are needed

LEARN the appearance of the normal droppings of your particular parrot, their consistency, color, and amount. If any deviation away from the normal appearance, you should be alarmed. And don't do too much doctoring your self, especially if the bird shows other symptoms of illness. You cannot take the bird's pulse nor can you, as a novice, take its temperature. And the bird cannot tell you how it feels.

If the parrot becomes bored or restless and starts plucking its own feathers, keep its beak busy. In fact, this pet needs to exercise its bill a great deal, since the bill as well as the feet are used for climbing and swinging about. Provide logs and blocks of soft or partially decayed hardwood on which the bird can whittle.

The weather is warm now and rooms cool off rather slowly at night. But as soon as fall comes, be on guard against open windows where the parrot sleeps.

OF INTEREST to dog owners is "The Herbal Book for the Dog," by Juliette de Bairacli-Levy, (Duell, Stoan and Pearce, N. Y. ($4,50), a valuable treatise on natural rearing, feeding, and treatment of diseases and senility of the dog. Its 202 pages are crammed with original findings of the author, an inter-nationally known herbalist, who has achieved fame with five generations of Afghan hounds who have never known a disease. This is a standard work, already published in England, Switzerland, Germany, Holland, and France.

Roberta Wheeler, adult garden class teacher for the Pomona Board of Education. says about the plant: "Statice perezii is an old fashion type plant, quite common on the coast.

foremost August gardening problem. One often keeps plants too wet, thereby de-feating the primary purpose of water plants and lawns properly. Watering too frequently, or keeping soil constantly moist may build up an alkali condition in soil. Fortunately, plants stand excess watering condition for some anemic. Ground covers such as ivy leaf geraniums and ivies, develop brown spots along edges of leaves.

When they can't take any more water, alkali-crusted roots become clogged up. Leaves turn brown along the edges, some plants such as gardenia foliage become stunted in size and look

To correct this problem, first know your soil, whether it is coarse and porous, medium heavy or heavy.

Check to see where moisture content of soil is before you water. An organic mulch material spread over the soil. dichondra or ground cover keeps soil moist, cool, and saves on frequency of watering.

To correct alkali condition of soil, or possible alkali water, or combination of both. apply a soil conditioner that acts like a natural rain. A chemically formulated liquid rain material loosens alkali that builds up around roots, rinses the alkali deeper into the soil, allows better air

Best Bets for Summer Border

Christian Dior is the first red hybrid tea rose to win All America selection since 1953. Its bright crimson blooms are overlaid with an iridescent scarlet. Flowers show 50 to 60 petals which roll out gracefully and remain steadfast in color throughout long life. Under artificial light, petals actually assume unique glow.

SUMMER has a way of sneaking up on the gardener. Unlike spring, which is long awaited and long planned for, summer is suddenly here. Which explains, no doubt, why so many gardens are often more colorful in spring than they are now.

If the season caught you napping, start changing things right now while you're thinking about it. By planting a few shrubs and perennials, this month, you will have the basic elements of a colorful border next summer, and at the proper time you can add whatever annuals are needed to fill it all in. Need we add that if a plant is bought in bloom, it will give color this summer, too.

Start by mapping your plan of attack, Plot areas of sun and shade. Indicate permanent shrubs and any areas of spring bloom that shouldn't be hidden. Then visit a neighborhood member of the California Association of Nurserymen and let him help you fill in the map.

HE WILL probably start you off with some basic perennials — many of which can be found in gallon nursery cans already in bloom or ready to bloom. Yellow and white marguerites are a logical starting point. In the middle border, they can act as a background for lower growing perennial asters and as a foreground for taller delphiniums. A foreground of blue perennial asters backed by yellow marguerites and backed again by blue delphinium is something to see.

Tall fire brands of the red hot poker plant fit well into such a border. They are per-fect contrast to delphinium and so, too, are the flat yellow heads of fernleaf yarrow.

There's a place for roses in the border, too, especially the bloom-crazy floribundas and grandifloras, and, as mentioned above, annuals can be added at the appropriate time. Since you'll get bloom from them this summer, the time would seem appropriate

Dorothy Digs

Watch carefully for spider and mite infestation, especially on plants having large, thin leaves such as dahlias; such foliage is easy for red spider to attack and break down. The red castor bean, used so much in plantings because of the color, is especially susceptible and it is hard to see the red spider on this plant because of similarity of color of plant and insects. A spray containing Kelthane will destroy both spiders and mites without doing any harm to the beneficial predators or friendly enemies which help to fight spider and mite in our gardens.

BOB CROW Lots of Smiles

ON'T YOU believe that rumor that Chinese faces are always inscrutable and unsmiling, veiling mysterious thoughts.

Step into the kitchen at Crow's Restaurant, 503 W. Willow St., at almost any hour of the day and you'll see expressions which explode that rumor sky high. The Chinese chefs there are so happy in their work, they smile, laugh and grin like people anywhere.

There's nothing mysterious about their thoughts either, They're happy because they have the privilege of working with first-class ingredients and top quality equipment which produce Cantonese food that is fresh and delicious. You'll find smiles on the customers at Crow's too -because they're enjoying the privilege of eating that good food.

OWNER (and councilman) Bob Crow serves Sunday dinners from 2 p.m. on, featuring a Chinese dinner for $2.20 which includes light-bodied egg flower soup, fried shrimps, barbecued ribs, pork mushroom chow mein, pork foo yong, pork-fried rice, Chinese noodles, fortune cookies and tea. If additional persons order, sweet and sour pork is added. Crow's Mandarin dinner, for $3, includes all the foregoing plus chicken mushroom almond, chop suey and a Chinese egg roll. The restaurant also features a number of a la carte appetizers, such as won ton (Chinese raviolis) and barbecued chicken, and such a la carte dinner delights as lobster Cantonese, pineapple chicken and cashew nut chicken.

Fine American dinners are also a feature at Crow's and these include soup du jour, salad with choice of dressing, entree, hot baked potato, sourdough bread, pumpernickel and beverage. Among the entrees are a variety of char-broiled steaks, from eastern scallops, $1.95, chicken, halibut steak, ham steak with glazed pineapple, jumbo shrimps and lobster. Children's dinners are from $1.35. —TEDD THOMEY $1.35.

New, Handy Package Serves 1 or 20!

Smartest way to buy potatoes yet! Convenient pour spout helps you measure exactly for a single baby serving or a potato-lovin' crowd. And Pillsbury Potatoes, like apples, are one of nature's best foods!

"Flakes" make Pillsbury's most like home-mashed

Not a powder. Not a granule. But flakes of real potato. Pillsbury discovered that the faster potatoes are turned into "instant," the fresher the flavor will be. So Pillsbury flakes them . . . which is the fastest way of all.

No more! "Hire" Pillsbury instead... New Family-Size Mashed are the saving-est!

If you mash potatoes the hard way, all you save is 156 a serving—for doing 20 minutes' work! If there are four in your gang, that means you're trading 20 minutes of "hard labor" for 26... or six cents an hour! Not worth the trouble! (Even in the biggest families the difference in cost is negligible.)

We bet for 2¢ you'd rather quit all that scrubbing, peeling, cutting and mashing! We'll put in our 2¢ worth and suggest you try new family-size Pillsbury Mashed Potatoes. All the more worthwhile because of Pillsbury's amazing potato discovery which gives them the fluff and flavor of home-mashed!

". . . Keep this great wonder of ' nature as it now is . . . I hope you will not have a building of any kind, nor a summer cottage, a hotel or anything else to mar the wonderful grandeur, the sublimity, the great loneliness and beauty of the (Grand) Canyon."

-THEODORE ROOSEVELT

Will the Grand Canyon be spoiled?

ROR NEARLY 60 years the stirring words above by our great conservationist President have guided development of America's most awesome spectacle-the Grand Canyon.. And each year more than 11/4 million Americans make a pilgrimage to this national park to thrill to its "wonderful grandeur."

But today the canyon's beauty is in grave jeopardy. Unless action is taken, "the sublimity, the great loneliness" may be lost forever. For smack in the middle of the inspiring view, where it can scarcely be missed from any vantage point, a mining firm is planning an 18-story hotel, as shown in the architects' drawing.

"Spectacular" and "unique" are two adjectives employed by the builders' press agents to describe the project. Spilling down mile-deep canyon walls, gleaming white against the colorstreaked rock strata, the hotel would have 600 rooms, each with picture window overlooking the "big ditch" of the Colorado. At the base of the building guests would frolic in an oval pool.

Behind this project lies the problem of creeping commercialism in national parks, first pointed out by PARADE in its campaign to save the Gettysburg battlefield. At Grand Canyon, Western Gold & Uranium Inc. owns 20 acres of the south rim-the only rim land outside Government hands. The firm operates the Orphan uranium mine and a small motel. Board Chairman Richard W. Ince says a study now is being conducted to see if the hotel is feasible.

set years ago when the National Park Service-approved El Tovar hotel was built at Grand Canyon Village. But park-lovers believe the new proposal must be squelched now. "If the inholders are really going to start this monstrous hotel proposal, then conservationists must press for prompt condemnation of their properties," says Anthony Wayne Smith of the National Parks Association, an influential private organization of friends and supporters of the parks.

"Incredible," says Devereux Butcher, editor of the widely-read National Wildlands News. "It is difficult to believe that any responsible person or group having at heart the best interests of our country . . . would do this,"

Even those who commended the hotel said the site was wrong. National Park Service and Department of Interior officials pleaded surprise at the announcement. Unofficial sources said the Government had been negotiating with Western for years about its Orphan mine, which clogs the park with heavy-duty trucks. Under a recent compromise, the mining firm would be allowed to mine a small area of park by promising to donate all property to the park later. This agreement has been held up pending Congressional approval. Some interpret Western's announcement as a bluff to force the government's hand.

But park officials say the canyon will never be safe as long as the 372 acres of "inholdings" exist. More than 490,000 acres of the 251/2 million within park boundaries are still in private hands. To buy them up, Director Conrad Wirth estimates, would cost $45 million. This year, the park service got $6 million for purchases.

"The public must demand that these properties be taken over for the benefit of all before it is too late. Grand Canyon is irreplaceable," says one park-lover. Theodore Roosevelt, father of the park system, would agree. He wrote: "In the Grand Canyon, Arizona has a natural wonder which . . . is absolutely unparalleled throughout the rest of the world."

The housewife who became a comedienne

by LLOYD SHEARER

A PPROXIMATELY 15,000,000 married women in this country work outside their homes—most of them because they have to. Their husbands do not earn enough to provide their families with necessities, luxuries, or educational advantages.

These wives work as secretaries, sales clerks, factory bands. To bring in the extra money they become anything from cab-drivers to card-dealers, morticians to meter-readers.

One housewife has even become a successful, bigtime comedienne. Her name is Phyllis Diller. She comes from Lima, Ohio. She's 43 and the mother of five children, ranging from 11 to 20.

Phyllis Diller earns $4,000 a week. Not bad for a skinny, pipe-stemmed housewife who six years ago was knocking herself silly trying to raise a family of seven in Alameda, California, on an allowance of $50 a week.

A sharp, rubber-faced zany with a bleached mop of straight, cap-cut hair, the Killer Diller, as she's known in show business circles, has accomplished the following in the past few years: she has appeared 30 times on the Jack Paar TV show; she has played practically every top nite-spot in the nation; she has entertained on the Ed Sullivan and Today video shows; she has spent a season in summer stock starring in Dark at the Top of the Stairs: she has played the role of Texas Guinan in the soon-to-be-released film, Splendor in the Grass; and she's just finished a record album, Phyllis Diller Laughs.

Hollywood wants her, Broadway wants her, Television wants her, The reason Killer Diller is in such high-demand is that a stand-up comedienne in today's world is a rarity.

A Rare Breed

A stand-up comedienne is a female who stands in front of an audience and tells jokes at which the audience laughs. But laughs,

In all of show business there is less than a handful of such mirth-provoking females. Lucille Ball, for example, is a slapstick comedienne, a breed more available than the stand-up type.

Moreover, comedienne Diller is in a class by herself; she writes her own material.

"All top-flight comics," she explains, "have a basic premise on which they build their humor and characterization. Jack Benny supposedly is tight and cheap. Milton Berle is brassy and brash. I operate on the premise that I used to be quite lovely until I went to a supermarket and got my face caught in an automatic door. In my comedy I make cracks about young, pretty girls, and I'm always advising other housewives on life and love."

out comedienne doing her act. Phyllis turned to comedy only at her husband's suggestion, after years of marriage.

"I have a red-hot tip for women-drivers," Phyllis will tell a night club audience. "When you've got to call home after an accilent, and your husband answers the phone, never start the conversation with the words: 'Guess what?' because he always will... I've called home so many times that my husband can tell just by the way I say hello what make and model I've hit.

"Last time I decided to fool him. 'Hello, darling,' I said. And he said, 'Who is it?' . . . I said, 'It's me, and I've had a little accident at Post and Geary Streets.' He said, 'But Post and Geary don't cross.' . . . I said, 'They do now.'

"One day I came home and had a little lipstick on the car-fender. My husband insisted on knowing how it got there. I said it was nothing—one woman was so thrilled I'd missed her, she bent down and kissed the car."

Wild and Weird

Phyllis Diller owns a weird and fantastic imagination. Many of her jokes are known in the business as wild, far off the beaten humor track.

She likes, for example, to discuss an imaginary female friend who loves conversation piece jewelry.

Explains Phyllis: "She has a pair of the largest

earrings I've ever seen, bronzed baby shoes—and the twins are still in them."

Of another hostess friend, she says, "This one serves hors d'oeueres with a bow and arrow—and is she a lousy shot. And oh, how she dresses! What a sexy dress she had on the other night. If it had been cut any lower, she would've been barefoot."

Where and how does housewife Diller come up with these jokes? Whatever made her go into comedy in the first place?

Says husband Sherwood Diller, who tours the country with Phyllis: "It was my idea. She was always so darn funny around the house, always so ready to make jokes and entertain the company. I figured she might as well get paid for it."

"The truth," adds Phyllis, "is that I've always been a frustrated ham, and we needed money. Sherry and I had five growing mouths to feed in addition to our own, and I just had to do something."

Phyllis believes she inherited her gab-gift from her father, Perry Driver, an insurance salesman who ran a farm outside Lima, Ohio, and spent most of his working hours selling insurance to fellow-farmers.

"I used to ride around with him," Phyllis recalls, "and listen to his spiel, and my! he was good. Sounded exactly what he was, a middle class, sincere, respectable, church-going man. He was 55 when I was born. He had a lot of wisdom, and he was frugal. When he died he left me $25,000, but I never knew until then that he had the money."

The Diller roots are strictly midwestern. Phyllis grew up in Lima, starred in school dramatics, wrote on the school paper, once wanted to become a pianist. At Blufton College she studied teaching, eventually met Sherwood Diller, scion of a wealthy Bluffton family.

Life with Mother

"When the nesting instinct ripened," Phyllis says, "we cloped to Covington, Kentucky, and got married. We moved into my mother-in-law's house, and brother! it wasn't easy. I'm an open, honest, outspoken, get-it-off-your-chest dame. My husband's family was Victorian-conservative, very secretive."

During World War II, the Dillers were living in California where Sherwood went to work at the Alameda naval base. His pregnant wife and two children lived with him in a housing project.

"It was awful," Phyllis recalls distastefully. "There were cockroaches all over the place. Our neighbors were dirty, ill-bred hill-billies. One of them for no reason at all took a rock, jammed it into my son Peter's mouth, knocked out all his teeth. Sherry lost his job, went from one thing to another. We had practically no money. In desperation I got a job as a kindergarten teacher, but lasted only a day and a half. There was no one to take care of the kids, so I quit.

"Then my father died, and my mother came out to live with us. She had the inheritance, and she said, 'It's all yours, the whole $25,000, only I want you to divorce Sherry, get away from him, and you and the children start fresh.'

"I wouldn't hear of it. Sherry and I, like all husbands and wives, have known some bad times, but I wasn't going to divorce him. In the end she bought us a house for $11,000, and finally we had some place in which to live—no job, you understand, but a big house."

After her mother died, Phyllis got the rest of the inheritance, but "being a real dumb broad, I got tied up with a crooked real estate operator who took us to the cleaners."

The next few were up-and-down years for the Diller family. Father undertook half a dozen different jobs, for a short period was the leading refrigerator salesman at Sears Roebuck. Mother gave birth to two more children, conducted the choir at the Alameda Presbyterian Church.

One summer when the furnace, washing machine, and car broke down, and the bills mounted, Phyllis decided to get a stopgap job. She wrote a shopping column and sold space for the San Leandro News Observer, then added a bi-weekly social column.

"I discovered," she said, "that writing gave me a big charge, so I got a better job as a copywriter at Kahn's Department Store in Oakland. I really dug it. I went from there to radio station KROW, then to KSFO in San Francisco, writing commercials. Slowly I found myself on the fringes of show business.

"By this time I was making $100 a week and could afford someone steady to look after the children. It was Sherry who suggested that I make the jump into comedy. You're a very funny dame,' he kept telling me. 'Just study yourself in the mirror.'

"I'll say this about Sherry. He's given me 100 per cent support and cooperation in my career. A lot of husbands are jealous and resentful when their wiives hit it—not Sherry, he's a perfect gentleman. He loves me so much he's willing to haul 22 pieces of my luggage on the trains while I fly around from booking to booking. That's what I call real love."

Laughs and Loot

Phyllis Diller made her first nightclub appearance in 1955 at the Purple Onion in San Francisco. She auditioned, she says, "just for laughs and the hope that it would lead to a little loot." She aroused such an instantaneous rapport with audiences that she played the club for 89 weeks.

When the Purple Onion opened a branch in Hollywood, Phyllis was sent south where she "bombed."

"They just didn't go for me in Los Angeles," she sadly confessed, "so back to San Francisco where I got a restoration treatment for my morale. After that it was strictly Learnsville for me in Eureka, Calif., a bunch of tank towns, then Dallas, Chicago, New York. In some places, I was great. In others, they wouldn't even let me play for the dog-catchers.

"It's not easy for a housewife to adapt herself to show business on the road, but I've done my best. I've had to park the kids with Sherry's mother and sister, but I see them as frequently as I can.

What Phyllis would ideally like is a home base from which she could operate instead of the constant travel and two-to-three weeks nightclub stands.

"I need steady exposure," she explained. "That's the greatest thing about TV. Millions of people get to know you. After that, it's a little easier in this racket. At the moment, they say I'm a comer. Some critics have typed me as a poor man's Auntie Mame or the American Gracie Fields. I think I'm just me—a crazy-looking dame with a touch of sophistication, a word about everything, and a compulsion to perform."

If she had a chance, would Phyllis Diller chuck it all, relinquish the limelight and loot for her old job as housewife and mother?

"To be absolutely honest with you," she admits, "I'd chuck it all if I had enough money so that I could live with my kids while they're growing up.

"Still, I dig the excitement in this business. It gives me a lift, a feeling that you're vital and alive. It's hard to get this feeling in a kitchen over a hot stove."

Lest other housewives think show business is an easy gambit, she says, "please tell 'em that coming up with new routines, being funny night after night is no hughing matter. It's frequently a brain-busting, heartbreaking job."

AMBITION can run you ragged.

President, American Association of Marriage Counselors

or long ago, a young crew-cut engineer came home from work and collapsed white-faced in a chair. "I made it, honey," he whispered to his wife, and promptly fainted. At 28, he had won the promotion he had dreamed of for years, head of a department with a clear road ahead to the Executive Suite.

Within four months, the young man was gulping tranquilizers to deaden his growing fears of failure. One day, while affoat in a drug-induced sea of calm, he made a grave error on contract specifications and realized it too late. The mistake cost his firm $100,000.

Stricken with horror, seeing his career ended before it had begun, he left the office, got drunk and drove with hurtling speed towards a hunting cabin he had bought in the woods. Next morning, state police found his car and his body, both smashed against a boulder.

This man was destroyed by ambition.

But the president of his firm is a 42year-old scientist who was just as ambitious. Yet this man is not only extremely successful but has a loving wife and four proud children.

Why did ambition carry one man to the peak and wreck another?

What I am about to say may shatter cherished notions. Most people believe, absolutely and unshakably, that ambition is like good health—nobody can have too much. They are tragically unaware that this dynamic human force can bring us success—but it can also wreck our lives. That it can help us raise wonderful children—but also turn them into delinquents. That it can attract a large circle of friends—but also force us into a life of loneliness.

What, then, is the secret of ambition? How can you make it work for you instead of against you?

The key lies in proper timing.

Be ambitious, of course — but move forward at the pace that is right for you. Rising too quickly in the world gives you the psychological "bends." This can be just as potentially disastrous as that serious condition deep-sea divers can get by coming to the surface too rapidly.

A Six-Point Checkup

You can tell right now if you are moving forward too fast for your own good. Make this emotional checkup:

- 1. Do you feel you need a drink at the lunch hour to get you through the rest of your business day?
- 2. When you close up shop at day's end, do you feel yourself appreciably "tighter" than you were in the morning?
- 3. Do you blow up a good deal more than you used to at your wife and kids?
- 4. Have your personal medical bills risen appreciably since you began moving upward in your career?

- 5. Is it taking you quite a bit longer to make up your mind about things than a few years ago?
- 6. Have you dropped or tapered off sharply on hobbies you loved because you "have no time for them"?

The more "yes" answers you have given, the more important it is to put a checkrein on your ambition and lower your sights. Climbing more slowly is less apt to make you emotionally breathless.

Now how about wives and mothers? Women are more deeply involved than ever in a man's ambitions, and overly-ambitious wives frequently cause a man's failure.

These "Ambitious Alices" constantly prod their husbands to "assert" themselves in business, fight for promotion, demand a raise. The men are shamed into speedups, often with disastrous results. One woman nagged her social-worker husband to open a motel because she felt it offered brighter prospects. One day he left home and never returned. Such wives believe they are only helping—actually, they are basically selfish, concerned mainly with their own ambitions for a bigger house, a better car, higher status.

Ambitious Alices often extend their lofty aspirations to their children. You can spot these poor youngsters in every community. They are the ones who are pushed to be "popular," urged to compete for the top grades and the highest honors.

Ambition unreined feeds on itself. I know a lawyer who is busy, rich and popular. He knows all the "best" people and he and his wife make charming hosts and guests. Nobody knows that for the past five years they haven't spoken a word to each other when alone. Or that his three grown children despise him.

He achieved his ambition of being the town's No. 1 attorney but lost his family in the process. As he grew more important, his social obligations increased. To fulfill these, he had to work harder. Each successive step meant less time at home, deteriorating communication with his family and a more total pre-occupation with work. At length he was insisting that his wife, in delicate health, entertain lavishly and unstintingly. The realization that his ambition meant more to him than his wife's health killed her love and alienated his already distant children.

Practical Guideposts

How, then, can you make this great power an ally instead of an enemy? For practical purposes I offer these three guideposts for handling ambition:

Give up dreams that cannot come true.

We all have hopes and aspirations. But many are never realized. If you dreamed of becoming the greatest writer in America and have not, be happy with what you have achieved. If you have not dazzled the world as a ballerina, don't spend a moment in bitterness over what "might have been" if you had "only got the breaks." Come to terms with reality and enjoy what's here for you.

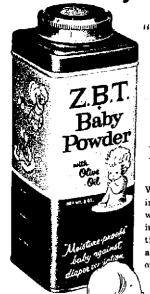

Plan your climb in casy stages. Set reasonable goals for yourself as you go forward. Bite off only what you can chew. In this way, the risks of failure are kept at a minimum.

When the time comes, move quickly and decisively.

When the job ahead becomes vacant, when the time for plant expansion is right, and when you are ready — act swiftly. The knowledge that you are equipped with emotional shock absorbers and the know-how to handle the increased load will give you priceless self-confidence.

An outdoor supper-for the kids

by BETH MERRIMAN Parade food editor

It's fun for everyone—especially young-sters who want to eat outdoors not too far from home-to have a supper wrapped in a gay bandana knapsack tied to a sturdy pole. Within the knapsack is a large plastic-coated paper plate heaped with cold fried chicken, butter chive sandwiches, crisp radish roses, a juicy peach and molasses chocolate bars, all covered with transparent plastic wrap. Each person can carry a small vacuum bottle filled with a favorite beverage in addition to the knapsack. Destination: a big shady tree on the lawn, a nearby brook or a neighbor's wading pool.

Best-Ever Fried Chicken

11/4 cups flour

2 teaspoons salt

2 teaspoons paprika

I teaspoon thyme or sage

1/8 teaspoon pepper-

2 broiler-fryer chickens,

Combine flour and seasonings. Rinse chicken in cold running water, but do not dry; immediately roll pieces in seasoned flour. Heat salad oil, 1/2" deep in skillet, until drop of water added to oil sizzles. Place chicken, skin side down, in skillet. Put larger, meatier pieces in first. Cook uncovered 15 to 25 minutes on each side, turning only once. Drain well on absorbent paper. Makes eight servings.

New idea in fans: This one—only 5½" high, wide and deep—has jet-type blades that spread air so evenly there is no direct draft. It cools without blowing hair or papers. Use it year round—on desk or card table to take away smoke; thaw frozen food; defrost refrigerator; dry hair, floors, paints; air closets. Weighs 1½ lbs., tilts 90°. $12.50. McLarty, Dept. PP, 2600 Dickman Rd., Battle Creek, Mich.

Flexible dishwasher: Rectangular in shape, a new automatic dishwasher fits almost anywhere—recessed in or hung from a wall on or under a kitchen counter, or as a floating room divider. A built-in steam generator produces distilled water, eliminating minerals and water spotting. It comes in three models to accommodate six, 10 and 15. For details: Temco Industrial, Dept. PP, Box 6191, Dallas 22, Texas.

Pitnic aid: With space for toting the entire family's meal to beach or pienic area, a new carry-all instantly becomes a four-place dining table when you get there. Closed, it's 15½ x 15½ x 11½". Open, it's 14½" high x 32" across, has four tubular steel fold-away legs. $14.50. Wallace - Associates, Dept. PP, P. O. Box 407, Bloomfield, N. J.

Wet, dry and extensible: Now comes a combination wet mop and dry duster with a telescopic handle so you can reach high walls and ceilings and tops of large windows. When wet, the 10" square polyeurethane foam head acts as a sponge. Used dry—it becomes soft again after wetting—it gathers and holds dust, cobwebs, etc. like a magnet. A 3½'-long handle extends to 7' in one model, 9½' in another. $6.49 and $7.98. Crest Co., Dept. PP, 26 Avenue B, Newark, N.J.

New for your car: Here's a handy item—a plastic mitt with a seal-tight closure and two shammy cloths inside. Cloths serve usual car-washing purposes—and the mitt keeps your hand dry and warm both when you wash the car and clear it of ice and snow in winter. Mitt also stores the shammies wet and ready for emergency use on the road, in cleaning sticky fingers, wiping up spilled drinks, cleaning windshield. S1. Mailbox, Dept. PP. Box 3587, Washington 7, D. C.

Paddle hoat: Here's fun for kids (below)—a side-wheeler for pool or open water that splashes along at up to 3½ mph when paddle wheels are turned. It's made of unsinkable plastic foam, weighs 3 lbs., and bucket seat submerged below hull provides stability. About $15.95 in stores. A.T. S. Enterprises, Dept. LONG BEACH, CALIF.

POR 19 YEARS, citizens of this west coast seaport city lived in the shadow of a frightening menace. Slowly but with gathering momentum, their harbor district was slipping into the Pacific Ocean!

The strange chain of events that almost doomed the thriving community and necessitated the virtual rebirth of an entire sprawling section of the city began in early 1942, when an obscure surveyor calculating reference points from which to construct a huge drydock at the wartime-bustling Naval Shipyard couldn't get consistent readings.

"The earth is moving," he reported to his foreman conscientionsly.

"You're a crackpot," his superior retorted. And when the hapless surveyor persisted in his "wild camouflages for incompetence," he was fired and forgotten.

It wasn't until years later that the worried citizens realized that the nameless surveyor had been right. And by that time, Long Beach was literally on the brink of disaster. A hitherto unknown villain they came to know as "subsidence" was causing the harbor district to sink down at an alarming rate.

Disaster Looms

Buildings cracked and shifted on their concrete foundations; bridges settled at dangerously lopsided levels; rail and power lines were being constantly disrupted; hundreds of oil wells oozed into uselessness.

By 1945, one section of the harbor had settled four feet. By August, 1957, a 16 square mile area had sunk from 2 to 27 feet and engineers calculated that the rate of sinkage was as high as 21/2 feet per year.

Long Beachers fought back against the mysterious creeping destruction, frustrated and terrified because they didn't actually know what they were fighting. Dikes were built; ground levels were raised; broken pipes were repaired; curbs and streets were rebuilt; public facilities were restored.

Despite all efforts, it seemed subsidence must win the battle. It seemed that Long Beach was in danger of becoming another Atlantis, the legendary island that sank beneath the sea.

The Villain: Oil

Just as Long Beach was faced with the economically crippling loss of the $170,000,000 Naval Shipyard, petroleum experts agreed that they had found the cause of the subsidence. "Oil production in the harhor petroleum fields is causing a loss of underground pressure," they said.

They suggested injecting salt water into the oil fields in a way that would not interfere with lucrative oil production, largest in the state. There was no provision in California law for such a massive flooding of producing oil fields and engineers weren't certain that such drastic action could stop the sinkage anyway.

Yet the citizens fought the necessary laws through the State Legislature in 1958 and stood by anxiously while the massive water injection program started.

Gradually, to the relief of everyone, the sinkage abated and finally all but stopped. During the past three years, more than 400 million barrels of water have been pressure-injected into the oil fields.

My favorite jokes

EDITOR'S NOTE: Jack Herbert, comedian, M.C., and after-dinner speaker, now in his late forties, made his entrance into the entertainment business in his teens as a sleight-of-hand artist. He gradually interspersed his magic routine with quips and gags and soon discovered that people would rather be amused than amazed. His flexibility as a comedian has made him a sought-after favorite in one-night stands as well as hotels, theaters and night clubs.

- ONCE THERE WAS an elevator operator who tired of people asking him for the time so he hung a clock in the elevator. Now all day long people ask him, "Is that clock right?"
- ► THE PRISONER, accused of bigamy, had just won an acquittal. "You're a free man again," the judge told him. "Go home to your wife."

"Thank you, your Honor," said the acquitted, "but which one?"

► A TRIBE OF CANNIBALS was captured and the head of the tribe announced that he had attended college in the United States.

"Do you mean," he was asked "that you went to college and that you still eat human beings?"

"Sure," replied the chief, "but now I use a knife and fork."

- ► A HAUGHTY but sensitive matron, extremely near-sighted, refused to wear glasses in public. She fumbled and bluffed her way through a hazy world until one Sunday in church she discovered she was singing the dots on her veil.
- ► THE HOTEL CLERK smiled pleasantly at the pompous-looking man who stood at the registration desk, and inquired, "What is your name, sir?"

The man, obviously annoyed, gruffly rejoined with, "Don't you see my signature on the register?"
